SUPERIOR SCHOLARSHIP

Lowell's most cherished tradition is good scholarship. Most students who come to this school do so in order to prepare themselves for college and a professional or business career. About 90 per cent of the students continue on to college after graduation.

The University of California and Stanford University are the goals of most Lowellites. As a result, during the past 10 years, 53 per cent of the students going to U.C. from the San Francisco public schools are from this school. During the same period Lowell has accounted for 75 per cent of the students accepted from San Francisco by Stanford University.

The U.C. Medalists (for highest grades at the University of California over a four-year period) in 1953 and 1954 were Lowell graduates.

In 1856 . . .

The Vigilance Committee brought law and order to San Francisco. Education was extended to the secondary level.

UNEQUALLED SPIRIT

Lowellites have always taken pride in their school spirit. It is a tradition that goes back 100 years. This unequalled spirit has been displayed on the athletic field, in the stands while supporting either a winning or a losing team, and in every phase of school activity.

Perhaps the truest indication of real school spirit is the continued interest and support given to the school by members of the alumni, and the fact that undergraduates and alumni alike are proud to have their names associated with Lowell High School.

In 1867 . . .

San Francisco organized its first paid fire department and the colorful era of the rival volunteer units came to an end.

UNSELFISHNESS IN SERVICE

Shield and Scroll members display the huge stack of gifts collected in the Christmas drive.

The Christmas Drive is one of the newer traditions at Lowell. Each year at Christmas, the two service societies, the "Shield and L" and the "Scroll and L" sponsor this drive. In the true Christmas spirit, all of the students donate gifts which are distributed to various hospitals and agencies. This year, the student body responded to the slogan "Bring Happiness to Others" by contributing over 3,500 gifts—surpassing the donation of any one of the previous years. This year the gifts were distributed to the Sunshine School, the Langley Porter Clinic, the St. Francis Day Home, and the Sonoma State Hospital.

In 1873 . . .

The world's first cable car started operating in San Francisco. The ferry building was constructed.

FRIENDLINESS TO OTHERS

Members of the Scroll doing the traditional Spring Dance are Al Katsuyama, Bob Minney, Guy Erb, Tom Caylor, John Debenham, Al Clark, and Jim Nolan.

A sincere effort is made each semester to extend a feeling of friendliness to all newcomers to Lowell. The Big Brothers and Big Sisters are on hand at the start of the term to give an individual welcome to every new Lowellite. The Newcomers' Reception is the general student body's salute of welcome to students that are new to Lowell. A tradition that has grown out of this latter event is the "Spring Dance" put on by the Scroll boys. Many of San Francisco's most famous doctors, lawyers, and businessmen can recall their participation in this dance 10, 20, or even 30 years ago. (See the Scroll boys of 1925 elsewhere in this book.)

In 1886 . . .

San Franciscans started to become sports-minded. Bicycle riding was the most popular sport and chief means of transportation.

GOOD SPORTSMAN- SHIP

In 1894 . . .

San Franciscans flocked to Golden Gate Park to visit the Midwinter Fair. The park became the city's favorite playground.

Cheerleaders who help to generate the great Lowell spirit are Key Bley, Tony Mathios, and Charles Levin. The song leaders are Karen Guthrtz and Joni Swimmer (middle row) and Elaine Klein and Carole Morrison.

Lowell students have always accepted the premise that school spirit is worthwhile only when supplemented by good sportsmanship. Good sportsmanship means recognition of the leadership of those in charge; it means accepting the will of the majority; it means sincere respect for one's opponents; and it means being a humble winner and a gracious loser.

All real Lowellites subscribe to the above definition of good sportsmanship and recognize it as being far more important than mere success in any endeavor.

HIGH SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY & TRUSTWORTHINESS

A high sense of responsibility and trustworthiness has been developed in Lowellites through student government and student control. Students are given a voice in the school administration through an executive board and a student council.

Students have traditionally accepted the responsibility by conscientious efforts to adopt democratic policies and give their wholehearted support to school authorities.

The Lowell Executive Board meets to discuss school activities.

In 1906 . . .

The great earthquake and fire demolished San Francisco. The people started at once to build a bigger and finer city.

In 1915 . . .

The people of San Francisco celebrated the completion of the Pan-Pacific Exposition in the Marina.

Students know they must follow certain rules in checking out library books, just as they must follow other rules so that the school may operate smoothly.

WHOLEHEARTED SUPPORT OF RULES AND REGULATIONS

Lowellites have consistently proved themselves to be good citizens through their wholehearted support of rules and regulations. A large school can not function properly unless all students recognize the need for definite rules in conducting a fire drill, using the proper stairways at all times, getting to class on time, and for a hundred other routine functions during the day.

Students traditionally recognize the democratic concept that laws, rules, and regulations are made to be respected by everyone.

Although Lowell students are housed in a 43-year-old building lacking most of the advantages and conveniences of most modern high schools, the students and staff strive to take the best possible care of the "old red brickpile," as they affectionately call the school. A good example of this is "Carnival Day". Each year dozens of booths and other structures are built in the court and yards, making sure that all construction is carried on without damage to any permanent installations. By nightfall, all booths are dismantled, the yards are cleaned, and the court and yards are back to their former state.

RESPECT FOR SCHOOL AND PROPERTY

In 1920 . . .

San Franciscans were staying home to listen to the city's first radio broadcasting station.

Carnival Day is a highlight of the spring semester.

REGARD FOR CONDUCT & APPEARANCES AT ALL TIMES

Regard for conduct and appearance at all times is an ingrained Lowell tradition. Students have always realized that it is the responsibility of every individual Lowellite to keep his conduct and appearance above reproach at all times if Lowell is to continue to maintain its reputation in this respect. Lowellites have kept this awareness with them at all times, whether they be studying in the classroom, cheering at a rally, performing on the playing field, or marching in a parade.

In 1936 . . .

The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge is opened. The Golden Gate Bridge was completed the following year.

Lowellites graduate and attend colleges and universities throughout the country where they embrace new loyalties, but they still maintain an active interest in their high school Alma Mater. The biggest proof of this is the thousands of former Lowell students who are now participating in the Centennial Celebration. Graduates from as far back as the Class of 1880 are currently giving their time and financial support to see that the school's one hundredth birthday is properly observed.

In 1945 . . .

San Francisco became the birthplace of the United Nations, the hope of the world for Peace in the future.

Junior Red Cross members display some of the books, favors, and toys that have been made or donated by Lowellites.

LOYALTY TO COMMUNITY

Lowell students have always regarded community loyalty as an intrinsic part of school pride and loyalty. Students have given their continued aid and cooperation to such community projects as the United Crusade, the Red Cross, and the JACKIE program, through financial donations, assisting in publicity campaigns, and contributions of time and talent. The largest unit in San Francisco's "Festival of Progress" parade this year was the Lowell aggregation.

In 1955 . . .

San Francisco celebrates the opening of the city's new International Airport.

LOYALTY TO NATION

Lowell High School can point with pride to its record of achievement and loyalty to the nation in peace and war. Along with contributing members of the armed forces to support the country's efforts in five great wars since 1856, Lowellites led all other schools in the city in support of war bond drives during World Wars I and II. However, the greatest manifestation of the school's loyalty to the nation is the almost 21,000 worthy American citizens Lowell has graduated in the past 100 years.

In 1962 . . .

Lowell High School is now located in a fine new building in the Lake Merced area.

Fashions of the Gold Rush Days when San Francisco's first high school opened are modeled by Sonya Holodiloff, Joan Tuhtan, Sally Ann Hough, and Sue Brochard.

Sue Linder and Ann Jones show what the well-dressed motorists were wearing around the turn of the century.

The Twentieth Century brought athletic participation to the young ladies as well as men. Sondra Snow and Anita Washington show what the Lowell co-eds of the period were wearing at the beach, and Carolyn Perkins and Barbara Elman display the garb of the girls' basketball team.

FASHIONS DIFFER EACH DECADE

The 1920's brought women's suffrage, and short skirts. Pictured are Donna Dowling, Barbara Bates, Joan Burton, and Nancy Norton.

Two Lowellites of today, Carol Melmon and Sylvia Nelson, show what the well dressed girl wears to a tea. All set to root for the Lowell Indians are Joanne Davies and Marilyn Levy.

TRADITIONS REMAIN UNCHANGED

DEDICATION

If Lowell High School has enjoyed any measure of success it is because its almost 21,000 alumni have provided it with a remarkable record of achievement. One can find Lowell alumni in all parts of the world and in every field of endeavor. But whatever paths they may have taken, the mention of Lowell will bring back fond memories of former classmates and teachers—of experiences shared together.

Lowell owes much to its alumni. Through them its name has come to be respected throughout San Francisco. Their continued interest in the welfare of their Alma Mater has been the spark of enthusiasm in this year's centennial celebration. While attending Lowell, they helped to keep up what we call the "Lowell tradition" and now we want to pay them tribute.

The alumni have become a very fascinating group to the staff of the Red and White which has attempted to record their colorful and diverging history. We are grateful for the interest and cooperation they have given us, and in appreciation we, the staff of the Red and White, dedicate this book to the Lowell alumni.

Greetings From the Governor

It is a pleasure for me to join in extending greetings to the alumni, students, and faculty of Lowell High School on the approaching centennial of their school's founding.

As the oldest public high school in the Far West, Lowell has played a prominent part in the development of our State. The contributions its graduates have made to our culture and economy during the past 100 years have certainly been many and varied. The splendid traditions and fine spirit which are characteristic of Lowell augur well for the future of your school as it embarks upon its second century of educational service in San Francisco.

Cordially,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT

RESOLUTION No. 16367

Whereas, The members of this Board of Supervisors have noted with deep pride that during the year 1956 Lowell High School will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its founding; and

Whereas, On August 16, 1856, Lowell High School, then known as Union Grammar School, under the guidance of its first principal, Ellis H. Holmes, was opened with an enrollment of 45 girls and 35 boys; and

Whereas, Throughout the years Lowell High School has maintained on the highest level its academic traditions and has made, and continues to make important cultural contributions to San Francisco, and today thousands of its graduates have taken their place in the public, professional and civic life of San Francisco and this Nation; and

Whereas, Lowell High School, facing its second century of achievement, is meeting with vigor the challenge that the future holds, and its progressive program of study and training promises from its graduates accomplishments even surpassing the glowing record of its past; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Board of Supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco, in recognition of the notable contributions to the welfare and progress of San Francisco, which have been made by Lowell High School, does hereby take this opportunity, on the eve of said institution's centennial celebration, to extend to the school, its faculty and its students, past, present and future, sincere congratulations, heartiest commendations and the cordial wish that Lowell High School may flourish forever.

The foregoing Resolution was introduced by Supervisor Francis McCarty and adopted by unanimous vote of the Board of Supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco at its regular meeting on Monday, January 30, 1956

Superintendent's Message

This year Lowell High School can look back one hundred years—almost as far back as can the city of San Francisco itself. The history of the one has not merely paralleled that of the other, the two have been intertwined and interdependent. The public support that the city gave to her first high school has come back in multiple returns down through the years.

As San Francisco grew, so did the public school system on which the advancing city was so dependent. And in a true sense Lowell divided and subdivided as new high schools were established to serve the expansion of the city into its many corners. And in turn the mother school has had the satisfaction of seeing her high standards carried into school after school over the city.

As proud as she may be of her past, Lowell's real glory may well rest in the years ahead. The situation that faces our nation in her recently acquired position of world leadership is one to tax the educational ingenuity of any high school, regardless of its past record. There is every indication that Lowell's next hundred years will be as significant as her past hundred.

Principal's Message

I am extremely proud to be associated with an educational institution that has served generations of San Franciscans so well for one hundred years. Thousands of Lowellites have figured prominently in the growth and development of our great City by the Golden Gate. Future generations of Lowellites will continue to bring honor upon themselves, their school, and their community. They will continue to develop a beautiful city as they live their lives and bequeath upon succeeding generations a challenge to greater things.

You will agree with me, I am sure, that the journalism class and the instructor, Mr. Robert Buckley, have prepared a Centennial Yearbook that is a masterpiece. Lowell wishes to recognize them and to thank them deeply for their superb and prodigious effort.

May the Alumni always look back over the years to the old school house, to their teachers, and to their schoolmates with the pleasant feeling of many happy memories. These are the moments that bind Lowellites together. May the old grads and young grads always remain faithful and loyal to their old alma mater and to each other.

J. E. WALLACE STERLING

Graduates of Lowell High School have a fine record of achievement at Stanford University, and I am happy to have this opportunity to extend greetings to the student body and to alumni and other friends of the school.

At the present time there are 70 undergraduate students enrolled at Stanford from Lowell, which has ranked among the principal contributors to Stanford's freshman classes over the years.

The student body and faculty of Stanford University join me in extending Stanford's best wishes to Lowell High School on its hundredth anniversary.

J. E. WALLACE STERLING
President, Stanford University

Congratulations to Lowell High School From Stanford University and the University of California

Lowell High School is not only the oldest high school on the Pacific Coast. It is also among the oldest of educational institutions of all types in the area, including colleges. Even more important, it has over the years judging by the record of its graduates at the University of California, done a consistently good job of teaching and guidance for young people. For example, only four high schools in the State have, since 1950, sent more graduates to the University of California; and the record of these students, in spite of their number, has been markedly above the average for all high school matriculants.

This is a record which is worthy of centennial congratulations, and of which the students as well as the teaching staff and administration of Lowell High School may well be proud.

James Russell Lowell

Lowell High School is proud to be named after such a distinguished American poet, educator, and diplomat as James Russell Lowell.

Lowell was born in Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1819, the descendant of a long line of notable ancestors, and he was reared in surroundings favorable to the development of his gifts of intellectual power and high ideals of manhood.

Lowell spent his childhood on his father's country estate, Elmwood, on the Charles River. He attended Harvard University and Harvard Law School and was admitted to the bar at the age of 21.

After the death of his wife in 1853, Lowell became professor of literature and modern languages at Harvard and held this position for over 20 years. During this time he was editor of the Atlantic Monthly and joint editor of the North American Review.

In 1875 Lowell resigned from Harvard to accept the position of Minister to Spain and in 1880 was transferred to London. He held this position until 1885.

Through his poems and prose, especially the Bigelow papers, Lowell exerted a tremendous influence against the evils of slavery and as a literary critic he had few equals.

Lowell died in 1891 at the age of 73.

The History of Lowell High School—1856-1956

The San Francisco of 1847, following the Mexican War which saw California transferred from Mexican rule to American control, was a tiny village with an official population of 458. However, forces were already at work to provide an education for the handful of children in this community which had just changed its name from Yerba Buena to the more imposing title of San Francisco. Samuel Brannan, owner of the San Francisco Star, published an editorial noting that the village contained 56 children between the ages of five and fifteen who should be receiving some schooling. His advice was heeded; on April 3, 1848, the first public elementary school opened its doors. Thus began the story of public education in San Francisco.

Another event took place in 1848 which was to change the destiny of the entire West as well as San Francisco—the discovery of gold by James Marshall in January of that year. During the next few years the population of San Francisco was to take tremendous upward jumps so that by 1852 the population had passed the 36,000 mark. San Francisco had become a great city, growing so fast that it hardly had time to stop and catch its breath.

San Francisco was also a city of many problems. People from all of the states of the Union and all of the countries of the world were descending upon this city which had become the gateway to the gold fields. This polyglot of humanity ran the gamut from educators, clergymen, doctors, lawyers, and skilled craftsmen—who came to settle and grow with the west—to criminals, vagabonds, and other unprincipled adventurers whose only interest was to get their hands on some of the newly discovered gold.

Even with all of the problems confronting the city, the educational movement continued to go forward. In 1851 the city elected its first superintendent of schools, Colonel Thomas J. Nevins, and before the end of the year had established three free public schools. In the following year four more schools were placed in operation.

These educational steps had been taken in spite of the fact that many of the new arrivals were from countries whose traditions regarded free public schools as "charity" schools; progress was made in spite of the fact that the city was swept by six major fires during this period, with one fire destroying 1500 buildings and doing more than $10,000,000 worth of damage; progress was made even though the criminal elements had seized control of the city government and it was necessary for the Vigilance Committee of 1851 to forcefully evict certain officials and restore law and order to the community. Yes, even in spite of the fact that San Francisco had barely enough funds to keep the wheels of government in motion, the campaign for better educational facilities went forward.

In 1853 Superintendent Nevins made the bold suggestion that the time had arrived to consider the establishment of a high school for boys and a seminary for girls. Those in opposition to the plan pointed out that even in the old established cities of the East, the free public high school was not an established institution.

Boston, with its hundreds of years of educational traditions, led the way by opening a public high school in 1821. Other communities were slow to follow the lead. New York City waited until 1847 before extending its educational system up to the high school level, and St. Louis in this year of 1853 had just ventured into the field of secondary education.

In 1854 Superintendent Nevins had sufficiently convinced the Board of Education that a high school was necessary; they issued a statement saying that a high school would be established the following year, but waited until July 10, 1856, before actually passing the resolution that set machinery in motion for operating the school.

Six days later the Board met and rescinded their resolution. Certain Board members were convinced that a high school could not be legally made a part of the San Francisco Common School System. A compromise action taken was to continue with the plans to open the school, with no change in the course of study, but to change the name from The San Francisco High School and Ladies' Seminary to the Union Grammar School.

The same admission rules were to remain in effect. Recommended students from the city's grammar schools were to be admitted after successfully passing a Board of Education examination in orthography, reading, writing, vocal music, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, Spanish grammar, elocution, natural philosophy, use of globes, and the history of the United States. Students were to be between the ages of 10 and 20 years of age. A student was to be allowed to complete a course started between these ages even though he might pass his twentieth birthday.

On July 24 the Board of Education announced that teaching positions were open for the proposed high school and accepted 22 teaching applications. One month later 11 students from Principal Swett's Grammar School No. 1, 11 students from Principal Denman's Grammar School No. 2, 25 students from Principal Holmes' Grammar School No. 3, 14 students from Principal Hammill's Grammar School No. 4, and two students from Principal Carleton's Grammar School No. 7 received notification that they had been promoted to the Union Grammar School.

On August 25 the school opened its doors in rented quarters that belonged to the Wesleyan Church of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, located on Powell Street between Clay and Sacramento. Ellis H. Holmes had been selected as principal and teacher of mathematics. Two teachers had been hired (at $50 per month) to assist him. George W. Mimms was to be the instructor in natural science and Miss Anna C. Park was to be the female assistant for the lower division.

The day after the opening of the school Mr. Ewer of the Board of Education submitted the report defining the course of study to be followed. Provisions had been made for this four year program:

First year, first term. Reading alternating with grammar and analysis; writing alternating with drawing; arithmetic; geography, modern and mathematical; history of the United States; and natural philosophy. Second term same as first.

Second year. This year was to include all of the subjects taught during the first year with arithmetic alternating with algebra, bookkeeping alternating with physical geography, plus ancient history, chemistry, and agriculture. In the second term algebra was to completely replace arithmetic.

Third year. This year was to have algebra alternating with geometry, ancient geography, ancient history, physiology and hygiene, astronomy, and geology. Second term—geometry, ancient geography, modern history, physiology and hygiene, astronomy, and botony.

Fourth Year. Trigonometry, modern history, botony alternating with natural history, intellectual philosophy alternating with moral philosophy, rhetoric alternating with logic, and Constitution of the United States alternating with political economy. Second term—same except botony, themes and forensics once a fortnight, French, Spanish, German, and declamation—each scholar once a month. (There is some doubt as to how much foreign language was actually taught as certain members of the Board of Education vetoed a motion to hire a teacher of foreign language in August, 1856).

From the beginning, the citizens and newspapers always referred to the Union Grammar School as "the high school" and there was no doubt in anyone's mind that its teaching was on the secondary level. On January 8, 1858 the Board of Education officially changed the name to San Francisco High School.

By this time the school had survived initial criticisms that had threatened its existence. Those in opposition to the school had been exploiting the per pupil cost of the high school, $10 per month, against the figure of $3 per pupil per month, cost of the grammar schools. However, solid support from many of the leading citizens and Thomas S. King's Evening Bulletin (he was the brother of the former editor, James King of Williams, whose death in 1856 led to the formation of the second San Francisco Vigilance Committee which freed the city from hoodlum rule once again) assured the continuation of the high school.

Interest in the high school became more intense among the citizens of San Francisco as the day drew near for the graduation of the first class. During the month of December, 1859, when the annual examinations were given, huge crowds flocked to the Powell Street school to watch final examinations which were open to the public viewing.

On December 14 the first class was graduated from the San Francisco High School. An impressive ceremony took place with all of the graduates getting a chance to recite. Principal Holmes gave a short talk. He mentioned that the class originally included 11 girls and 27 boys. He added that it was not lack of scholarship that had reduced the class to 11 graduates but marriages and the fact that a number of students had dropped out to accept available teaching positions in the grammar schools of the city.

Former City Superintendent Harry B. James presented the diplomas after a speech by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Andrew J. Moulder. Mr. Moulder claimed that the high school's course of study was equal to and more practical than that of most Eastern colleges.

Two days later the school held its first graduation ball at San Francisco's Turn Verein Hall with numerous school and city officials present, and "a fine band furnished waltzes, polkas, and quadrilles to which the happy company kept time."

The next important date in the school's history was the dedication of the new school building on September 19, 1860, on the site of the old church building which had been moved to the rear of the lot. A contemporary account in the Evening Bulletin of that date stated, "At one o'clock today a large company gathered in the High School Building on Powell Street, near Clay, which had just been rebuilt, enlarged and beautified. Our readers must remember now how the building looked last fall—half brick, half wood, ungainly, inconvenient and no particular credit to the site it occupied. It was erected originally for a church and for that purpose answered very well and looked well, until city improvements came with their new grades and marvelous changes, and this old house, revamped, was fit for neither church, school building, nor anything else."

The account continued stating how the work had started last fall but was discontinued due to lack of funds. "In May the sale of the School Bonds made the Board flush again, and the work was resumed under a contract for $13,272. . . . Original cost of the lot was $9,200. Grading and putting up a retaining wall cost a little over $3000. Furniture cost $1500."

The exercises opened with a dedicatory prayer by the Rev. E. S. Lacy, followed by a dedicatory song written by J. Bowman. Master Edward Thomas of the first class of the High School was the next speaker; then the pupils sang "Sweet Summer Comes When All Is Bright."

James Denman, the Superintendent of Schools, addressed the gathering next. He detailed the slow growth into public favor of the high school, of which failure in all quarters was predicted. He explained that when the school was opened in the old church, it was intended to be temporary, but that the department's financial embarrassment had delayed the new school until this date. He concluded with the remark that the new building, furniture, and improvements were going to cost the city $28,000.

An oration by Rev. Thomas Starr King, one of the great orators of his day and one of California's two representatives in the National Hall of Fame, was next on the program. He felt that this was a proud day but that he "would like to see the dome of the University crowning the public school system in this and every other state."

Thomas J. Nevins spoke saying that this day was the verification of his dream of eight years ago.

Henry B. James gave an account of how the old church had been raised and thrust back in the lot. In his detailed description of the new building, he said, "Across the front of it, like the top line of a T, is a new brick structure with a mastic veneering in front and the undisguised brick at the end. The front is imposing and handsome—there is no imposition as to the rest. Curved staircases lead the visitor directly to the second floor, where is the large hall, flanked at the entrance of either side with a recitation room, and a gallery in the west end, for the excess of visitors on gala days, which when shut off by sliding doors, makes a good room for teachers' meetings, with abundant facilities through the two stairways to provide drafts of air. All the rooms are bound with blackboards built in the wall. A convenient desk and a good seat is provided for each pupil. In the basement are wash rooms, bonnet and cap rooms, a recitation room, separate rooms, yet to be furnished with gymnastic apparatus, and a long run of the softest sand in each yard. The view from the building, always except to the west, where a sand bank obstructs it, is really charming. The varnish will scarcely be dry and furniture in place this week, for which reason school will not actually be opened until about Tuesday next."

The San Francisco High School then settled down to its task of training scholars without any eventful happenings until June of 1864. In that month the girls were separated to another school, an old brick building at Bush and Stockton Streets. Principal Holmes was transferred to the girls' school and G. W. Mimms was elevated to the position of principal of San Francisco High School, which soon after took the name of Boys' High School.

Up until 1868, when the University of California was established, little thought was given to the high school as a training ground for university studies, although several of the students had continued their education by going East for college work. Instead the school had been considered as a final preparation for life.

Boys' High School after it had been enlarged in 1889 to take care of the increased enrollment.

Principal Mimms served only one year before returning to his previous home in Massachusetts. He had been held somewhat in awe by the students because of his personal acquaintance with the great literary figures of the day. He had attended Harvard with James Russell Lowell and had Oliver Wendell Holmes for a professor. Hawthorne, Emerson, Thoreau, and the Alcotts were numbered among his friends. Theodore Bradley, a mathematics instructor at Boys' High, was made principal of the school.

William T. Reid took over the principalship in 1875 and served in that capacity until 1881 when he resigned to accept the position of president of the University of California. Shortly after Mr. Reid started his principalship, the Boys' High School moved to a new location. In January of 1876 the school moved into a new three story structure on Sutter Street between Gough and Octavia. The new site covered all of a 50 vara lot, twice the space occupied by the Powell Street building.

Another change during the Reid period was a division of the curriculum into a Classical Course and an English Course. Frederick H. Clark, later to be principal of Lowell High, was a student at this time. He described the course of study as follows:

"At this time the school was organized into two departments which might have been two separate schools so far as the daily life of the students was concerned. There were the English Department and the Classical Department, in each of which a rigid course of study was maintained for the three years. I enrolled in the English Department, but later, on my own accord, I sought the opportunity for training in Latin, and with the never-to-be-forgotten assistance of Mr. A. L. Mann, I carried on the study of Latin and Greek in addition to the regular studies of the English course.

"The basic studies in the English course were mathematics, science (physics first and chemistry second, biological science being unknown), ancient, European, and English history, and either French or German. Our course in English literature was mainly limited to studying about authors; any broad acquaintance with their writings was left to our own initiative. United States History was considered a grammar school study. There was an option course in bookkeeping given after 2:30 o'clock, so that if you wished this course you remained for a later dismissal. Many did so.

"In the Classical Department, Latin for three years and Greek for two years replaced much of the science and all of the modern language work of the other department. Most of the students in the Classical Department were looking forward to the traditional Bachelor of Arts courses in college."

After the resignation of Mr. Reid, his brother-in-law, Francis A. Blackburn, who had been a Latin and Greek teacher in the high school, was elevated to the position of principal. He remained as principal until 1886 when he resigned to accept a professorship at the University of Chicago, which had just been established.

In one of his graduation addresses Mr. Clark mentioned an event that took place under Principal Blackburn:

"An important step in the relation of high school to the University was taken in 1884, when the University of California established the accrediting system. By this system, a graduate of an accredited high school was admitted to the University upon the principal's certificate. But the high school must be accredited. This meant very complete and rigorous investigation of the actual teaching procedure in the schools by members of the University faculty. As the University at that time maintained not merely one, but three, and later four, sets of requirements, the planning of studies in the high school became more complicated. The Boys' High School was one of the first three to be accredited."

(Up until this system was set up, it was not necessary to finish high school in order to get into the University of California. Numerous ambitious Boys' High students took the university examination before graduating from high school and in several cases even succeeded in gaining sophomore standing at once. Many of the brilliant Boys' High students are not listed in the class lists in this book because they were able to continue their higher education without waiting until graduation time.)

Following Mr. Blackburn's resignation, James K. Wilson, principal of the Lincoln Grammar School, was given the high school post. At this time the school was organized into three departments: Classical, Latin-Scientific, and English. It is also the period in which the high school starts to look upon college preparation as one of its principal functions. More and more students entered the school with their ultimate aim a college degree.

(During the next several years other secondary schools were established in San Francisco to take care of other needs than college preparation. In 1884 a Commercial High School was established. In 1894 its name was changed to Polytechnic High when manual training was added to the school program. The Commercial High School which later became Commerce High School opened in 1900. Cogswell Mission High operated from 1890 until 1892. It reopened in 1898 as Mission High School.

(No other high schools opened in San Francisco until 1921 when Galileo High started. In 1928 Balboa High School opened. The last two San Francisco high schools to be established were George Washington High in 1936 and Abraham Lincoln High in 1940.)

In 1888 Principal Wilson resigned from Boys' High to become president of a local bank. Frank Morton, a Latin teacher in the school was promoted to principal, a post he was to hold for 30 years.

A year before this, girls had been allowed to enroll at Boys' High School in order to take such college prep courses as Latin and Greek, which had been discontinued at Girls' High. Under the circumstances a move was started to give the school a title other than Boys' High. In 1894 the name of the distinguished poet, educator, and diplomat, James Russell Lowell, was substituted for Boys' High. Without any ceremony the new name, Lowell High School, appeared on the Sutter Street building.

In 1889 the high school had been enlarged to take care of the increased enrollment. However, the increase in size didn't enhance its beauty, according to John F. Swett, Lowell '97, recalling his impressions of the school:

"The building which reflected the spirit of the times in regard to school architecture, simply ignoring the aspect of a school, was painfully plain. We would call it a warehouse today. It had a frontage of about 100 feet on Sutter Street and extended north about 75 feet, with three stories, wooden throughout and no architectural adornment whatsoever.

"Grim and forbidding, it reached its gloomy, barn-like silhouette amid an otherwise rather attractive group of homes. A dingy front door, rarely used, stood at the head of a short flight of wooden steps which creaked painfully when visitors ventured upon them. The girls used a narrow side entrance on the west and the boys a passageway on the east leading to the school yard, a drab place, all floored over with rough boards, with sheds on the rear for protection from the rain. High board walls surrounded it as if to make any outlook or escape impossible.

"The exterior of the building was covered with rusty gray paint, darkened by the years, and I doubt if it ever had been repainted. It looked, when I entered in 1894, at least 50 years old although it had been used only 19 years. There were 12 classrooms, four to a floor. Desks were of pine, greyish brown in color, and much scarred by the jack knives of industrious students striving to leave to posterity the initials of their names, and some of these names became very famous. The desks were bolted to the floor and each had an ink-pot, as fountain pens were a rarity at that time. The blackboards which surrounded the rooms were gray rather than black and erasers were worn by a decade of use.

"The teachers' desks were small and plain with an opening in the middle, giving us an excellent view of the teacher's feet. One teacher, I recall, had unusually large ones and he had a girl in the class make a calico curtain to shield them from public view.

"There were no charts or maps and the walls were bare and unattractive. No flowers were ever seen in this gloomy building."

Mr. Swett was sure that the academic advantages by far outnumbered the physical ones.

During the Morton period the school took on many of the characteristics that mark the present day school. This was the era in which an interscholastic sports program came into being, extra-curricular clubs were recognized as part of school life, school publications began, and a new teacher-pupil relationship was established. Regarding the latter, former principal Clark recalled:

"Under Mr. Morton, the general methods of discipline were transformed. The old mechanical system of checks and demerits, of fixed penalties for petty offenses, was abandoned. Students were given to understand that they were expected to be responsible members of the community. If one's behavior proved that he could not be accepted on this basis, the case was taken up as a vital matter of personal character and reputation, and as far as possible the co-operation of the home was enlisted in the procedure toward improvement. Thus the school changed over from an institution of autocratic authority, manifested through set rules and formulas upon a theoretically passive body of pupils, to a 20th century co-operative community, the autocrats gradually replaced, and the student body growing into conscious activity."

The forerunner of the present ROTC made its appearance in the '80's. The organization, known as the Cadet Corps, was started by William C. Sharpstein (later to become a well-known San Francisco attorney) in 1882. At first it was a volunteer company without uniforms or rifles. After joining the National Guard the State of California furnished the group with blue uniforms such as the Union infantry had worn in the Lowell's first championship football team of 1890-91 consisted of the following: Top row: Charles Mish, Marc Anthony, George Dwyer (later fullback and captain of the varsity at Cornell), Quinn, Miller, William Belcher, Thomas K. Code (later became one of Stanford's most famous quarterbacks), and Milton D. Grosh (played end for Stanford). Middle row: Max Rosenfeld, William R. Dorr, Guy Kennedy (quarterback on the first U.C. team to play Stanford), Herbert L. Gunn, and Robert M. Wilson. Reclining in front: Morton R. Gibbons. Civil War. The boys also received the old Springfield model rifles of that war with the long stocks and long bayonets at the end. In 1898 the Lowell Cadet Corps was mustered into the Spanish-American War along with other California Guardsmen, and quite a few of the boys saw service in the Philippines. The Cadets were disbanded after the Spanish-American War and did not become a school activity until November, 1915, when Major Joseph P. Norse, an instructor in history, Greek, and Latin reorganized an ROTC group at Lowell.

The athletic program was started in the 1890's. An informal football league was organized in 1890 between Hopkins Academy, Oakland High, Berkeley High, Alameda High, and Boys' High, with the latter taking the championship honors.

An intramural program was going strong at the high school in the fall of 1893 with the various classes competing in a variety of sports. The following year an organized Semi-Annual Inter-Class Field Day was held and became an established activity in the school.

Lowell began a formal, full-scale interschool program in 1894 when the school joined the newly organized Academic Athletic League. The A.A.L. included high schools from all over the Bay Area and held its first field day on October 20, 1894. Oakland and Lowell fought it out for the championship with Oakland coming out on top. Lowell was more successful in bicycle racing, winning the first league meet in 1896. League baseball also began that year with Lowell losing out in the finals. The football league was started in '97, but it was not until 1900 that the Lowell gridders, coached by Fielding H. "Hurry-Up" Yost, were able to annex their first A.A.L. football championship.

Physical education for the girls also became a reality, in the face of some strong opposition, during the '90's. Under the leadership of Miss Susan Kingsbury, arrangements were made with the Mission YMCA for Lowell girls to use that organization's facilities every Tuesday and Thursday after school and on Saturday mornings. Activities began in October, 1897, with basketball as the main sport along with some participation in tennis.

School clubs also became a recognized activity of the high school during the '90's. Probably the first group to receive this recognition was the Surveying Class. A group of boys taking the English Course in the Class of 1890 wanted to learn something about surveying, so they met as a group after school hours and worked on this activity along with their school work. The Lowell High Debating Society, which has continued down to the present day under the name of the Forensics Society, started in 1892 with Mr. F. H. Clark and Mr. E. A. Kellogg as the sponsors. Through the years this society has won more trophies and other honors than any activity at Lowell. Another early group was the Kappa Epsilon Club, organized in 1897 as the school's first literary and social club by the members of the Greek Class of '98.

The first school publication, The Lowell, made its appearance in January, 1898. It was a 32-page monthly publication containing literary efforts of the students, editorials, sports news, a society column, and general school news.

Lowell High School's musical organizations had their birth in 1902. The first school orchestra was formed that year. A Boys' Glee and finally a Girls' Glee Club were started in '04.

Student government at Lowell had its beginnings in 1898 when those students interested in athletics formed the Lowell High School Athletic Association. Representatives from all boys' sports and the girls' basketball team had regular meetings to try and unify the sports program. Any student in the school could join the association by paying dues of 10 cents a month.

In 1905 the athletic organization was disbanded and a new group, the Lowell High School Student Association, was formed with delegates from all school activities, including class representatives, as part of the board of directors. Since that date the students, with faculty guidance and supervision, have had the chief responsibility for extra-curricular activities.

The turn of the century also saw important changes in school routine. In 1899 graduation exercises became semi-annual with the first winter class graduating in December of that year. In 1901 the curriculum was changed to a four-year course of study. For that reason the Class of December, 1903, included only seven graduates. These students had decided that they wished to complete only the three-year course and were allowed to do so.

On April 18, 1906, the history of Lowell High School almost came to a conclusion when the city was rocked by an earthquake, followed by a fire that destroyed a huge portion of the city. Fortunately, the fire was halted at Van Ness Avenue and most of the Western Addition, including Lowell, escaped the flames. However, school activities came to a standstill. A great many of the students were homeless and either moved elsewhere or dropped out of school to cope with their family problem of establishing a new San Francisco home.

For a while the city government was forced to use the school for purposes other than schooling. Lowell became the police station of the area. As the June 1906, edition of The Lowell stated it, "Lowell discarded the sable robe of knowledge for the snowy draperies of justice and law. She threw open her 'classic halls' to the representatives of that goddess under whose dominion she was proud to serve. The principal's sanctum became the sanctum of him who captained the blue-clad guardians of the peace. In the classroom the judges dispensed justice to the trespasser of the law. Judge Mogan held court in Room 8—that room for the last year the shelter of the departing classes of June, 1906. Ought we not be proud that while her children were exiled from her walls the destiny of the city was insured by that preservation of its peace which emanated from old Lowell?"

Graduation exercises were a bit different in June of 1906, too. All of the grammar schools, the evening high school, and the day high schools held a joint commencement exercise at the Music Stand in Golden Gate Park. Instead of the long-awaited senior ball, which had been planned for the Palace Hotel, the class held a picnic over in Marin County with some of the members of the class including a hike to the top of Mt. Tamalpais.

Since 1900 the school's facilities have been taxed to their utmost with over-crowded classes being the rule. Finally a bond issue for a new Lowell was authorized in 1904. However, it was an unsuccessful attempt. In 1908 another bond issue was placed before the voters, and this time funds were made available for the new high school. As yet the location for a new school had not been decided. When the movement for the new school first got underway, the proposed site was LaFayette Square. At the time of the bond issue, the understanding was that the new school would be located on Octavia Street between Sutter and Bush. The city architect then went ahead with plans to build at Gough and Washington. There was a strong movement, headed by the faculty, to locate the school near Bush and Hyde Streets. An entire city block was available on Hayes Street, between Ashbury and Masonic, so this is where the school was finally located.

The present Lowell High School opened its doors in January of 1913, and the school was formally dedicated and the cornerstone laid on February 22, which is the birthday of James Russell Lowell as well as that of George Washington. Under the cornerstone were placed twenty-one documents concerning Lowell High including class lists and curriculum information. Superintendent of Schools Alfred Roncovieri made the principal address. He said, in part, "It belongs to schools like Lowell to cultivate a communal idealism, which will lift our city above merely sordid attainments and encourage it to center its desires upon a higher, richer value of life." Another impressive talk was given by Dr. Barbara Nachtrieb, representing the faculty, on the significance and the ideals of Lowell.

After moving into their new building, Lowellites were pleased to discover that it contained a cafeteria, the first school cafeteria established in San Francisco. The caf', which was located at the front of the building on the basement floor, opened on January 6. The staff had made preparations to handle 200 students, but before the lunch period was over, 400 pupils had taken advantage of the opportunity to buy a good inexpensive lunch right at school (average cost was 15 cents for boys and 11 cents for girls). Certain business organizations throughout the city expressed concern over the school's new commercial endeavor, and the North of Panhandle Improvement Club screamed, "Undemocratic" and "Unfair competition" when the school opened an ice cream, soda water, and candy counter in August of 1913. Mayor James Rolph was called upon to investigate the dispute, and after inspecting the Lowell facilities and talking with improvement club members, satisfied everyone by declaring the cafeteria planned no further expansion and that it was a worthwhile new addition to the school system. Since then the school cafeteria has become an accepted part of schools at all levels in all parts of the country.

The students quickly adjusted themselves in their new building, and the academic and activities program that had been carried on in the Sutter Street school continued to function and expand. The year 1915 saw increased interest in a new gadget called a radio. This brought about the organization of a Radio Club to challenge the popularity of the Reading Club, the Glee Club, and the Debating Club. In this same year The Lowell changed from a monthly magazine to a bi-weekly newspaper, in which form it has continued to the present day. The athletic program was expanding too, with the introduction of a rowing team and inter-class competition in swimming and tennis. And, when Lowellites were not busy with school, there was always the Pan-Pacific Exposition out in the Marina District with its multitude of wonderful events.

A hazing incident in 1916 almost ended all student rule at Lowell. On January 18 of that year the Board of Education passed a ruling abolishing all student control of activities and forbidding the collection of any student dues. This action, which meant the end of athletics, the school orchestra, and all school clubs, was appealed by the students who received strong support from alumni and Mayor Rolph. A few days later, the Board of Education advanced the necessary money to continue the athletic program, and a short while later granted permission for the school to continue an activities program. Other major events of that year were the organization of an ROTC program which has continued to the present time, the beginning of a campaign for the construction of a new auditorium, and the transfer of Frederick Clark to the principalship of Mission High School. Francis Crofts, an instructor at Lowell since 1891, was elevated to Mr. Clark's former role of vice principal.

School activities during 1917 and 1918 became of secondary importance after the outbreak of World War I. Many of the boys left school to volunteer for some branch of the service and joined the 600 members of the Lowell alumni who were already in the armed forces. Other students became active in Red Cross work, basket campaigns, paper drives, sweater knitting groups, and food conservation programs. During one campaign for the Red Cross and Belgium Relief, Lowell students raised a total of $5,140. An influenza epidemic was a further complication in 1918, forcing the school to close down for a six-week period. Following the Armistice, the Thrift Stamp Drive continued for awhile with $22,689.28 in stamps being sold in the final effort.

Mr. Morton resigned the principalship in 1911 after serving the school in that capacity since 1888. Mr. Clark, a former Lowell student, history teacher, and vice principal of the school between 1888 and 1911, was recalled from Mission High to become the new Lowell principal. Another administrative change took place in the following year with the creation of a new position, that of dean of girls. Miss Eugenie Lacoste, who had been a teacher at Mission under Mr. Clark, was given the assignment. Miss Lacoste served in this capacity until 1946, during which time she supervised the collection of student body and class dues and acted as sponsor of the Shield and L along with her other duties. As arbiter of dress and morals for the girls, Miss Lacoste faced two minor rebellions during the 1920's. On February 7, 1925, she decreed that no make-up would be worn in school, including lipstick. Every morning the unhappy girls would pause a block away from school to remove all traces of make-up. Each day there would be another pause after leaving the school grounds while the girls repainted their faces. In August of 1928 a number of girls were sent home for coming to school barelegged, with instructions to return "properly dressed." Long white or black stockings were the accepted attire of the period. One girl cited a ruling of Attorney General Webb, who had ruled in a similar dispute. "Short stockings could be worn as long as their legs are clean," she challenged. Miss Lacoste informed the young lady, as she sent her on her way home, "Mr. Webb is not running Lowell High."

Parents too, had some difficulty with the Lowell administration during the "twenties." On February 24, 1921, a group of mothers, who had been meeting in private homes, petitioned Principal Clark for recognition. He refused to sanction a Lowell Mothers Club, as he could see no need for such an organization. However, he finally relented and gave his official blessings to the group in May of the same year. First PTA officers were Mrs. Harriet H. Somers, president; Mrs. Carl Geilfus, vice president; Mrs. William Weichart, secretary; Mrs. Edmund Bath, treasurer; Mrs. C. Tietjen, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. H. L. Lobb, financial secretary. The group affiliated with the San Francisco Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations in 1924 with 59 parents and teachers enrolled as charter members. First Lowell president under the charter was Mrs. F. W. Bradley. Since that time the PTA has been one of Lowell's most active and generous organizations. Gifts to the student body from the PTA, in just the past few years, include money for library books and scholarships, a tape recorder, a piano, uniforms for the band, football blankets, and an electrical score board for the gym.

Another Lowell activity, Gift Day, had its start in 1921 and was a popular event for a number of years. A group of students decided to observe Lowell's birthday each year by making some improvement to the school. The initial project was a major overhaul. It included digging up the entire court and yard so that these areas could be used for athletic events, dancing, and other activities. The low seniors bought a new fence. The juniors bought bricks for a border around the court. The sophomores bought basketball goals, and the freshmen contributed money to buy tools. The senior boys gave up their summer vacation to do the construction and resurfacing work with the senior girls providing the moral support and lunches every day for the workers. John McLaren, creator of Golden Gate Park, aided the project by giving the school several hundred plants and shrubs for the court and having his gardeners plant them.

The athletic program underwent a major change in 1921 when American football replaced rugby in the high schools. From that time football has managed to keep its ranking as the most popular school sport. In 1922 the girls' athletic program received two additions with the organization of a girls' crew and a girls' rifle team. The latter activity lasted only a few years, but the ROTC boys became interested in a rifle team and have maintained one right up to the present.

A new course was added to the school curriculum in 1923 when dramatics was offered as a regular course with Mrs. Mary McDonald as the instructor. The following year Mr. Samuel Polland took over the dramatics department and is still serving in that capacity. Previous to this time the school plays had been produced under the sponsorship of the Reading Club as an all-student activity.

Publications also underwent a reorganization in 1923. Up until this time the staff of The Lowell had published a special edition in magazine form every six months to serve the dual purpose of school yearbook and literary magazine. After this, The Lowell staff published only regular editions of the school newspaper, and a separate staff was organized to publish the annual. The yearbook also received a new name, The Red and White, and eliminated the literary section of the book.

Lowell High School had barely finished celebrating its tenth anniversary at the Hayes Street location when the first cries for a "new Lowell" were raised. It was pretty generally agreed that the present site was not adequate to properly perform the functions of a modern high school. The plant contained an auditorium that could barely seat 25 per cent of the student body, no library, inadequate classroom and office space, and no room for the construction of an athletic plant.

A Board of Education announcement that a new high school was to be constructed at 18th and Anza and named Park-Presidio High School, and which would eventually take the place of Lowell, brought hundreds of protests from Lowell students and alumni. An alumni group organized for the purpose of pushing the Ewing Field site, on Masonic near Geary, as the logical spot for a new Lowell. In 1925 the PTA added their support to the alumni and organized a Lowell High School site and building committee to further this plan. Several sessions between the Lowell PTA and the Board of Education brought forth the announcement by Superintendent of Schools Joseph M. Gwinn that the Lowell High School would be constructed between 30th and 32nd Avenue from Geary to Balboa streets. This building was to be completed in 1929, at which time the present Lowell building was to be converted into a junior high school. By March of 1927 these plans had been tabled and Lowell's PTA was again petitioning the Board of Education for a new school site. At one of the PTA meetings, 600 persons signed a petition requesting the Board to reconsider Ewing Field as the home of a new Lowell.

When the Ewing Field site was no longer available the alumni and PTA groups started a search for another possible location. In November of 1934 the Lowell PTA, headed by Mrs. Joseph Garry and Thomas D. Aitken, urged the Board of Education to consider the cemetery site between Turk and Geary and Arguello and Parker for a new Lowell. In describing the present Lowell cafeteria and gyms, the committee used the term "regular dungeons" and pointed out that the school had six showers for girls and six for boys and an enrollment of 2300 students.

During the next several years, badly needed school construction in the outlying districts prevented the Board of Education from giving any further consideration to a new Lowell building. The question was revived in 1944 when the Board authorized the Superintendent of Schools to locate a new Lowell site, with the Laurel Hill Cemetery as a suggested area. On June 5, 1945, the Board authorized purchase of a new $1,250,000 Lowell. But, once again funds were needed elsewhere and no new Lowell was constructed.

The current drive for a new Lowell High School, on school property located near Lake Merced, was accelerated in 1953. At that time a petition containing 8,651 signatures was presented to the Board asking for the above mentioned site for a new Lowell which would be a four-year, non-districted, academic institution. In 1955 the Committee for a new Lowell, under the leadership of Judge John B. Molinari and J. Maxwell Moore, expanded into the Lowell Centennial Committee in order to make plans for celebrating the school's one hundredth birthday, along with keeping the movement for a new Lowell as a live issue.

While the alumni and PTA of 1924 and '25 were concerned with future improvements, the students were making the most of the available facilities. Along with establishing a fine academic record during the school year, the students were capturing a total of 13 championships in city-wide athletic competition. Other activities to occupy the students' time were the Debating Society, the Frank Norris Club, the Chemistry Club, the Biology Club, the Chess and checkers Club, the Music Club, the Radio Club, the Art Club, the Stamp Club, the Sea Scouts, the Camera Club, the Officers and Sergeants Club, and the Spanish Club. With a few exceptions, these clubs have continued their activities up to the present time.

Old time Lowellites were saddened in 1929 when the old Sutter Street Lowell-Boys' High School was torn down. The Board of Education had been using it as a warehouse, but obtained other storage space when the building was condemned as a fire hazard.

The following year the current Lowellites were saddened by the news that Principal Clark was retiring. He was replaced by Francis Crofts, who had been associated with Lowell for the previous 39 years. Mr. Crofts had come to Lowell in 1891 as a professor of mathematics, made the head of the department in 1901, and vice principal in 1916. From the time of the resignation of Principal Morton in 1918 until the appointment of Mr. Clark in 1919, he served as acting principal of the school.

The four years in which Mr. Crofts served the school were filled with activity. First event was the establishment of a library in 1931. In February of that year the partitions between Rooms 204, 205, and 206 were torn out and the area transformed into a library. The library opened on October 31, 1931, with Miss Elizabeth Scott as librarian, and a collection of 3400 books. During the summer bungalows were built in the northwest corner of the school to replace the classroom space taken up by the new library.

Even with the new bungalow classrooms, Lowell had reached the point where it could no longer handle the 2300 students enrolled. So in the fall of the next year it was necessary to send all members of the freshman class to the nearby Denman School for classes. During the following year some of the sophomores, as well as the freshmen, did their studying at Denman.

During 1934 all of the Lowell students were removed from the Hayes Street building. A series of earthquakes in Southern California had caused serious damage to schools in that area and alerted the people of San Francisco to the need for earthquake-proof schools. On January 2, 1934, work was started on Lowell High and 2500 Lowellites were sent to Galileo for an indefinite period. The Galileo students attended school during the morning hours and the Lowell students were there in the afternoon. This meant that the building was rarely available for many extra activities.

On November 1, 1934, while the construction work was in progress, an $80,000 fire swept through Lowell and almost brought the school's history to an abrupt end. However, firemen were able to get the blaze, which broke out in the upper floors of the school, under control and save the school. At first arson was suspected, but it was later established that the fire was due to accidental causes.

Because of delays caused by the fire, the Lowell students were still at Galileo in June of 1935 when they were supposed to vacate. Even though Lowell was not ready for use, the students had to leave Galileo as the facilities there were needed to accommodate students from San Francisco Junior College who were waiting to occupy their new building. So in the fall of '35 the Lowell students were sent to another high school. This time arch-rival Poly was the new host, and the same half-day session situation continued. In December the information was received at Polytechnic that Lowell's plant would be ready the following month. This was the signal for classes to break up and all of the Lowell students to serpentine their way through the classrooms in celebration of the fact that they were finally returning to their own little red schoolhouse.

When Lowell opened its doors in January 6, 1936, a new principal was in charge. Leroy H. Stephens, who had been at Lowell since 1909 as an instructor in history and vice principal, was named to succeed the retiring Mr. Crofts. Hudson Monroe became the new vice principal.

At this time another new organization, the Boys' Block L Society, was formed. Its initial reason for coming into being was for the members to serve as traffic boys before and after school. Biggest event of the year, though, was the announcement that $150,000 was now available for a new boys' gym. Construction started shortly after that and the gym, located in the northeast corner of the schoolgrounds, was opened and dedicated on November 6, 1938.

Another new Lowell tradition was established in 1938 when the first performance of the Varieties was presented. Since then this popular variety show has been a highlight of every fall semester.

Numerous faculty and students were sporting beards when the spring '39 semester opened. The reason was that males all over San Francisco were growing beards as part of the celebration in connection with the opening of the San Francisco World Fair on Treasure Island, which turned out to be a good place to locate any Lowellite during the next two years.

War clouds were on the horizon in 1941 with most of the boys being more concerned about the draft than the excitement of graduation. On December 8, 1941, the school was practically deserted as most students stayed home from school to listen to President Roosevelt's declaration of war. Shortly after, the school was a beehive of activity as everyone plunged into some phase of the war effort. The armory became a first aid station and most students enrolled in Red Cross courses of some type.

Many of the boys started investigating their chances of joining some branch of the armed forces, while the girls joined the American Women's Volunteer Service and other groups aiding the war work. In 1942, 50 Lowell girls, under the supervision of Mrs. Myra Jordan and Miss Ruth Adams, dashed over to Pleasanton to harvest 200 tons of tomatoes that were about to spoil due to the shortage of manpower. The following year another group of Lowell girls went to Vacaville to work the pear and peach crops. During the fall of that year, Lowell students gave 3300 pints of blood to the armed services, and just about every boy in the 1943 class "graduated" right into some military organization. Biggest project of the school was to buy enough war bonds to pay for a flying fortress. Before the end of 1944, the sale at school had passed the $1,000,000 mark and a flying fortress named The Lowell Indian was heading for Germany.

As World War II was drawing to a successful conclusion, interest in the new world organization which was to be organized in San Francisco ran high. Lowell students were privileged to be in on the formation of this important event as a number of Lowellites took part as interpreters and guides for foreign visitors, and as messengers and ushers at the Opera House where the events took place.

LOWELL-POLY CHAMPIONSHIP BASEBALL GAME OF MAY 13, 1919
Principal Francis E. Crofts throws out first ball at championship game against Poly on May 13, 1919 at Ewing Field. We lost!

By 1946, the school was once more on a peacetime basis, and grades, proms, and football games were again the main topics of conversation. In this year, Miss Lacoste, the school's first dean of girls, retired, and Miss Gladys Lorigan, a former Lowell student, was transferred from Galileo to Lowell to assume the duties of vice principal and dean of girls.

Another administrative change took place in 1948 with the retirement of Mr. Stephens. Joseph Hill, who had been the vice principal at the High School of Commerce, became Lowell's eleventh principal. Two years later Mr. Hill was transferred to Lincoln High School and Miss Edith Pence, who had been principal of Annex to main building built in 1931 after three classrooms had been made into a library.

Girls' High School, became Lowell's chief administrator. Miss Pence became the second Lowell graduate to take over the principalship of the school and the first woman to be appointed principal of a coeducational public high school in San Francisco.

The outbreak of the Korean War in 1951 caused international news to once more overshadow school events and again give the boys some concern about their draft status. A brighter note at this time was the birth of the annual prep football pageant which has continued to the present time as the first major event of the fall semester for all San Francisco high schools.

Hudson Monroe, vice principal and dean of boys since 1934, ended his long period of service to Lowell by resigning his position due to ill health. Head Counselor Henry Karpenstein took over the duties of acting dean of boys until the following year when Melvin Peterson was appointed to the position. He had been a vice principal at Balboa and Lincoln before taking over the post at Lowell. He had also taught mathematics and science at Lowell in 1936 before entering the administrative field.

Two highlights of 1952 at Lowell were the repainting of the school's interior and the introduction of the "quick snack" period. The paint job was completed during the summer and students returned in the fall to be greeted by pastel shades of pink and green School gym was built in 1938 at cost of $110,000.

TRAFFIC PATROL S'41

The boys of the traffic control at Lowell in 1941 were under the fine training of Mr. Walsh and Mr. Johnston. Leading the boys is Kaj Blomquist.

throughout the entire building. The "quick snack," which is a 10 minute break every morning between periods, has continued to the present time as a popular part of the school day.

Another administrative change took place in 1954 when Mr. Peterson was appointed principal of Polytechnic and Dr. Alden Smith, who had formerly taught at Lincoln High and San Francisco City College, took over the duties of dean of boys.

The final administrative change to date took place last year with the announcement of the retirement of Miss Pence. Lowell's current principal, Mr. Perino, took over the principalship after having been at Washington High as vice principal since 1950. He arrived just in time to get caught in the whirl of activity which has been going on at Lowell since September of 1953 in preparation for the celebrating of the Lowell centennial year.

Former students and faculty members have left the school a rich heritage. They have accepted the change in educational ideas and concepts that had to come about if progress in education was to be made. At the same time they have retained fine traditions of good scholarship, good citizenship, and good school spirit—qualities that need not be altered in the name of progress. Future generations of Lowellites can have no finer objective than to make the next one hundred years of the school's history as noteworthy as the first.

WAR BOND RALLY IN LOWELL COURT

The Court Rallies in 1942 and 1943, such as this one, were not to generate spirit for a sporting event, but to stimulate the War Bond sale. Over $1,000,000 in bonds were sold by students during the drive.

A Salute to the Alumni

Lowellites have made an extremely fine record of achievement in the fields of business, the arts, literature, medicine, law, education, public service, military service, science, and entertainment during the past century. The following section of the book is a salute to these men and women.

Space does not permit us to enumerate all of the graduates who have achieved some success in these endeavors; it would mean listing almost all of the thousands of students who have attended the school throughout the years. However, we have tried to give you a glimpse at some of the more prominent personalities, plus a general cross section to show the school's fine representation in all fields.

Lowellites Give Public Service

Hundreds of graduates of Lowell have chosen some phase of public service for a career and have established fine records of accomplishment at the national, state, and local levels.

The cabinet of President Woodrow Wilson included Franklin K. Lane, Boys' High '82, as Secretary of the Interior. While holding this position, he induced one of his former classmates, Stephen Mather, '83, to come to work for his department. Mather became Director of National Parks and more than any other person is responsible for the fine national park system in the United States today. The complete story of his work in conservation is told in the book, Steve Mather and the National Parks by Robert Shankland.

Attorney General of California Edmund Brown was a member of the Class of 1923.

Kahn in 1899. Upon his death, she served out his term of office and was reelected to Congress for two more terms. Another member of the Lowell faculty, C. C. Young, later became governor of California.

Numerous former graduates have chosen the judicial branch of the federal government for their careers. This group includes Federal Judge William Denman, '89; Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman, '09; Federal Judge Henry A. Hollzer, '98; and Federal Judge James Partridge, '88.

Lowellites have also gained prominence in state affairs. The incumbent Attorney General of California is Edmund "Pat" Brown who graduated from Lowell in 1923. He is now serving his second term after being re-elected in 1954. He received a total vote of 3,537,594, the largest vote cast for any candidate in the general election.

Henry C. Vensano, '99, is a former San Francisco Director of Public Works, dam contractor and designer.

Prominent members of the judiciary who attended Lowell include Federal Judge Louis E. Goodman, '09, Superior Court Judge John B. Molinari, '27, and Federal Judge William Denman, '89.

Other former Lowellites to hold important state offices include William Martin Abbott, '90, former chief deputy to the attorney general; Frank M. Angellotti, '79, former Chief Justice of the California Supreme Court; Milton B. Badt, '02, judge in the Nevada State courts; Frank Graham Finlayson, '82, California Supreme Court Justice; Edgar C. Levy, '99, speaker in the State Assembly; Milton Marks, who served both as a city supervisor and member of the state assembly; M. C. Sloss, '86, California Supreme Court Justice; and James J. Sullivan, '19, who has served as a state assemblyman and superior court judge.

Almost every important city office has been filled by a former Lowellite at one time or another. Boys' High graduate Eugene Schmitz was mayor of the city during the 1906 earthquake and fire. The city's current Chief Administrative Officer, Tom Brooks, attended Lowell in 1900. Alfred Roncovieri, '76, served San Francisco as a Supervisor and later as Superintendent of Schools.

The following men have served in the city's judicial branch: Judge Alden Ames, '02; Judge Fletcher A. Cutler, '82; Judge Walter P. Johnson; Judge I. L. Harris, '88; Judge Sylvain J. Lazarus, '93; Judge Maxwell McNutt, '91; Judge John B. Molinari, '27; Judge Harold Stanley Shaffer, '98; Judge Homer R. Silner; Judge William F. Traverso, '12; Judge John J. Van Nostrand, '92; Judge Ernest Wagner, '24; and Judge Harold Wollenberg.

The following graduates have filled other important city positions: Harold Boyd, '07, Controller; Robert A. Coulte, Captain in the Police Department; Charles Dullea, Chief of Police; Nelson A. Eckhart, '95, Chief Engineer and Manager of the S. F. Water Department;

Stephen T. Mather, '83, became Director of National Parks during the Wilson administration. He popularized the parks, made them America's playgrounds and earned the title of "father of the national park system."

A long list of Lowell graduates have given faithful service to the city of San Francisco as members of the Board of Supervisors. Former students on the present Board are Clarissa McMahon, Henry Rolph, and Francis McCarty.

Cameron King, '94, Registrar of Voters; James Joseph Phillips, '95, Director of Property; Harry C. Vensano, '99, Director of Public Works; Ralph Wiley, '07, Director of the Department of Electricity; and Assessor Russell Wolden.

Lowell has always been well represented on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors. At the present time four members are from Lowell. They are Mrs. Clarissa McMahon; Francis McCarty, '26; James J. Sullivan, '19; and Henry R. Rolph, '32.

Other recent members who served with distinction are Marvin Lewis, '24, who resigned from the Board to serve as the city's lobbyist in Washington, D.C.; Byron Mauzy, '79; and Jesse Coleman, '96, a former President of the Board.

Although he never held public office, Milton Esberg, '92, has a fine record of public service. He was one of the originators of the Community Chest, founder and director of the San Francisco Opera Company, and served a term as a member of the Board of Education.

Another former Lowellite, Tom Carroll, is now Director with the Ford Foundation. The field of religion is represented by the Reverend Harold Hitchcock Kelley, '03, Director of the Seamen's Church Institute of New York City; and Martin A. Meyer, '95, Rabbi at Temple Emanu-El.

Edward Turkington, '16, has rendered public service as a Director of the S. F. Chamber of Commerce and as a Police Commissioner. James J. Sullivan, '19, has served as a member of the city's Fire Commission.

Two other public spirited men were William Abbott, '90, who did an outstanding job while serving as Grand Exalted Ruler of Elks of the United States in 1920, and Warren Atherton, '08, who did some fine patriotic work as a National Commander of the American Legion.

James J. Sullivan, '19, has served San Francisco as a Fire Commissioner, and Ed Turkington, '16 (middle) is a former Police Commissioner. William Abbott, '90, (right) is a former Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks.

San Francisco's Chief Administrator Thomas E. Brooks, former Police Chief Charles Dullea, and Ralph W. Wiley, former Chief of the Department of Electricity were all Lowell students.

Russell Wolden, former Lowell student, has held the office of City Assessor since 1938.

Marvin Lewis, 1924, attorney, is a former member of the Board of Supervisors and has served San Francisco as the official lobbyist in Washington.

Tom Carroll, Director of the Ford Foundation Fund.

Cameron H. King, '94, retired from his position as Registrar of Voters for San Francisco in 1947. He had been active in city government for 47 years.

Joseph J. Phillips, '95, was the city's first Director of Property, a job created by the new city Charter in 1932.

Famed Biographer Irving Stone, '26.

Novelist Charles Norris, '99.
(Courtesy S.F. Call-Bulletin)

American literature is a great deal richer because of the contributions of a group of men and women who received their school education at Lowell and Boys' High. Included in this group are Dr. Peter Conmy, '20; Walter Le Leon, '02; Katherine Forbes, '23; Reuben Lucius Goldberg, '00; Howard J. Green, '10; Dr. Henry Hersh Hart, '03; Sam Hellman, '02; Frances Jolliffe, '89; Edgar Kahn, '21; Terry Kilpatrick, '40; Marty Links, '36; Frank Mandel, '00; Charles Norris, '99; Dr. Harry Overstreet, '94; Dr. Saxon Temple Pope, '95; Josiah Royce, '68; Winthrop Sergeant; Irving Stone, '26; and Sam Taylor.

Published works of Dr. Conmy include: History of the Entrance Requirements of the University of California, 1928; History of Public School Finance in California, 1937; Self Determination and Paris Peace Conference, 1941; Public School-Public Library Relationships, 1945; Studies in English Education During the Eighteenth Century, 1946; The Date of the Founding of San Francisco, 1947; A Centennial Evaluation of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, 1948; The Queen

Dr. Peter Conmy, '20, Chief Librarian, Oakland Public Libraries.

of the Avenue, the History of the St. Francis Church 1949.

Walter De Leon started his career as an actor and spent seven years in musical comedy productions, during which time he wrote the book and music for two successful plays. He then spent a period in which he wrote stories for the Saturday Evening Post, Red Book and other leading magazines. Since 1929 he has been writing screen plays. His more than 50 scripts have starred Bing Crosby, Paulette Goddard, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, and other top Hollywood actors.

Katherine Forbes' stories include A Fool's Hell, Running of the Tide, Transfer Point, and Mama's Bank Account, (which has been produced as a play, as a movie, and as a television serial under the title of I Remember Mama).

Among Sam Hellman's notable works are Lowell Bridge, 1924; Toll Bridge, 1930; plus numerous stories for the Saturday Evening Post and Red Book.

Author-Playwright Katherine Forbes, '23.

the first of his many screen stories was Little Miss Marker, for Shirley Temple, and several stories for Will Rogers.

Samuel Taylor is best known for The Happy Time, 1950, (which has been successfully produced as a Broadway play, and later as a motion picture).

Irving Stone's best known novels are Pageant of Youth, 1933; Lust for Life, 1934 (life of Van Gogh); Sailor on Horseback, 1938; (life of Jack London); False Witness, 1940; Clarence Darrow for the Defense, 1941; They Also Ran, 1943; Immortal Wife, 1944 (life of Jessie B. Fremont); Adversary in the House, 1947 (life of Eugene V. Debs); Earl Warren, 1948; The Passionate Journey, 1949 (life of John F. Kennedy); We Speak for Ourselves, 1950 (self-portrait of an American); The President's Lady, 1951 (life of Rachel Jackson).

The principal works of Charles Norris: The Amateur, 1915; Salt, 1917; Brass, 1921; The Last of the Philistines, 1922; Bread, 1923; Pig Iron, 1925; Zelda Marsh, 1927; A Guest of Robin Hood, 1929; Seed, 1930; Zest, 1933; Hands, 1935; Ivanhoe, 1936; Bricks Without Straw, 1938; In the Reign of the Grand Monarch (written at ten years).

Dr. Hart's books deal chiefly with the literature and culture of China. His story of the life of Marco Polo is considered the most authoritative account of this interesting historical figure.

Dr. Pope became interested in writing following a big game trip to Africa in which he did most of his hunting with a bow and arrow. His books are A Medical History of the Ishi, A Study of Bows and Arrows, The Adventurous Bowman, and Hunting With Bow and Arrow.

Some of Dr. Harry Overstreet's published books are Influencing Human Behavior, 1925; About Ourselves—Psychology for Normal People, 1927; The Enduring Quest, 1931; We Move in New Directions, 1933; A Guide to Civilized Leisure, 1934; A Declaration of Interdependence, 1937; Town Meeting Comes to Town, 1938; Let Me Think, 1939; Leaders For Adult Education, 1940; Our Free Minds, 1941; The Mature Mind, 1949; Where Children Come First, Critic Frances Jelliffe, '96.

Philosopher Josiah Royce, '68.

1949; The Great Enterprise—Relating Ourselves to the World, 1952.

Some of Josiah Royce's best known books are The Religious Aspect of Philosophy, 1885; The Spirit of Modern Philosophy, 1892; The Fend of Oakfield Creek, 1887; Studies of Good Will and Evil, 1898; A Study of American Character, 1886; The World and the Individual, 1900-1901; The Philosophy of Loyalty, 1908; The Problem of Christianity, 1913; The Hope of the Great Community, 1916; Lectures on Modern Idealism, 1919; and Fugitive Essays, 1920.

Rube Goldberg's chief claim to fame is his work as a cartoonist. He started in this capacity with the San Francisco Chronicle and San Francisco Bulletin, then went on to gain national recognition while working for the New York Evening Mail. However, he has also authored several books, the best known being Soup to Nuts and Is There A Doctor In The House?

Marty Links is another Lowellite who has become an author via the cartoon route. Her Bobby Sox, one of today's most beloved comic strips, is also available in book form.

Howard Green started his career writing skits for vaudeville and musical revues. In 1941 he wrote a play called Beverly Hills, which played on Broadway in New York.

Frances Jolliffe began her career as a very promising actress on Broadway, but later gave up her stage work to become one of the country's leading dramatic critics. She was also one of the leaders in the women's suffrage movement.

Edgar Kahn, a prominent San Francisco businessman, is best known in literature for his Cable Car Days in San Francisco, a charming story of San Francisco in the latter part of the nineteenth century.

Patsy Spears is following a dancing career and was State Champion baton twirler while at Lowell. . . . Patty Prichard is now singing star of her own TV program. . . . Blanche Bates, '88, is considered one of America's leading actresses.

Graduates Gain Fame in the Arts

Lowellites have been successful in just about every branch of the arts and the entertainment world. Some graduates who have gone on to fame on the legitimate stage include Blanche Bates, '88; Holbrook Blinn, '90; Carol Channing, '39; William Gaxton, '08; Theodore Roberts, '81; Robert Warwick; and Don Peters, '39.

Blanche Bates is considered one of the greatest actresses that America has produced. For more than 30 years she was a top Broadway star, scoring in both comedy and drama. Some of her most memorable performances were as Cigarette in Under Two Flags, Cho Cho San, in Madame Butterfly; the girl in The Girl of the Golden West; and Yo San, in Darling of the Gods. Taming of the Shrew, School for Scandal, and The Three Musketeers were some of her other hits.

Holbrook Blinn was one of the brightest stars of his day with several London successes to his credit which give him an international reputation. Some of his greatest Broadway roles were as Marc Anthony, in Julius Caesar, Wing Shee, in The Cat and the Chameleon, and Pancho Lopez, in The Bad Man. He was the producer as well as the star for a long run of Molnar's The Play's the Thing.

Carol Channing is the latest Lowellite to become the "toast of Broadway." Her first New York stage appearance was in 1948 in a supporting role in the musical, Lend an Ear. During this run she tried out for the lead in Gentlemen Prefer Blondes and got the part which brought her overnight success. Following a long run in this show, she appeared in The Vamp and Wonderful Town and is now in Hollywood doing movie work.

William Gaxton, who was known as Billy Gaxton while at Lowell, has starred in such stage successes as The Music Box Revue, Connecticut Yankee, Fifty Million Frenchmen, Of Thee I Sing, Anything Goes, and Louisiana Purchase. Some of his motion picture appearances have been in Best Foot Forward, Something to Shout About, and Diamond Horseshoe. The Bob Hamilton, '37, is the organizer of the Bob Hamilton Trio, and has starred on TV, the stage, and in night clubs.

Charles Stern, '51, is the leader of one of San Francisco's finest bands.

Robert Warwick is known for both his stage and screen work. Holbrook Blinn, '90, was one of Broadway's best known stars as well as a producer. William Gaxton, '08, has starred in stage and screen successes. (Call-Bulletin Photos) and in the Entertainment World

ore Roberts and Robert Warwick, who was known as Bob Bien at Lowell, are well known for both their stage and screen work. Roberts' most memorable portrayal was as Moses in The Ten Commandments, an early eMille epic.

One of Hollywood's finest directors is David Butler, class of 1915. After leaving Lowell, where he was the basketball and rugby teams, he headed for Hollywood and worked as a motion picture actor until 1927. Since then he has been directing, with five Will Rogers pictures, five Shirley Temple pictures, four Bob Hope, two Bing Crosby, and a couple of Hope-Crosby "Road" pictures to his credit.

Bob Hamilton, '37, is probably the school's most famous choreographer. For several years his "Bob Hamilton Trio" was a high spot on television's Show Shows. Since then he and his trio have been in great demand for television and night club work. Many other recent grads have been making a name for themselves in the dancing field. These include ballerinas

Christine Bering, Nancy and Virginia Johnson, and Jocelyn Vollmar, and TV performers Gloria Unti, Judith Job, and Patsy Spears. The latter was state champion baton twirler while at Lowell.

Other former students who have been successful in the field of radio and television as actors and announcers are Page Gilman, Sandy Spillman, Ernie Smith, Bruce Sedley, and Norman Craner. Patti Prichard, former student body vice president, is the singing star of her own TV program. William E. Goetze has gone into the administrative end of radio and is now general manager of Station KFSD, San Diego.

Numerous graduates have continued musical careers which were started here at school while members of the band or orchestra. Earl Bernard Murray, '42, the assistant conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, was a musician with the group at the age of 16. He was the youngest member ever to join the orchestra. In 1951, he was awarded the highest honor at Pierre Monteux's conducting class at Hancock,

Representatives From All Fields

Maine. He is the musical director of the San Francisco Ballet, and has appeared as guest conductor with many of the country's best known orchestras. Since 1953, he has been the director of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra's Youth Concerts.

Other graduates who continued on in the concert field as instrumentalists are Cellist James Arkatov, Flutist Jack May, Pianists Michael Lietweizen and Nancy Olsen, and Violinists Zena Blair, Kent Rose, Terry Vannin, and Madison Devlin, Jr.

Representing the field of popular music are Charles Stern, whose band has played for a number of school proms; Dave Van Kreidt, jazz composer; Jo Dodge, drummer; Steve Douglas, violin player with the Art Hickman band during the "ragtime" period; and Singer Ray Baldwin.

Representing the school in the field of architecture is Harvey Wiley Corbett of the Class of 1891. He gained national recognition in 1903 when he designed the Municipal Group of buildings in Springfield, Mass. He was awarded the Medal of Honor of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architecture in 1908 for his work in designing churches, hospitals, and other buildings. His best known accomplishment is developing Rockefeller Center, for which project he served as senior architect.

Adolf Schuman, '25, president of Lilli Ann Corporation, is one of the nation's noted dress designers. Reversing the usual trend, he was one of the first American designers to introduce this country's fashions to European markets.

James Leong is a worthy representative of Lowell in the field of painting. He has just completed a fine mural, showing 100 years of Chinese Living in the West, for a housing development in Chinatown. He was recently awarded a Fullbright Fellowship for 1956 and 1957 and will spend the period studying in Munich, Germany.

Noted photographers who have attended the school include Walter Scott, who all graduates since the turn of the century know as the man who takes the semi-annual senior court picture, and Joe Rosenthal, who won a Pulitzer Prize in photography for his famous shot of the United States Marines raising the American flag on Iwo Jima.

Kirk Simpson, a reporter for the Associated Press, is another Lowellite who has won a Pulitzer Prize. His award was in the field of journalism and was made for a tribute he had written to the "Unknown Soldier." The message has been inscribed in bronze on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery.

Winthrop Sergeant is best known for his religious articles in Life Magazine.

Norval Gillspie is another graduate who is gaining fame in the writing field. Many of his short stories have appeared in recent editions of Sunset Magazine.

All of San Francisco's major newspapers have reporters who have received their training at Lowell. Included in this group are Dick Pearce of The Examiner, Art Rosenbaum of The Chronicle, and Bill Burkhardt and Floyd Waters of the San Francisco News.

Many Lowellites have been successful in the magazine field. Albert L. Furth is the executive editor of Fortune magazine, and Leonard Agazelow holds an important editorial post with Argonaut Magazine. Pierre Salinger, who won several national writing awards for his exposes while working for the San Francisco Chronicle, is now writing for the Saturday Evening Post and other leading magazines.

Some Lowellites have attained fame and fortune in other lands. Included in this group is Hilario Camacho Moncado who left Lowell in 1918 and returned to his native Philippine Islands to become one of the country's leading political figures. He was founder of the Filipino Federation and an unsuccessful Presidential candidate in 1946. He liked to refer to himself as "six star general" and in 1948 it was estimated that he had a million men in his private army.

Mabel Gray, '90, is Lowell's answer to Grace Kellew. She, too, had a storybook romance which led to elevation to the rank of nobility. Shortly after leaving school she met and married Charles Pellew, an Englishman attending Columbia University. He was also the seventh Vicount Exmouth, which gave her the title of Vicountess. After the Vicount's death, she successfully managed and presided over his huge estate for many years.

Outstanding Business Leaders Among School's Graduates

Parker Maddux, '99, founder of the San Francisco Bank, and civic leader.

While there are successful Lowellites in every field of activity, it is the business and industrial field where the greatest numbers of former students have proved to be unusually successful. One may visit any of the city's largest stores, manufacturing plants, financial institutions, or other business and industrial establishments, and it is a good bet that key personnel of the organization are Lowell grads. Here is a cross section of the group:

- Star L. Bruce—Vice President of the Matson Navigation Co.
- Louis Bloch—Chairman of the Board of the Crown-Zellerbach Corp.
- Edward Bransten—President of the MJB Coffee Co.
- Samuel C. Buckbee—President of the Buckbee-Thorne Co.
- Joseph C. Boyd—Pres. of the Sutter Investment Co.
- James Barry—President of the Alabama Power Co.

Lowellite Wins Fame as Cartoonist

Marty Links graduated from Lowell in 1936 and immediately entered the field of commercial art. In 1940 she had her cartoons syndicated and now they can be seen in papers across the nation.

In private life Marty Links is the wife of Alex Arguello, a lawyer, whom she met when she was lost in the cavernous halls of Lowell on her first day there. "It was love at first sight," she says. Now she is the mother of two lively children.

The inspirations for the famous "Bobbysox" series are born in a pleasant studio in the back of the Arguellos' home. Often the names of friends are used in the cartoons, and Lowell pennants adorn the walls of the "typical teenagers' "rooms. When asked to do the cartoons on this page, Marty wanted to know what Lowell was like today. "Do they still gossip in the court at lunchtime?" she wanted to know.

Lowellites Enter Medical

Look through the list of graduates throughout the pages of this book and you will discover the names of some of the country's finest and most respected doctors and dentists. Even the first class, back in 1859, with only 11 graduates turned out a successful member of the medical profession. He was Henry Gibbons, Jr., who continued his education at the University of the Pacific, and then served in the Civil War as a medical officer with the Union troops from 1863 to 1865. He returned to San Francisco after the war and gained the reputation of being the city's leading obstetrician. He later served as San Francisco health officer.

Former Lowellites have served with distinction in all phases of the medical profession. Dr. Harry Blackfield, '20, has gained his fine reputation as a plastic surgeon. In the field of psychiatry there are Dr. Julian Wolfson, '00; Dr. Kathleen Stuart, '23; and Dr. William Kelley. The latter served as the psychiatrist at the Nuremberg Trials for the Nazi war criminals. Dr. Paul Castlehurn, '94, has served as Chief of the United States Reserve Hospital Unit. Dr. Stanley H. Mentzer has served as president of the San Francisco County Medical Society.

Dr. Leon Michels, '26, received a Bronze Star for his heroic deeds as a member of the medical corps in World War II.

Just about every Lowellite on the following list could be singled out for some important contribution to the medical or dental profession:

Scientists Among Graduates

Lowell High School can well be proud of the long list of scientific achievements of former students. Included in this group are two Nobel Prize winners, a pioneer in the field of aviation, and a chemist who has mastered the secret of making synthetic emeralds.

Albert Abraham Michelson, who graduated from Boys' High School in 1869, was the first American scholar to be awarded a Nobel Prize. He received the award in 1907 for his research on the velocity of light. From 1892 until his death in 1931 he was head of the physics department at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Joseph Erlanger became the second Boys' High School Nobel Prize winner when he received the award in 1945. His study of the individual nerve threads gained him the honor. Dr. Erlanger was to have graduated from Boys' High with the class of '92 but, like many of the students of that time, left before graduating and gained entrance to the University of California by taking an examination. He has received an M.D. from Johns Hopkins University and has served as head of the department of physiology at the University of Wisconsin and Washington University of St. Louis, Missouri.

While attending Lowell in 1899, Thomas E. Selfridge received an appointment to West Point. He graduated with honors in 1903, and, because of his scientific ability, was assigned to the Aeronautical Division of the Signal Corps. His initial assignment was to work with Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, who was experimenting with man-lifting kites. Dr. Bell described Lieutenant Selfridge as the most widely informed expert on dynamics of the air and mechanical flight and successful navigation of the air in America. On September 17, 1908, while making a test flight with Orville Wright, Selfridge was killed when the plane crashed. He became the first man in the United States to die in an airplane crash and has been memorialized by having Selfridge Field, a large Air Force field in Michigan, named in his honor.

While attending Lowell in 1930 Carroll Chatham read in his chemistry book that no one had succeeded in making synthetic emeralds, and decided that he would be the man to do so. Two years after his graduation, in June of 1933, he had succeeded. Today he is owner and operator of Chatham Research Laboratories, and calls himself the "Exclusive Producer of the Chatham Emerald, the Only Man-Made Emeralds Available in the World." At the last count he was making 5000 carats of cultured emeralds a month and was more than a million dollars behind in his orders. He has not hired anyone to help him make the emeralds in order to keep the process a secret.

Other former students who have been successful in the science field are Charles Auerbach '68, chemical engineer, who did research for Standard Oil; Charles S. Bartlett '98, engineer; Abel M. Benfield '86, engineer; Bernard Benfield '78, engineer and astronomer; George D. Blood '88, mining engineer; H. R. Bostwick, engineer; Philip Lee Bush '92, engineer.

George C. Chadwick '98, engineer; George Cummings '68, inventor of a portable forge; Marvin Curtis '88, chemist; Percy L. Davis '06, electrical engineer; Leonard Feldman '04, chief chemist, Bishop-Conklin Paint Co.; Samuel Lynde Foster '80, electrical engineer; Wendall Hammon '09 mining engineer; Sigmund Hess '95, mining engineer; C. Floyd Hirschfeld '98, engineer; Walter Holmes '00, engineer; James Kidd '00, engineer; Wolfgang Kummer '42, Bell Research Laboratory; Paul Legenbaum '97, electrical engineer; Morris H. Levy '03, civil engineer; Samuel Murray '98 engineer; Leonard Pockman '98 mining engineer; Haradan Pratt '09, vice president and director Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company; Sam Rooney '27, engineer; Max L. Rosenfeld '91, engineer; Norman Stines '00, mining engineer; Leslie W. Stocker '99, civil engineer; Charles Albert Weck '90, mining engineer; Bill Wehlau '44, astronomer; John Brooks Wheatly '98, aeronautical engineer.

Carroll Chatham, '33, is the discoverer of a method to make synthetic emeralds.

Dr. Joseph Erlanger, '92, was a Nobel Prize winner in 1945.

Thomas E. Selfridge, '99, was one of America's most promising young scientists when he was killed in an airplane crash with Orville Wright in 1903.

In the past 12 years, Lowell High School has compiled the best record of any high school in the West for the Annual Science Talent Search for Westinghouse Science Scholarships. All these boys have gone on in the science field. They are:

1944: Bill Wehlau received his Ph. D. in astronomy from the University of California, and is now engaged in research in Ontario, Canada.

1948: Melvin Look, who graduated in chemistry from the University of California in 1952, will receive his Ph. D. from Stanford this year and will do post graduate doctorate work at the Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley.

1949: Melvin Rubin and Richard Gross are attending U. C. Medical School. Gross is doing special work in biochemistry.

1950: Ernie Malamud, who graduated from U.C. with a degree in physics, is working for his Ph. D. at Cornell in the field of experimental physics. Eva Kalin is teaching at U.C. while she is working on her Ph. D. in mathematics.

1951: Angelo Cosmides is majoring in chemistry at U.C.

1952: Paul Fong, who graduated from U.C. in 1955 as the gold medal winner for scholastic achievement, is working for his Ph. D. at Harvard in the field of theoretical physics. John Hutchins is now a graduate student in physics at the University of California.

1953: Mike Gainey is studying engineering at Cornell. John Parks is studying engineering at Cal Tech.

1956: Peter Belmont has been the recipient of several scholarships which will allow him to continue his studies in science and mathematics.

Another recent graduate, Peter Wing-Kee Woo of the class of June, '51, is starting what should prove to be an outstanding career in the chemistry field. While a junior at Stanford University, he received an award as the outstanding member of his class in the field of chemistry. He graduated from the university last June with the following honors: Phi Beta Kappa gold key, American Institute of Chemists gold medal, and the Phi Lambda Upsilon gold key. He is now doing research at the University of Illinois under a research assistant fellowship.

Haraden Pratt, '09, was vice president and chief engineer for American Cable and Radio Corporation until he was selected chairman of the Radio Technical Planning Board for General Electric. He had the distinction of being one of the select group of scientists invited to view the Bikini atomic bomb tests.

Alexander F. Morrison, was founder of one of San Francisco's most prominent law firms. The Morrison Planetarium in Golden Gate Park was named in his honor.

Charles L. Tilden, '74, left the practice of law to enter business. He was president of the Overland Freight and Transfer Company for more than half a century.

Many Graduates Follow Law Career

A career in law has always attracted Lowellites in large numbers during the entire history of the school. For some of these graduates, passing the bar examination has been the stepping stone to other public careers such as in the case of Edmund Brown, '23, who gave up his law practice to become the District Attorney of San Francisco and the Attorney General of California. Listed elsewhere in this book are the many judges and other public officials who have combined their legal career with public service.

However, many graduates have remained in private practice and have had distinguished careers. A good example is Alexander F. Morrison, founder of one of San Francisco's most prominent law firms, Morrison, Foerster, Holloway, Schuman, and Clark. Two other Lowellites have been partners in this firm. They are Edward Hofeld, '93, now retired, and Roland C. Foerster, '10, still active in the firm. The Morrison Planetarium in Golden Gate Park is named in honor of Mr. Morrison. Money for this building was obtained from a trust fund established by his wife, May Treat Morrison, and administered by Mr. Hofeld.

An interesting combination of occupations belongs to Kenneth Zwerin, '26. Besides being a lawyer, he is also a Jewish Rabbi.

Another noted attorney, James G. Sullivan, '19, recently was appointed to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors.

Attorney Bert Levit, '20, barely finds time for private practice with all of his other interests. He is a member of the Board of Education, and has been Chief Deputy District Attorney, Deputy Attorney General

Oscar Sutro, besides being a prominent attorney, served as president of the Alumni for the University of California and was trustee of Mills College.

Along with his law practicing, Jefferson Peyser, '17, has also been active in politics. He has served as a member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, and as a member of the State Assembly.

Dr. Henry Hart, '03, was admitted to the bar in 1909 and served as Assistant City Attorney of San Francisco. Since then he has devoted most of his time in lecturing and writing about the Orient and is considered one of America's authorities on the subject.

Franklin D. Madison, '84, was one of the outstanding legal minds of his day. He served as legal counsel for the Bank of California, California Packing Corporation, California Cotton Mills, and other large corporations.

of California, a special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States, and president of the California Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Other graduates in the field of law:

William Abbott, '90; Alex Arguello, '36; Simon Anixter, '23; William Auslen, Jr.; Irving C. Ackerman, '01; Warren Atherton, '08; Thomas Aitken, '98; Edwin H. Andrews, '98; and Charles Adams, '84. The latter is given credit for having instituted Public Schools Week in California.

Wesley N. Hohfeld was one of many former Lowellites to win the Gold Medal at the University of California for graduating with highest honors from the university. He had a private law practice for a time which he gave up to accept the position of professor of Law at Yale University.

Warren Gregory, '83, was admitted to the Supreme Court of California in 1890 and the United States Supreme Court and all Federal Courts of the Ninth Circuit. He was also a member of the first State Board of Bar Examiners, co-worker of Herbert Hoover, District Board of Selective Service, and an outstanding jurist of California and the United States.

History of Lowell Park

Out of the Flag Day Exercises of the Jefferson-Lafayette Improvement Club held June 14, 1942, grew the Lowell Association, one of the school's most active alumni groups.

The Improvement Club had secured permission to improve the old Sutter Street Lowell site by making a little park in the area. Former Governor C. C. Young, who had been a teacher at the old school, was an invited guest at the exercises. He made a motion that the group of Lowell-Boys' High graduates, who were there, form an association. All of those present agreed that it was a good idea and the Lowell Association came into being with three primary objectives:

First: Plan for the enlargement of the present little Lowell Park to include all of the original school property and preserve the Park as a memorial to these schools which have earned the love and gratitude of so many people.

Second: Sponsor reunions and hold Flag Day exercises at noon on the Sunday nearest Flag Day upon the old school site.

Third: Gather data regarding the achievements of all of those who were associated with these schools and preserve the record of their deeds for the benefit of future generations of Lowellites.

The Lowell Association felt that they had accomplished their first purpose when the American Red Cross picked the site for its San Francisco headquarters. Most former Lowellites have a deep regard for the Red Cross and its work, and felt that the beautiful new Red Cross Building made a fitting memorial to another great institution that had occupied the same site.

A stone bench, in keeping with the decor of the building, reminds visitors that Lowell once stood on this site. Carved in the bench are these words:

The second purpose of the Association was carried out through yearly reunions between 1942 and 1950. Plans are now underway to have another reunion this year at the Red Cross Building.

The third objective of the Association was carried out through a quarterly magazine sent to all members. The staff of the Red and White is indebted to the Association for much of the historical information contained in this book, which otherwise could not have been obtained. The picture on this page shows the Lowell-Boys' High officers for the years 1947 and 1948. The photographs were obtained from the files of the association.

Adrien J. Falk, recently retired president of S&W Food Corporation, is one of many former Lowellites who has served on the Board of Education.

Robert Dodd, '96, long time president of Cogswell College, is still one of the most active members of the Lowell Alumni Association.

Alumni Prominent in Education

With "Superior Scholarship" as the school's most honored tradition, it is no wonder that hundreds of students through the years have been attracted to careers in education. Two of Lowell's twelve former principal's Miss Edith Pence and Frederick Clark, graduated from this school. Approximately one fourth of the present faculty are also former students, including Vice Principal Gladys Lorigan. Oother graduates are serving in almost every high school and grammar school throughout the city.

Lowell graduates have held important positions on the faculty of every major educational institution in the Bay Area. Monroe Deutsch, '86, was associated with the University of California for 48 years. For almost 25 of these years he held the position of vice president and provost of the university. His degrees include an A.B., M.A., PhD., and an LLD. He is author of a number of books including The Letter and the Spirit, written in 1943.

Other Lowellites who have been associated with the University of California include Professor William H. Christie, '82; Sydney M. Ehrman, '98, regent and professor of law; Maurice E. Harrison, '96, dean of Hastings Law School; Professor Lincoln Hutchinson, '82; George D. Louderbach, '92, dean of the College of Letters and Science; Professor Albert H. Mowbray, '98; Professor Barbara Nachtrieb, '07; Professor George O'Neill, '92; and Professor Lionel S. Schmitt.

Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt, who served as president of Mills College from 1916 until her retirement in 1943, was a graduate of the Class of 1894. A noted educator and lecturer, she held the degrees of B.L., LLD, LittD, and LHD. Among the Lowellites who have been on the Stanford faculty is Harriet Bradford, '11, who was dean of women at the Palo Alto university.

Some of the other graduates teaching at the college level are Professor Dwight Bentel, '27, San Jose State College; Professor Wesley N. Hokfeld, '97, Yale; President Robert Dodd, '96, Cogswell College; Professor Alfred Knoff, '94, Yale; Professor Alfred Lengfeld, '96, Chicago University; Professor Harry Overstreet, '94, New York University; Professor Melvin Rader, '20, Harvard University; Professor Louise Chinn Lim, University of Arizona; Professor Frank P. Buff, University of Rochester; and Fred Neustadter, M.I.T.

Some school principals who formerly attended Lowell include Miss Julia Coffey, '93, Daniel Webster and Emerson schools; Winn W. Davidson, '05; John Drew, '86, Humboldt Evening High; Dr. William Drew, '90, Mission High; and Frederick W. Koch, '96, Galileo High.

Lowell has always had a fine representation on the San Francisco Board of Education. Four out of the present seven members are Lowell graduates. They are Mrs. Clarence Coonan (Cora Kennedy); John

Dr. Aurelia Reinhardt, '94, served as president of Mills College for 27 years.

CHAS. C. TROWBRIDGE, JR., was president of the Lowell student body in 1917. He was also captain of the track team.

BERT LEVIT, '20, is a former president of the California Jr. Chamber of Commerce.

JOHN LEVISON, '20, combines his work on the Board of Education with running one of the West's largest binderies.

Levison, '20; Bert Levit, '20; and Charles C. Trowbridge, Jr., '17.

Former Board members include Philip Lee Bush, '92; C. Harold Caulfield, '96; and Adrien J. Falk, '97. The attorney for the Board is Irving Breyer, another former Lowellite.

It is interesting to note that many of the school's finest athletes decided to follow a career in education. In this group are four of the current members of the school's physical education department. Ray Milton, assistant varsity football coach, head junior varsity coach, and head of the social studies department, was one of the sparkplugs on the Lowell 1939 championship football team.

Barney Wolf, track and cross country team coach, is one of the school's all-time great track and field stars. He was also one of the mainstays of the University of California's track team. His Pacific Coast Conference discus record, set in 1940, was only recently broken.

Jim Livingstone, tennis and golf coach and a member of the English department, was an all-city tennis star at Lowell. Later he also won the Pacific Coast Doubles Championship as well as other honors in the sport.

Bob Anino, lightweight basketball coach and assistant track coach is another Lowellite.

Washington High School's head football coach, Chad Reade, all-city halfback while at Lowell in 1936, is another star who decided to go into the field of education. Roger Fanfelle, former Indian basketball ace, is now teaching and coaching at Mission High School. Irv Delman, baseball and football coach at Abraham Lincoln High, is another former Lowell athlete.

Two of Lowell's greatest basketball players, Howie Dallmar and Bob Feerick, are now associated with Stanford University and the University of Santa Clara respectively. As head basketball mentors for the two institutions, they face each other across the courts each year to fight it out for the basketball championship of the Peninsula.

Mrs. Ludwig Frank (Nan Bamberg, '03) has given service to education as Executive Secretary of the Public Education Society.

Dr. William Drew, '90, was principal of Mission High for 24 years.

Admiral Clark, '08, (center) makes an inspection of officers and men aboard the U.S.S. Hornet.

When her country called Lowell hesitated not to send her sons to battle. Fighting in the two great wars, Lowell graduates have shown that Lowell spirit will not yield. Let us see what Lowell has contributed to our country's fight for freedom.

Though World War I took relatively few Americans to the battlefield, 705 Lowellites fought for the Star Spangled Banner.

An interesting fact is that of these 705, 10 were women. They were Lyla Bernhard, Blanche Collette, Miss Hoffman, Edna Howell, Thelma Light, F. Lockhart, Bess Short, Nina Valvo, and Margaret Vance.

To this war Lowell contributed two Brigadier Generals. Both graduates of West Point, they were Malcolm Graham and James A. Woodruff.

In World War II Lowell was the alma mater of more than 1,000 fighting men. Of these, more than 58 were killed.

Once again Lowellites filled the high ranks. Among these were Rear Admirals Chadwick G. Rudde and William D. Sample, Brigadier General Charles D. Ostram, Commander Sherman Leland, Lt. Colonels Truxton Andrews, Robert Koshland, and Peter Manjos, Col. John S. Pratt, Major Gen. James A. Woodruff, and General R. Smedberg were all members of the Lowell cadets. General Woodruff has declared that the two years training he received at Lowell helped him to graduate as No. 1 man in the West Point Class of 1899.

Military Careers Attract Lowellites and Lt. Commanders Emanuel Blue and Charles Brindupke.

Henry P. Rethers, '88, started his military career in the Spanish-American War as a buck private and by World War I had achieved the rank of Brigadier General. He has been awarded medals by England and France as well as the Distinguished Service Medal by the United States. After the Armistice in 1918, he was given the task of arranging for the return of the 45,000 American soldiers to this country and the building of permanent military cemeteries. It was he who had to select the body to be placed in the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Another Lowellite, Kirk Simpson, wrote the inscription which appears on the tomb. Lt. Col. Walter J. Bittenbach, '98, is another veteran of the Spanish-American War and World War I.

Major General James K. Underhill, '09, U. S. Marine Corps; Admiral R. A. Theobald, '02, U. S. Navy; General R. Smedberg, U. S. Army; General Philip Faymonville, '05; Commodore Milton S. Davis, '98, U. S. Navy; Captain William Granat, '10; Brigadier General Bethel W. Simpson, '07; Rear Admiral Arthur Clark, '08; and Col. Hiram Johnson, Jr., '05, U. S. Army, were others who served with distinction.

Robert McGlashan, '32, graduated from California, Phi Beta Kappa, and took a competitive examination for the U. S. Marines. He finished second highest in the nation. A mathematical wizard, Colonel McGlashan was given a special citation for his part in the American victory over the Japanese in the Battle of Midway.

On the battlefield their Lowell spirit stayed with our fighting men. Take, for example, Ist. Lt. William Gary. Bill, who graduated from Lowell in 1940, was awarded a Bronze Star for his heroic action in thwarting a German tank attack on a French village in June, 1944.

On September 20, 1944, while returning from a reconnaissance mission, Bill's patrol was attacked from the rear. While fighting a rear guard action to enable his patrol to return to safety, Bill was killed.

Roll of Honor for Men Killed in Action

Charles W. MacKenzie, Jr., class of Fall, 1938, is another fine example of Lowellites in time of war. He wears the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal, and five Bronze Oak Leaves. As a navigator he flew thirty-three missions in the Sicilian theater.

Richard Hansen, class of Fall, 1942, was in the Marines. After serving in Sitka he entered the Pacific war on November 27, 1944. On February 28, 1945, he was killed in the storming of Iwo Jima.

Taken prisoner on Bataan was Capt. Berry Langworth who graduated from Lowell in 1933.

Major Charles Auerbach was awarded the Bronze Star for action with anti-aircraft batteries in the Western Front. Major Auerbach was a member of the class of Fall, 1937, the Valedictorian, a member of the Scroll and L, and CSF.

Flying a plane over Rumania on July 28, 1944, was Lt. Paul Kenneberry. Flack hit his plane exploding the gas tanks. As a result of parachuting from his plane, he broke his leg in six places. The Germans captured him and took him to a hospital to amputate his leg. He died for lack of blood the next day.

These are but a few cases of Lowellites in World War II. But cases like these show the terrific Lowell spirit shown by Lowellites when fighting for their country.

LOWELL 25-MILE BICYCLE RELAY TEAM OF 1900
(1) Theobald; (2) Bridgeford; (3) W. G. Sachs (Capt.); (4) Spickes; (5) Cutler.

In the period between the Spanish-American War and World War I, rugby outshone American football as the great school sport. Usually the game that would decide the league championship during this period was the Lick-Wilmerding vs. Lowell contest with both schools getting an equal share of the championships.

By 1920 most of the high schools in the area had disbanded their rugby squads so that it was necessary for San Francisco and the East Bay Schools still playing to combine into a single league. The following year Lowell had to drop the sport as there were no other teams playing the game in the area.

Cycling

The first important sport's squad at Lowell was the Bicycle Team. During the 1890's the Lowell squad was considered the best on the Coast. Stars of the team were George Fuller and Edmund Russ who held every individual school record from one-half mile to five miles.

Russ also set two national interscholastic marks in 1897. His time of 1 minute, 9 and 1/5 seconds in the half mile, and 4 minutes, 41 and 3/5 seconds in the two mile event were the All-United States marks.

Many Championship Crews

Crew was introduced to Lowell in 1922. At first few facilities were offered in the sport but things got better as the team won more top honors. Lowell's strong crew dominated the championship for the first few years, winning from 1924-28. Jim Montgomery was largely responsible for the crew's state of perfection and three of their titles. Jim coached and developed one of the best high school crews in the country. In 1924 the top title seemed destined for Oakland's Technical High, however, Lowell ended Tech's hopes by a large margin. The first boat of '24 was composed of Jovanovich, Mahrhardt, strokes; Sarno, Stacey, Condi, Zobel, Canton, Maio, Casgrove, Benny, Shimoheff; Daniels, bow; and Schuman, pilot.

As a result of the crew's diligent and concentrated efforts in 1925, they succeeded in accomplishing an almost impossible feat. The crew was able to cover a one and one-half mile course in the official SFAL meet in 5 minutes 40 seconds, breaking the existing record set by Lowell's '24 team of 7 minutes 36 seconds. The crew's work also bettered the world's existing high school record in that course. The team of '25 consisted of Roth, Dettner, Keystone, Taylor, Schuman, Wehser, Daniels, Nelson, Vredenburg, Witzel, Valente, and Scott. Another feature of the victory was that Poly's crew which finished second was 15 lengths behind.

Lowell's power in aquatic sports is unquestioned; such records are not easily obtained or upheld. The crew again gained the championship in 1931 and 1938, and thereafter ran close behind until the sport was discontinued in 1942.

LOWELL-BALBOA GAME, 1939

Lowell wins, 3-2. Howard Council (33) Lowell, white jersey, makes tackle on Bal man. Jim Stephenson (35) Lowell tackle, moves in to assist. Bill Joslyn, Lowell center, moves in from far left of picture.

It is interesting to note that from 1899 until 1919 rugby was played, with a few exceptions, in the place of regular football.

1898.—After a successful gridiron season, the Indians met favored Belmont for the championship. The two teams battled to a 5-5 deadlock. Rooney, Symmers, Hooper, Irving, Lewitt, Ollwell, Ellinwood, Milton, Kidd, Duzer, and Captain Cook were among the stars of the first city championship team.

1900.—Lowell managed to defeat the best teams of the strong AAL League, and won the coveted football crown. The deciding factor was the Berkeley tilt in which the Indians edged out a 6-5 decision.

1902.—In two 20-minute halves the Lowell eleven won the championship of the AAL over Berkeley by a score of 6-0. Mead Hamilton again proved himself one of the finest players on the coast, with Ray Folk, a great tackle and quarter, showing his ability as well.

1909.—The Indians again captured the football championship.

1914.—Lowell's football team not only distinguished itself by winning the City Championship, but when the all-star team was selected from city high schools, eight Lowell men were picked. The notables were Captain James Conrado, Herb Wilson, "Randy"

Flood, Walter Osborne, "Don" McKenzie, "Si" Katen, Dick Berndt, and Voyne Vucosalievich (Mills Voyne).

1915.—Once again the championship was kept Lowell for their fine rugby-football squad.

1916.—In 1916 Lowell's rugby team was said to be one of the finest. The championship was carried over and the Indians captured it with ease. Caesar Manera was Lowell's best front-ranker, and Eldon Basset, Manager Sherwin McKenzie, Captain George Hooper, Anthony Cunha, also starred.

1919.—The final engagement for the championship was between Lowell and Poly. This game caused a great deal of infelicity within high school circles. The score was 8-3 when Villan kicked; the trouble then followed. Poly's attempt to have the game forfeited failed and Lowell captured the championship. Captain Campbell and Manager Raymond Flood were among the outstanding performers.

1924.—An experienced Red and White eleven dominated the SFAL and swept their opponents to announce Lowell's first title in four years. The greatest single achievement was when the Indians managed to tie State champs, San Mateo, 14-14. Paul Vredenburg's excellent punting and the hard-rushing line with faacks, were the main reasons for the Redmen's success.

1926.—The Indians ended the season in a triple tie for the AAA pigskin championship. Lowell fared excellently against their league opponents, losing but one tilt. The defeat was suffered at the hands of Galileo, 3-0.

1927.—Lowell captured the football crown through post season playoff victory over arch-rival Poly, 12-6. Throughout the season Lowell displayed talent and superiority over their helpless opponents. Sacred Heart fell by the score of 28-6; Commerce was waxed, 26-0; while others awaited similar treatment before the "Red Machine."

1928.—With the championship depending upon the final tilt Lowell beat their traditional rivals, Poly, to win the pigskin trophy. A record-breaking 55,000 fans watched this titantic struggle for the West's most renowned football crown. San Francisco was then the center of prep football.

1939.—On Thanksgiving Day at Kezar the Indians in their annual "big game" clinched the first AAA title for Lowell in eleven years. Lowell's team outcharged and outplayed a supposedly superior Poly to give themselves the needed edge and championship. The team was sparked by Jim Honnert, Al Garcia, and Ed Cerf.

1941.—The Lowell Indians again met their traditional rival Poly, to decide the outcome of the championship. However, Lowell's powerful team led by Gardner, Orsi, Captain Frank Wigmore, and Sheridan, pushed ahead and captured the valued title.

1942.—For the second straight year Lowell beat Poly to win the Triple "A" Championship. As the final gun sounded the scoreboard read Lowell 13, Poly 12. Among the outstanding players on the Indians' last championship team were Bill Bennet, Paul Orsi, Bob Sims, and Aiff Gomes, who made the extra point which made the difference between victory and defeat.

Many Great Basketball Teams

Lowell High is proud of its record of varsity basketball championship teams. The years in which the Indians won the title are: 1907, 1913, 1916, 1919, 1920, 1921, 1925, 1930, 1931, 1932, 1935, 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1944, 1945, 1946, 1949, and 1953.

Lowell has produced its share of outstanding basketball players. The following list is the All-Time, All-Star Indian basketball squad.

The players are not listed in first, second, and third teams, because all were stars on their respective squads and it is impossible to determine who were really the best.

The team is composed of Richie Hay, Ed Conroy, Bob Carney, Carl Troppman, Don Burness, Bob Feerick, Bill Cowden, Pete Delos, Ed Cerf, Howie Dallmar, Jerry Coleman, Ken Leslie, Bill Lau, Al Kragstad, Ward Healey, Bob Matheny, Ken Flower, Mike Leaskou, and Clarence Grider.

Richie Hay, a center, was the only player for Lowell who ever made the All-City team three years in a row. He made it in 1930, 1931, and 1932. He later played for California.

Ed Conroy made All-City forward in 1931 and 1932. He played college ball for Santa Clara. Bob Carney, a forward, was an All-City selection in 1931 and 1932, too. Carl Troppman, an All-City center in 1935, later went over to Santa Clara to play for the Broncos.

Bob Feerick, currently the basketball coach at Santa Clara, was an All-City guard in 1937 for the Indians. He was also an All-Coast selection for the Santa Clara Broncos, and an All-Pro cager for the Washington Capitols.

Don Burness, an All-City forward in 1936 and 1937; Bill Cowden, All-City guard in 1938; and Howie Dallmar, All-City in 1939 and 1940, all were Bill Cowden played football basketball for Lowell. Later he played at Stanford on the team that won the National Championship of the U.S.

Howard Dallmar, '40, played on Stanford's NCAA Championship team. Now Stanford's coach.

over to Stanford and played first-string on the only Stanford team that ever won the NCAA championship, the 1942 squad.

All three were also All-Coast performers. Dallmar later made All-Pro for the Philadelphia Warriors, and he is currently the basketball coach at his alma mater.

Pete Delos and Ed Cerf both were All-City forwards in 1938 and 1939. Cerf later played college ball for the St. Mary's Gaels.

Jerry Coleman, who is better known for his baseball feats with the New York Yankees, also was an All-City guard for the Lowell basketball team of 1943.

Bill Lau and Ken Leslie were both All-City selections in 1944. Lau played center and Leslie played guard. Leslie has played on many club teams around the Bay Area, including the Oakland Bittners, and has played for the College of Marin.

Al Kragstad, a forward, was an All-City choice in 1946. Bob Matheny and Ward Healy were both All-City selections in 1947, Matheny as a guard and Healy as a forward.

Matheny later was an All-Coast player for California, and has played for the Olympic Club. Healy was an All-American prep, and Ben Neff, who has been coaching at Lowell since 1925, said that Healy was the best shot he has ever coached at Lowell.

Ken Flower made All-City guard for Lowell in 1949, and later was an All-Coast performer for Southern California. Mike Leaskou was an All-City guard in 1953, and, like Flower, later played for Southern California.

Clarence Grider, a center, was an All-City choice in 1953 and 1954. He was also an All-American prep. Last season he played for CCSF.

1941 BASKETBALL ACTION

Bob Troppman, Bob Arnold and Bill Kotta come to the rescue of Lowell's Bob Cherry during the Lowell-Commerce basketball game of 1941. Lowell won 21-20.

A couple of generations of Lowellites can recall the bench antics of Ben Neff and his five pennies. These pictures would bear the same expressions if they had been taken in 1930 or 1956.

Record of Track Teams Impressive

1909.—For the first time in the history of Lowell a team came through first in the AAL Indoor Championship field meet. The eight-man team set a record which Lowell's track teams have upheld. The team consisted of Captain Leo Meyer, Roy Cohon, Street, Brown, Agazelow, Smeltzer, Potter, Sommer, and Wakeman.

1916.—From out of a deep hole to the championship of the San Francisco Athletic League rose Lowell's track team. The task of success was simplified by the return of several lettermen, and the brilliant performances of Captain Dinkelspiel and "Babe" Bering.

1917.—The track team saved Lowell's reputation for the term by cleaning up the SFAL meet. Led by Captain McRae and Manager Abinanti the team did a great job. The Indians brought in 71 points, 11 first places, and two records. "Mell" McRae was a consistent winner in the sprints and the broad jump, while Richardson reached 11 feet 23/8 inches in the pole vault.

1919.—In spite of all advance predictions at the beginning of the season, the weight track team came through with winning the SFAL track and field meet by the score of 63-31. Coach Voyne led the team which Captain Hosman Smith and Campbell saved the day by winning the javelin and shot; both scored 13 points. Also high on the point list were Villain, Bernstein, Jansen, and Hess.

1920.—On Saturday, October 2, Lowell's weight track team once again walked away with the SFAL meet. Poly, Lowell's nearest opponent, was defeated by 20 points. Shermund made a record by stepping the quarter mile in 52 seconds. Manager Morris was the star for the Indians when he set a record in the 75-yard dash.

1921.—To the surprise of everyone including the aunchest of rooters, Lowell again retained the covered SFAL championship trophy beating favored Poly 101½-41. Led by team Captain Robinson and Manager Protapappas, the trackmen's spirit and determination brought on their victory.

1922.—Lowell's unlimited team led by Captain Rankin totaled 36 points to capture the SFAL meet. Also to the surprise of many was Lowell's weight team victory. The stars were Captain Morris, who took first in the 100 and 220 runs, and Williamson, who cleared the high jump record.

1923.—For the sixth consecutive time Lowell's eight track team won the SFAL title. Under the watchful eyes of Coach Dykes and Vernile Rucker, the Indians scored a total of 89½ points. Haskell won the 30's high jump, and Casey ran on the winning relay. On the 20's, Russell was the star with two firsts, plus his part in the relay; Gren scored eight points and also ran on the relay.

1924.—Displaying the form that had previously won seven victories for Lowell, the weight cinder track team, led by Captain D'Alessio, again captured the SFAL meet. Al Fest broke the 100- and 440-yard records, while Robeson Smith shattered the 120's 75-yard record. The team annexed 75 points.

1925.—The Lowell unlimited track team of '25, under the guidance of Coach Dykes and Captain Baker, brought the team to a city championship. Berry finished first in the 220, and the 440 was won by Sanderson in 1:00 seconds flat. Other winners were Baker, 880; Press, hurdles; and Smith, the javelin throw.

1938.—Fulfilling the highest expectations the Indians Papaoses romped through the league to annex the AAA title. Every division took top honors. The team included such stars as Enile, Sjolund, Fry, Hiki, Lew, and Curley.

1939.—With versatile Captain Canfield setting the pace, the unlimited track team defeated Commerce, 48-48, to take the City Championship. The Indians seemed to do no wrong. Pete De Vries garnered eight points and Bernard was next in the shot and discus, acquiring six; Meier also made six points.

1940.—With stalwart George Canfield, Gene Clark, and Skiles Hoffman, sprinter, leading the way, Lowell's unlimited track team beat Commerce 54½-48. For the second straight time the Redmen captured the AAA Championship. Howard Alvord and John Haas both accounted for five points and won in the shot and discus, respectively.

1942.—The blue chips were down and the Indians swept the field for their third AAA title in four seasons. Weeks of hard practice brought Lowell to a high pitch. Jim Shepperd led the Indians with eight points. Phil Arnot, Jack Shepherd, Jack Bresler, Carl O'Donnell, Bob Sim, and Mel Evans, came through with important points.

1943.—For the second year in a row Lowell's var-track team took hold of the championship. The Indians rose to a total of 53½ points. With undefeated miler Dick Winker leading, Lowell emerged victorious over Lincoln's team. Dick MacMillon took first in the 100, and John Hardgrave won the high hurdles, setting the city record.

1946.—Lowell upset Poly, 58-47, to capture the track title. Running the mile, Lowell had Don Branson, undefeated varsity man. Palaby, broad jump; Abraham, discus; Marrow, 100; Dunn, shot; Davis, pole vault; Moretti, 220; and Hughes, 880, were other outstanding team members.

1947.—Coached by Elmer Harris, Lowell's mighty track team won the '47 Round Robin Championship. The Indians were paced by Torres, Scroggy, Plessas, and Anderson in the sprints; Scroggy, 440; Johnson, 880; and Frey, in the mile. Both star hurdlers, Loren Baker and Frank Packard, unofficially broke city records in the hurdles.

1948.—For the third consecutive time Coach Harris' cindermen annexed the AAA crown by sweeping over the best teams of the league. On Saturday, April 24, the Indians captured the Burlingame Relays over the defending champions, San Jose's Lincoln High School. Besides winning the meet, Lowell's relay team of Loren Baker, Jim Plessas, Hughes, and Marv Hoffman, broke the relays' 880 record.

1949.—Led by phenomenal Plessas, Lowell's powerful team won its fourth city title. Plessas became the sixth man in AAA history to win three city titles. Don Carlson took the 440, Dick Cook carried over the discus, while Bud Warren and Dick Tophen won the hurdles. Bob Foehr and Bill Pardy won the pole vault. The team and their spirit were superb.

Tennis Teams Produce Nationally Famous Stars

Since their first championship back in 1899 Lowell's tennis teams have established a winning tradition. The Indians have won 46 titles in the 57 years they have been competing. Furthermore, the tennis teams of Lowell have turned out more nationally and internationally known players than any other school in the country.

The sport wasn't well received at first, but the popularity increased as did their proportions and championships. The personnel of the 1901 team competition championship were the first of the renowned players, the Long brothers, Melville and Herbert, who later became internationally ranked. However, the most noted player that attended Lowell was later to become the world famous "Little Bill" Johnston. Johnston completely revolutionized the style of tennis, and won two national championships, and for ten years was the dominant figure of the Davis Cup competition.

Other famous earlier notables who played at Lowell and became nationally ranked were Allen Lowry, Mel Long, Maurice McLaughlin, and the Rosenberg brothers.

Other Lowell players to gain fame in tennis circles included Roberts, Wallace Bates, Phil Neer, Mervyn riffin, Herb Sauer, Sr., Bowie Detrich, Homer Livson, John Strachan, Phil Battens, Irving Weinstein, and the Kinsey brothers, Robert and Howard.

In recent competition Lowell's tennis teams have upheld and added to the list of important and national-known players. A few of the outstanding stars included Tom Brown, who became national and world's singles runner-up, world's doubles champ, and a Davis cup player; Nick Carter, city champion five times; Harry Buttimer, and Harry Roche, Pacific Coast doubles champion; and Harry Likas, national intercollegiate singles champion. The last three attended Lowell from 1938-40.

Jim Livingstone (now English instructor and tennis coach at Lowell) became the Pacific Coast champion. John Lesch, 1950-51, became national boys' champion and national junior champion.

Jim Livingstone and Harry Buttimer, former all-city tennis stars, have annexed many titles including the Pacific Coast Doubles Championship.

GOLF

Golf was inaugurated as a major sport in city high schools in 1925. Golf, like the also newly-established crew, wasn't completely accepted by the general student body. However, the yearly tryout and participation has been comparatively large. As a result, golf has continued as a major sport at Lowell.

Lowell's golf teams have always presented a formidable team. The first team of '25 consisted of James Binns, Ted Lees, Dick Erlin, Captain Charlie Helganz, Dave McKell, and Bob Mercure. The first few years were fairly successful for Lowell, being twice runner-up for the first championship tournaments. In 1929 the Indians won the championship through a technicality, and with a stronger team in 1930 they again captured the title. They had another championship in 1935. Since then the team has always been near or at the top.

Among the many tennis titles held by Nick Carter are five San Francisco City Singles Championships.

Lowell's baseball team was organized in the fall of 1896 and the first Academic League game was played the following year. Some of the players on Lowell's first team were Boradore, Wistrand, Robinson, Maze, Carter, Aitken, and Symmers. The first team had a promising start playing to the finals before they were defeated by the Alameda University Academy. Belmont won the championship.

In 1901 Lowell captured the championship but failed to duplicate the feat until 1918 when the nine managed to weather the season and cap off the year by defeating Poly for the league championship. Lowell beat the favored Parrots 1 to 0. The game was an exciting pitchers' duel, neither side registering hits until the seventh inning.

Baseball was again stranded until 1927 when four veterans, Captain Jimmy Campbell, Archie MacLean, Jake Galinsky, and Benny Morgenstern, Lowell's candidate for All-City again brought Lowell top honors. The Cards apparently overcame unsurmountable odds and fought their way to the AAA finals, and championship.

Although few championships have been won by Lowell's baseball teams, they almost always remain near the top. Baseball also has been a stepping-stone for some Lowell graduates into pro ball. Among those notables are Walter "Dutch" Reuther, who pitched Lowell from 1909-11. He then continued to the Pacific Coast League and the majors, where he pitched two World Series. Counting Reuther's experience as a PCL scout for the Chicago Cubs he has spent 22 years in pro ball.

Bert Cole, at Lowell in 1916, later turned up in the PCL and then pitched five years for the majors. He later retired and became a Coast League umpire. Max Koenig was a major league shortstop. He played with the New York Yankees (1925-29), Chicago Cubs (1932), and the N. Y. Giants (1935-36).

In 1925 Frank Crosetti played baseball and basketball for Lowell. Upon graduation Frank was with the S. F. Seals and later shortstop for the N. Y. Yankees.

In 1927 Lowell's most valuable player was Will Wright, who pitched Lowell's baseball team to the AAA championship.

In 1930 Al Wright graduated from Lowell into a job in the infield for the Missions of the Pacific Coast League. He played a short while in the majors before returning to the PCL with the San Francisco Seals.

Jerry Coleman, '41, starred in baseball and basketball at Lowell and then went on to star with the World Championship New York Yankees and become "Rookie of the Year."

Championship Swimming Teams

1906.—At the big swimming meet Lowell's small team made a fine showing, winning their first Academic Athletic League Championship by gathering eight points. Laine led the Indians by breaking the interscholastic records in the 440 and 880 yard dashes. The team rounded the season with Smith, Jewett, Mancove, Trout, and Ruether as the mainstays. The swimming teams of Lowell throughout the years have followed the example set by this first team, and have always been high on the list of champions. After their first win the Indians went on for 20 consecutive years without a loss in the all-league meets.

1907.—Another championship.

1908.—Every event was marked with Lowell's wins and the AAL meet championship was won by a large margin. The team consisted of Rayward, Meyer, Laine, Johnson, Mither, and Grimes.

1909.—With five strong veterans, Johnson, Mither, Grimes, Meyer, and Simpson, Lowell went on to its fourth consecutive AAL win. The relay team tied the 8 record.

1910.—Once again the Indians annexed the championship.

1911.—On September 22, Lowell won its sixth SFAL meet by a margin of 25 points. Led by Captain Smith's distance record, the team including such stars Colleshon, Van Vliet, and Huntington went on to an easy victory.

1912.—The unbeatable team won the crown also '12.

1913.—On the night of the AAL meet, Lowell won easily with 34 points. Flood and Lewis won the 100 with Lewis breaking the record. The relay team also won easily. Captain Wilson and Huntington also deserved credit.

1914.—After winning the AAL meet with 32 points, the Indians, led by Captain Flood, went on to engulf the California Interscholastic Swimming Meet. For the first time Lowell won the championship of California. Gardiner and Smith were the high pointers.

1915.—Lowell's great swimming team seemed to have gathered the crown for good.

1916.—With only one meet, the Lowell June semester swimming team tied with the Stanford freshmen, and then continued on to annex the SFAL crown. Among the outstanding men were John Dorn, winner of the relay; and Robert Don, Maky, and Goodmen, joint holders of the 50 yard record. The December team also annexed the crown under the leadership of Captain Ransohoff, Manager Wilson, and O'Connor.

1917.—Leading with Captain Julien, Barry O'Connor, Strauss, Carson, Hooper, and followed by a determined team, Lowell again copped the SFAL championship meet. The SFAL championship proved simple with Lowell gathering 64 points. The relay was most important and most exciting. Lichtenstein stretched Lowell's lead to win a victory. Captain Hooper and Julien both scored 13 points while the large rooting section went wild. The December team also retained the crown.

1919.—The swimming team again won the SFAL meets of June and December. The outstanding swimmers for the Cardinals were Jim Carson, Captain Herrington, O'Connor, Woods, "Fat" Smith and Al Hooper. The June meet was won with 66 points while the December contest was annexed with 52.

1920.—Since Lowell's only loss was to Stanford University, the Red and White kept their spirit and continued on to hold the championship. Jim Carson took the 50, followed by Captain O'Brien, Herrington, and Hooper. Throughout the year Lowell's only trouble was getting teams to swim against them!

1921.—Manager Don Bryant broke the 50 yard record, and Felton won the plunge, setting a record of 66 feet 7 inches. Once again with 53 points Lowell's team took the title. In December the title still remained at Lowell as the unbeatable team pulled together 36 points to win.

1922.—At the SFAL meet held at Sutro Baths, the Indians took every place but three. The June and December championships were won. Among the outstanding were Captain Brophy, Captain Schwartz, Sullivan, Allen, and Hart.

1923.—For the 34th consecutive time Lowell's June and December teams won the championship. Among the stars were Captain Hobcty, national interscholastic 50 yard winner, and Brophy who tied a seven year record in the 50 yard event.

1924.—Again on May 24, the Lowell team captured the SFAL title for the 17th consecutive year, and for the 35th semester. Holiday and Smith again starred, the former breaking the interscholastic 50 yard breast stroke record, and the latter piling up the highest individual score by annexing 12 points. Scott and Webster distinguished themselves by shattering the 150 and 130 pound free style record. A feature of the meet was that every man placed in some event. The final score was 71 points.

With 61 points, Lowell's December team also annexed the crown. Webster broke his own 150 and 130 free style record, while Captain Ducato and Dunn were other individual winners.

1925.—On Saturday, May 23, after a strenuous and successful practice season, the Cardinals under the leadership of Captain Joe Smith beat their aquatic rivals. Tom Welkinson started the meet by capturing the 50 yard free style; Ducato took both the 220 and 440. Saunders copped the 100 yard breast stroke; Webster, McLeon, and Medau also contributed their quota to the point column.

1926.—The mermen of Lowell swam away with the SFAL meet, annexing 63 points. Bill Egan proved to be the star of the day, being high point man. Captain Caglieri, Welch, and Erlin held the sprints following "Red" Dunn's win of the dive. The relay team broke Lowell's former record.

The championship that Lowell had seemed to have permanently acquired from the SFAL slipped out of their hands in '27.

1928.—Lowell again annexed the swimming title with the large total of 55½ points against 51 for runner-up Galileo. The result of the meet remained in doubt from the initial event until the concluding Red Dunn of the Redmen was high point man of the meet and was ably backed by teammate Nevil.

1933.—Lowell edged Galileo by one point, 40-39, to win the swimming title at Fleishhacker Pool. Jack England, Jack Kenut, and Elton Stone formed Lowell's big three, scoring 27 of Lowell's 40 points.

1935.—Scoring an average of 4.6 points in each of the ten events, Lowell's varsity mermen annexed the AAA swimming title. Jack Read set a new record in the 100 yard backstroke, while many other Lowellites shone in their events.

1940.—The Lowell mermen again took their AAA title. Leading throughout, the swimmers culminated the meet with a total of 47 points. Possessing only one winner in Don Beanston, ace 220 man, and a record breaking relay team of Gene Bolster, Len Levy, Beanston, and De Lano, the team had reserve strength in all events.

1941.—With the final outcome of the AAA championship swimming meet depending upon the outcome of the last event, the 220 yard relay, the Lowell varsity emerged from Fleishhacker Pool with another title under its belt. Captain Bob Vayssie, Nick Belkin, and Al Resleure were outstanding throughout the season.

1944.—Captain Danny McGill led the Lowell mermen to an AAA swimming title over the perennially tough S.I. Wildcats. Fred Ganz, city champ for three years standing, plowed through to an easy win in the 100 yard breast stroke, turning in the record time of 1:10.7.

1945.—The swimming title was achieved by beating the Wildcats by a score of 51½ to 44½ in the city meet. Outstanding performances in the varsity were turned in by Don Fisher, who copped both the 50 and 100 yard free styles.

1949.—This year Lowell swimmers, under the leadership of Coach Feiling, brought another title to the Reservation. Lowell was blessed with such stars as 220 and 100 yard free styler Jim Lee, 50 and 100 yard free styler Bob Fisher, back stroker Bill Greninger, and diving star Morley Shapiro.

1951.—Coach Feiling's swim team, after beating Camalpais and Sequoia in meets held out of town, made their way to the AAA "Round Robin" swim championship. Among the outstanding swimmers were Murphy, Floyd, Hellman, Barnato, Winker, Fisher, and Shapiro.

The following Triple A swimming records are held by Lowell's varsity, 130 and 120 pound teams: Don Fisher, 1945, broke the varsity 50 free style record: 25.0. Lowell's varsity relay team of 1952 holds the 150 medley relay record: 1:29.4. Lowell's 130 pound relay team of 1950 also holds the 150 medley relay record in their class: 1:34.1. Al Sommer, 1953, holds the 120's 50 yard breast stroke record: 33.1. Also in the 120 pound class are Lowell's 1949 record in the 150 medley relay: 1:39.6, and the 1938 120's record in the 200 free style relay: 1:57.6.

Lowell not only has traditions—it is a tradition. Third generation students are no longer a novelty school. There are over 15 pupils now at Lowell whose mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, to nothing of the great aunts and uncles and grandparents, attended high school here.

The Lowell that the present students know may be physically different from the one of their grandparents. The ideals and traditions of the modern Lowell, however, are the same as those which were respected 100 years ago.

Lowell prides itself on the fact that there are three generations of its alumni in many prominent San Francisco families. Yes, Lowell is a family affair!

Just a few of the Lowellite families are listed below: Susan Lindner, '56; Harold Lindner, father, '25; Lilian Lindner (Zobel) grandmother, '04.

Carolyn Perkins, '56; Alice E. Perkins (Norton), mother, '22; and Dellie Norton, great-aunt.

History of the Scroll and L

The Honor Society of the Lowell High School, as it was first known, was organized in May, 1905. The leading spirit in establishing such a society was Cedric Cerf, 1905.

In January, 1907, the name was changed to the Winged L and Scroll Society. The charter members were H. W. Johnson, J. A. Roncovieri, H. Long, U. Pollack, H. H. Maundrell, W. Leib, and Tom Laine.

The Winged L and Scroll Society was reorganized in 1919 and its name was changed to the Scroll and L.

The purpose of the society is to promote good, clean activities in the school and to keep harmony among the different branches of the student enterprises.

A member of this society must have worked faithfully and unselfishly in some way for his Alma Mater, as the motto read: "In the Service of Lowell." This tradition has been the same throughout the years.

Up until the last 25 years the Scroll boys' main activities here at Lowell included supervision at the rallies and participation in the Newcomer's Reception.

The Scroll boys of today participate in many activities. The members of this honor and service society stand for leadership, service, and high scholarship.

The Scroll and L boys may be seen before and after a rally, decorating the windows overlooking the court with flags. During the rally they do their best to maintain the type of conduct that keeps the standards of Lowell rallies so high. They also help to make the Newcomer's Reception and the H9-L10 picnic a big success.

The Scroll prove themselves willing to tackle a job when they join with the Shield to present the Spring Carnival. The job of decorating the court with streamers and other brightly colored attire is done by the Scroll.

There are other services which the wearers of the red and white caps perform. They are a great help to the P.T.A. and do a fine job keeping order at the athletic events.

SCROLL SKIT

A group of Scroll boys getting ready for a rally skit in January, 1926. Included in the group are Lee Valianos, Tom Schulte, Stanley Breyer, and Russell Klein.

History of the Shield and L

Miss Gladys Lorigan has been the sponsor of the Shield and L since 1946. She was also a member of the society during her undergraduate days at Lowell.

It's a proud Lowell girl who has the honor of wearing a red and white hat, signifying that she is a member of the Shield and L. This hat stands for many things: service, good grades, participation in school activities, and a willingness to serve others.

The Shield and L Society is an outgrowth of the Winged L and Scroll Society. It was organized in December, 1909 by the Winged L and Scroll Society. The girls' organization was to have the same purpose as the boys'—to work for the best interests of Lowell. The members who comprised the first group of Shield girls were Alvina Barth, Marianne Bell, Winifred Bridge, Hilda Brandenstein, Edith Frisbie, Jessie Harris, Marcella McIlvain, Etta Schalk, Harriet Moore, and Mildred Lincoln.

The Shield girl of those days did not have as many projects or activities as they have today. Their principal jobs were Newcomer's Reception and aiding freshmen in getting settled here at Lowell.

The girls in the Society today have many projects and activities such as the Freshman Reception, the H9-picnic, the Christmas gift drive for needy children in which the Scroll Society also participates, and the Spring Carnival.

The members of these societies have been recommended by the sponsors of school service groups and extra-curricular activities.

Faithful and unselfish service, good character, and satisfactory scholarship are prerequisites for consideration and selection by faculty committees meeting with the officers of the organizations.

Each term the number admitted is equal to the number of members who are graduating, thus keeping the membership of each society at twenty-three, except that by unanimous recommendation of the members in any particular term and unanimous agreement of the faculty committee of that term, the membership may be increased to not more than thirty for the succeeding term if there are students whose record of service justifies this increase.

These two groups constitute an important part of the famous Lowell tradition, for Lowell was the first school in San Francisco to inaugurate such organizations.

History of the Big Sisters

During the year 1941, there were many confused and lonely girls in the schools of San Francisco and Lowell High School was no exception. These depressed girls had come from other cities and places, and from homes which had been sadly disrupted by the war. Adjustments were many and difficult and friendly hands and faces were sorely needed. Mr. Leroy Stephens, who was the principal of Lowell at this time, requested that something be done to keep the new students within the gates of Lowell, and thus the Big Sisters came into being.

At this time Mrs. Mary Close was the first sponsor. It was thought that if each new girl who entered Lowell had one friend upon whom she could depend, her school life at least, could be made easier and happier. Following this suggestion, the teachers of junior and senior students were asked to recommend girls with high standards and ideals, maturity of judgment, a well developed sense of responsibility, and grades which would remain high with additional responsibility. Upon the quality of each girl selected, depended the success or failure of the Big Sister movement.

The first year the Big Sisters only had a chairman and a senior advisor. More girls were appointed, upon recommendation, and an assistant chairman came into office when it became evident that the Big Sisters were doing a lot of good. Each term there was additional work and more responsibilities, therefore the need for special leaders grew. The following officers were added: a secretary, a social chairman, and an assistant social chairman. These officers were appointed upon the recommendations of the Big Sister officers, who had watched the quality of the work the girls had done the previous term.

The work for the Big Sisters grew as each term progressed and suggestions for additional tasks were made by the Big Sisters themselves. Once in awhile a new girl would think of something which could be done to make the newcomer more welcome and if it was feasible it was done.

The Big Sisters is now a well established organization at Lowell and one of the most helpful. This organization has helped thousands of new girls to become acquainted with Lowell, its students, and traditions.

Recently the Big Sisters have started a morning study session in the girls' cafeteria before school. So, the Big Sisters not only help new girls become acquainted with Lowell, but they help them with their studies and with activities.

FORMER BIG SISTERS

Bottom row: Big Sisters party in 1951. Introduction of officers at the Big Sisters party in 1952. Mrs. Close is honored guest.

In keeping with the times the 1945 Big Sisters put on a patriotic skit as their contribution to the Varieties of that year.

History of the Big Brothers

The Big Brothers organization was organized in 1935 by Mr. Hudson Monroe, Mr. Charles Walsh, and Mr. Ben Neff. This group was founded in order that the new boys who came to Lowell would have at least one friend and person whom they could rely on to help them become acquainted with the school, its traditions, students, and teachers.

In the first years of the organization, only those boys who were members of the Block L were permitted on this society. The duty of the Big Brothers at this time was to help the Scroll boys keep order at the rallies. Also, each boy on the society was assigned to a registry and was responsible for all the boys in that room.

Upon Mr. Monroe's retirement, Mr. Ray Milton took over the duties as sponsor of the Big Brothers. Besides the change in sponsorship there have been numerous changes in the code of the Big Brothers.

Now the Big Brothers is composed of upper division boys who have been recommended by the sponsors of different organizations, a radical change from the old way of determining membership. This way more boys who wish to do something for their school have an opportunity to become a Big Brother.

During the past years the membership has grown quite rapidly and this past fall there were 30 Big Brothers aiding the new boys at Lowell. All of these Big Brothers have done an excellent job of making the new students feel quite at home and more than welcome.

This past fall the Big Brothers have done some new things under the guidance of Mr. Milton, who has been more than willing to give up his time to these boys and their activities. Some of the activities which are very new to this organization are an auditorium program, which was held this past year, and a wonderful barbecue which was held in Golden Gate Park. Also, the Big Brothers are the sponsors of what is termed an athletic field-day.

As the years have progressed, the activities and responsibilities of these boys have expanded a great deal. Now the Big Brothers wear arm bands, guard the rally gates, are the sponsors of an annual track meet in which the winning registry is given a trophy, and co-sponsor the twirp dance with the Big Sisters.

To conclude this history of the Big Brothers we would like to say that the success of this organization would have been impossible if it were not for the wonderful aid which the teachers have given this organization, and most of all this group would not be here and doing the good job that they are doing, if it were not for the wonderful co-operation that each and every boy who has been a Big Brother has given both the sponsor and the school.

"The Good Old Days"

(Editor's note: During the one hundred years of Boys' High and Lowell High, things have not run smoothly at all times. Every so often students and administrators did not see eye to eye on some school rule or situation. Boys' High alumni may recall the following incident. We don't feel that the reader could get the full flavor of the situation unless we printed the entire story which was run in the September 20, 1890, issue of the San Francisco Examiner. Here is the story, complete with headlines, which had top position on page 3 of the newspaper.)

A HIGH SCHOOL REBELLION Principal Morton's Rule Protested Against as Tyrannical

Girls Must Go to School Alone

The Boys May Lift Their Hats and Say "Good Morning," but They Must Not Escort the Young Ladies to or From School—A Committee Secretly Formed To Denounce the Obnoxious Regulation.

The following communication was received at the Examiner office yesterday:

Boys' High School

 September 17, 1890

To the Editor of the Examiner—Sir: Six of us have been selected as a committee by the pupils of the Boys' High School, to ascertain by what authority the conduct of our Principal is maintained, and we know of no better way than by referring the matter to you.

In the first place, our Principal, Mr. Frank Morton, has made several odious laws in regard to acknowledging the acquaintance of young ladies on the street. (Some of these young ladies we have known all our life.) This causes a great deal of trouble and many estrangements. For instance, a young lady wishes to speak to us. We have the alternative of sneaking off and leaving her wondering and looking after us, or being expelled from school. As you may easily perceive, by just putting yourself in our place, this is very aggravating to us. Many of the young gentlemen of the school are of age.

His conduct is that of a petty tyrant, and we cannot stand it any longer. There is a document in circulation, with about 270 signatures, that the undersigned shall leave school unless this overbearing pedagogue is removed or his laws repealed. We are sanctioned in our plans by most of the girls, two of whom are on the committee and several are teachers.

Wishing you to ascertain if his conduct is justifiable, and answer in Friday's Examiner, we remain yours respectfully,

COMMITTEE OF THE BOYS HIGH SCHOOL

* * * *

An intellectual-looking gentleman with black whiskers and a sad expression stood on the curbstone yesterday in front of the Boys High School, which is situated on a high ridge on Sutter street, between Gough and Octavia, and kept a close watch of the street for a quarter of a mile to the eastward.

Boys and girls alighted from the cable cars that stopped before the school, and on these the saturnine man frowned gloomily.

As soon as the male pupils caught sight of him they slackened their steps and allowed the girls to walk ahead, which they did very demurely indeed.

To these young men and women the Principal paid but little attention beyond a frown of recognition, his mind apparently being focused upon a throng of pupils coming up from Larkin Street.

The young men sauntered along with their books under their arms chatting with one another. They were well-dressed and neat in appearance, and were remarkable for their bright, intelligent countenances.

While they seemed to be taking that part of life easy which led from home to school, the young lady pupils with apprehensive glances at the gloomy living Statue on the Ridge hurried on as if they feared to be late, although it lacked twenty minutes of school time.

When they were on the point of overtaking a group of boy pupils, the girls quickened their steps and passed them without looking to the right or to the left or giving the faintest sign of recognition.

Still the Statue on the Ridge glared down the sloping street with hypnotic eye.

IRREVERENT CANARIES

An Examiner reporter, noting these constrained actions of the pupils, stopped three of them and made inquiry as to the identity of the Statue, which evidently was surrounded with an environment of gloom. For all that, the morning was sunny, and even some canary birds in a window of the house adjoining the high school warbled merrily as though they recked not whether it was vacation time or otherwise.

"Oh!" replied a strapping young fellow with a downy mustache, "that's Bones."

"Who is he?"

"He is Frank Morton, Principal of the Boys High School, and the boys don't love him so they call him Bones."

"Why 'Bones'?"

"I don't know. From skull and crossbones, probably. His presence on the sidewalk lowers the temperature."

The Great Rebellion

"Of course you wouldn't mind it because you are not a pupil. But he is very unpopular. For the past two months he has been rigidly enforcing a rule that none of the boys shall walk to or from school with any of the girls or hold conversation with them on the street. We are permitted to say good day or good morning, and touch our hats to the girls in passing, but we must say nothing more.

The boys, and girls too, are chafing, against this rule. They believe it to be arbitrary and uncalled for, and beyond that a reflection on the manhood of the boys and the womanhood of the girls."

THEY ARE YOUNG GENTLEMEN

"That sounds funny, doesn't it?" continued the downy-mustached youth, "but it is true. We can see no harm in accompanying a young lady pupil to or from school. We are not roughs or hoodlums and it seems to us to be a very un-American order."

"Is the rule pretty generally observed?" asked the reporter.

"Only when Bones is in sight," was the reply. "I walk with a young lady acquaintance or schoolmate whenever I meet her, because I think it is nothing more than courtesy and good breeding to do so. It is much better than allowing a girl to walk alone and be exposed to the winks and observations of street-corner loafers, but Bones doesn't think so. I really believe that he cannot digest his lunch for fear that the boys and girls will be walking together."

"Do you know what caused the rule?" was asked; "was there ever any scandal arising out of the association of the sexes?"

A CAUSELESS ORDER

"No; I have never heard of any, and, in fact, there never has been any talk or scandal for the past two years while I have been attending the school. That is why the girls and boys protest against the regulation as arbitrary and tyrannical. It is evidently the product of an over-suspicious nature. I understand that the order is only a verbal one and that it has been in existence for about two years, but within the last month or so it has been stringently enforced under pain of suspension for a repeated offense. But I and many of the other boys don't propose to pay any attention to it, and we don't."

"How do you get around it?" was asked.

"Easily enough. We know that Bones, although terrible, is not superhuman and that he cannot see around a corner."

When asked whether he knew the authors of the foregoing communication the young man replied that he did not, and that if he did he would not tell for fear that they might get into trouble with Principal Morton on account of it. He admitted that there was intense feeling among the boys in regard to the order, and he would not be surprised if a committee had been formed to protest under cover against the useless and unmanly regulation.

"Another thing that the boys don't like," added the young man, "is the fact that the Principal finds out everything the boys say and do, and we believe that there are spies and informers among our number. This looks to us to be a very degrading and un-American kind of business. The informer is bad enough, but the one who uses the informer is worse."

"Good morning," said the young man, lifting his hat to a young lady who passed.

"Morn'," she responded with a choking utterance as she hurried by as from a contagion. Her eyes were fixed on the black-whiskered statue on the ridge.

THE RULE DISOBEYED

Among others interviewed was a handsome manly looking fellow about twenty years of age who was extremely reticent until assured that his name would not be mentioned in the matter. He had just taken leave of a young lady on the corner of Sutter and Polk streets and was proceeding toward his own home when accosted by the reporter.

"Oh, yes, the rule is in force," he said, "but it is not fully obeyed you may be sure. For myself I pay very little attention to it, for I do not think any school-master has a right to force such a regulation on the boys when outside the schoolhouse, and a large number of us are nearly of age and fully competent to understand what propriety and decency mean, and I do not see why, if we know certain young ladies in the classes, we should be compelled to pass them in the street when we happen to be going in the same direction.

"What possible harm can there be in walking beside and chatting with a female member of our classes as we are proceeding toward the school?

"I have heard of boys and girls both being suspended for doing such a thing, and I think it is an injustice to say the least.

"I know there has been considerable indignation among the pupils at the high school about the matter, and I was aware that there had been some preconcerted action taken, and I suppose it was referred to a committee.

"No, I never was punished for escorting a young lady to and from school, but I suppose it was only because I was not noticed."

THEY SHOULD BE INDIGNANT

Another bright young fellow, who also begged that his name be kept out of print, said:

"I don't know much about girls in general or about the girls of the high school, but I should think that they would be indignant about a rule which would prevent their gentlemen friends and classmates from speaking a friendly word or two going to and from school.

The Great Rebellion

"There are no girls in my class, so that temptation was never thrown in my way, and I have not been punished, but I know of two other young fellows who very recently had to submit to the disgrace of a week's suspension on account of speaking to classmates while going toward the school.

"The young lady was also suspended for a week, I think. I heard some of the boys talking about a protest.

"I don't know what I should do if my sweetheart happened to be a schoolmate, but I think I should take the consequences and speak to her, whether Mr. Morton could see me or not."

Several other boys expressed similar opinions, but not one of them would consent to his name being mentioned in connection with the interview. Neither would they divulge the names of the committeemen.

The teachers in the high school, several of whom were seen, were equally reticent about the matter, and their knowledge of the regulation seemed to be very vague.

PREPARING THE EXPLOSIVES

Professor Winn, who instructs the youth of the school in the intricacies of physical science, was found in his laboratory surrounded by half-a-dozen bright faced boys aproned deep in the pleasures of mixing acids, bromides, chlorides and other dangerous and odoriferous substances.

His face at once assumed a look of deep perplexity when asked about the regulation, and it was some time before he was able to remember anything about it.

"I don't quite remember any such rule," he said, "but there may be one. I think, however, if I saw two pupils, a girl and boy, walking together, I should probably request them to separate. I know of no trouble which has ever come to light and which might have caused such a rule, but I suppose if the Principal has made such a regulation it is to prevent anything wrong occurring.

"If such a rule exists, and I do not say it does not, it was not made to prohibit all the young men from speaking to the young ladies, for it is only fair to assume that a very large percentage of the pupils are ladies and gentlemen, but to guard against the few black sheep which are found in the best regulated schools.

"You can readily understand that one difficulty would give this school a black eye for many years and it is to guard against anything happening that the rule was made. Of course we could not enforce the rule against the bad boys alone, but should make it apply to all.

"I don't know as I should report a young man whom I thought to be a gentleman for a breach of discipline of this kind, though I would probably speak to him and tell him to be more careful.

"I don't know as any great harm could result from the simple fact that the pupils walk along together, but I myself think it is well enough to guard against contingencies."

SOME SUSPENSIONS

Another teacher said that he knew such a regulation existed, but did not know how rigidly it was enforced. One or two boys and a young lady had been suspended for the offense.

Principal Morton was very much surprised and evidently somewhat angry when he learned that a complaint had been made on account of the regulation which he freely confessed was in active operation.

"I deem it a very necessary measure," he said, "and try to see it strictly enforced. The penalty for breaking the rule is suspension for as long a time as I deem necessary. I only have power to suspend a pupil for one week and that is the penalty usually meted out.

"The regulation was first made when Mr. Wilson was in charge of the school and went into effect when classes of girls were added to those of the boys.

"I think it is very necessary, for though no scandal has ever disgraced the school, it might possibly happen if the intercourse between the scholars was too free."

After considerable questioning Mr. Morton acknowledged that he had suspended a number of pupils for the violation of the rule, and that the last one had taken place but a short time ago.

"In this case," he continued, "I suspended two young men and a young lady. One of the boys was an old offender and needed punishment, while the other was punished for walking to school with the girls.

"We do not expect them to pass without any sign of recognition but a bow is all that can be exchanged.

"Do I think that preventing the pupils from speaking on the streets is calculated to induce them to meet in out-of-the-way places at other times? Well, no, I hardly think so, though it might happen in some cases.

"At any rate the parents of all the pupils are in accord with me in this matter and are pleased that I prevent their children from mingling too freely.

Alumni and Faculty Centennial Committees

JUDGE JOHN B. MOLINARI

The Lowell Centennial Committee is the group responsible for planning most of the events being carried on in celebration of the school's one hundredth anniversary. The committee is headed by Judge John B. Molinari, chairman; J. Max Moore, vice chairman; and Miss Edith Pence, secretary.

A Faculty Centennial Committee has also been functioning as a coordinating group for alumni and undergraduate activities. Ivan Barker is the chairman of this group.

M. Smith Hail Lowell High.

Hail, name of Lowell, name we revere,
 Loudly thy glory we proclaim far and near;
 Thy sons and daughters in loyalty vie,
 Hail Lowell High School, all hail Lowell High!

Hail to thy colors, emblems we love,
 Long may thy banners wave proudly above;
 Thy wondrous spirit never shall die,
 Hail Lowell High School, all hail Lowell High!

Levin.

THE LOWELL HYMN

I

With heads bared we stand in tribute to thee,
 Our Alma Mater Lowell, all true to thee we'll be.
 Unfurled, Red and White, none shall thee decry,
 Thy name we love—oh, Lowell
 High!

II

The battle is o'er and Lowell hearts true,
 In victory or defeat will their faith in thee renew.
 With hearts full we sing, thy sons, ne'er will fail.
 Thy name we love, hail, Lowell, hail!

ALMA MATER

R. Anino

Hail, Lowell High School—All hail to thee!
 Our undying loyalty will bring thee victory.
 We love thy banner Red and White, symbol of our might,
 Hail, Lowell High School, Alma
 Mater, hail to thee!
 Alma Mater, hail to thee, all hail!

ON CARDINAL

On—on—Cardinals!
 Fight for victory today, team.
 Colors red and white,
 Proudly wave to you from up on high,
 Courage, Lowell hearts,
 Down the foeman in the fray, team,
 And when the battle's won,
 We'll cheer for Lowell High.

LOWELL FIGHT SONG

R. Anino

I

Fight, Lowell High!
 (Clap three times)

 Give us the ball and watch us
 Go right down the field.
 Fight, Lowell High!
 (Clap three times)
 Go all the way!
 (Clap three times)
 Score, score, score, and score
 some more,
 And help to make this a Lowell
 Vict'ry Day!

II

(Clap three times) (yell) Let's go!
 (Clap three times) (yell) Let's go!
 Lowell spirit will not yield,
 Give us the ball then watch us
 Go right down the field.
 (Clap three times) (yell) Let's go!
 (Clap three times) (yell) Let's go!
 Score, score, score and score
 some more
 Vict'ry Day!

HICK SONG

We're glad to play a game today,
 And we will do our best in ev'ry way.
 As long as we are in it we are going to try to win it—
 A better spirit you will never see.
 And ev'ry time we score we'll cheer.
 For that's the very reason we are here.
 And when we get behind our team, as we will always be—
 We'll go home with a victory.

II

(yell) One, two, three, four—we want a score!

 May you hear it ev'rywhere.
 So get behind it, Lowell High, and make it rend the air!

ALL FOR LOWELL

R. Anino

We're all for Lowell High School
 And we will help to cheer her on to victory.
 We're all for Lowell High School
 No one will have a chance to doubt our loyalty.

 And let the whole world listen to our battle cry.
 We'll hoist her banner to the sky
 The Red and White will ever fly

VIVE LE LOWELL HIGH

(Music: "Vive l'Amour")

Well, here's to our colors, the Red and the White,
 Here's to our teams that shall never say die,
 With memories golden, more cheeished with age,
 So we'll keep up the fight 'till the victory's won.
Vive le Lowell High!

May they always succeed in portraing their might,
 To pals that a fellow can always stand by;
 To stand out forever among records made,
 The worst of the fray is the best of the fun.

Chorus

Vive le, vive le Lowell High;
 Vive le, vive le Lowell High;
 Vive le Red, vive le White,
 Vive le Lowell High.

ALMA MATER

Alma Mater, Alma Mater,
 The hills send back the cry, you've got to do or die,
 For Alma Mater, Alma Mater, We'll win the game or know the reason why!
 Sing the first time.
 Whistle the second time.
 Sing it the third time.

THE STURDY TEAM

Our sturdy gridders true,
 Are waiting for the fray,
 And look upon our colors fair,
 For they are out to win the day
 Our banners red and white,
 The symbol of our might,
 Means Lowell High will fight, fight,
 fight,
 So give a cheer for Lowell's Brave
 We'll send them on their way
 With our mighty cheers today,
 For they are out to win the game
 And bring to Lowell name and fame.
 So cheer with all your might,
 As it will help them fight,
 For Lowell stands for Might and Fight,
 So give a cheer for Lowell's Brave

The Executive Board

The Executive Board is the general governing body of all student activities. The board makes and executes the laws of the school. It also puts into effect the provisions of the Lowell Constitution.

This term's Executive Board, led by Bob Moore, did a fine and capable job of organizing school activities. Assisting him was the student body vice president, Sylvia Nelson.

The board met once a week to discuss any affairs which were brought to their attention. Taking part in each meeting were the officers of the school. This included Treasurer Paul Matzger, Head Yell Leader Tony Mathios, the editors of the Red and White and The Lowell, Gwen Davis and Sue Figel, Terry Stevens, president of the Scroll and L, and the president of the Shield and L, Barbara Bates.

Also composing the board were the president of the Boys' Block L, Bob Oddone; the president of the Girls' Block L, Carolyn Watson; president of the Girls' Athletic Association, Dorothy Jones; chairman of the Student Council, Brian Lyttle; Joanne Davies, president of the California Scholarship Federation; and the commanding officer of the ROTC, Peter Belmont.

Terry Yasukochi, secretary of the student body, took minutes and kept a record of all business.

The Executive Board appointed the members of the rally and social committees and helped assist the principal in setting the dates for general school assemblies. Maintaining the morale and promoting the welfare of the school was another of their accomplishments.

Advising the board on different matters were Principal J. A. Perino, Dean of Girls Miss Lorigan, Dean of Boys Dr. Smith, and Activities Sponsor Mr. Anino.

Big Brothers

Before this term, the Big Brothers consisted of senior boys only. Now, boys of the junior class are being recommended in order to give them a sense of responsibility. They are selected for their good scholarship, reliability and service to Lowell. Scroll members are automatically ex-officio members.

The most important function of the Big Brothers is to acquaint the new boys with Lowell. A warm smile, helping hand, and a little friendly advice make it a lot easier for the bewildered newcomer. In both the fall and spring terms they assisted in putting on the highly successful Newcomers' Reception.

The fall Big Brothers were headed by President A. Johnson and Terry Stephens, secretary-treasurer. They sponsored an intramural basketball tournament. A track meet was held in the spring. The officers were Jim Weinberger, president; Kit Cole, vice president; and Harold Hand, secretary-treasurer.

Also, in the spring, they co-sponsored the Twirl Dance with the Big Sisters, held on Friday, April 13.

Mr. Milton is the sponsor of this group whose other duties are to keep order at the rallies and the outdoor doors.

Big Sisters

Miss Alice Graeber, one of Lowell's active counselors, has been the sponsor of the Big Sister Society for the past three years. This dependable organization consists of upper division girls who attempt to get new girls acquainted with Lowell.

The Big Sisters of the fall term elected Gail Jacobs, chairman; Noreen Sibell as her assistant; Sylvia Nelson, secretary; Carolyn Perkins, as co-ordinator; social chairman, Audrey Witt; and Carolyn Watson as chairman of the special activities committee.

The capable officers of the spring semester were president, Carolyn Perkins; vice president, Joyce Richards; Cathie Covington, secretary; Gerry Giovanetti, co-ordinator; social chairman, Charlotte Lee; and Helen Wolf as chairman of the special activities committee.

In the fall a Big Sister-Little Sister party was given to acquaint the newcomers with their Big Sisters. Another event which took place on December 3, in the Lowell auditorium was a fashion show where some Big Sisters modeled the latest fashions.

Among the various events given during the spring semester was a luncheon and tea for the incoming girls, planned by the Big Sisters.

The group has organized a morning study session for both Big and Little Sisters, welcoming all girls who wish to study in the morning.

Helping to make the fall term a successful one were President Al Clark, Vice President Phil Sevier, Secretary Ken Balling, and Sergeant-at-Arms Larry Draper.

During the spring term the Block L also had a fine set of leaders. The very capable Bob Oddone acted as president. Assisting him were "Doc" Brody, vice president; "Bucky" Reed, secretary; and Josh Eppinger, sergeant-at-arms.

school's activities. The traditional Block L dances, co-sponsored with the Girls' Block L, are the best known of these. Major social events were their two dances this year. In this, the Centennial year, the Boys' Block L are revising their constitution. Due to their hard work the clean-up campaign was a huge success. They also assist the school in outside activities.

Mr. Neff is the sponsor of this outstanding group.

Reliability, hard work in the sports in which they participate, and a desire to win, all add up to the achievement of athletic success for boys at Lowell, and their ultimate goal—a Block L.

The Girls' Block L is a very active organization around Lowell. A girl must participate in a sport for three years before she is eligible to receive her block, therefore, these girls wear their blocks proudly.

The program was a very active one under the leadership of fall President Dixie Samuels, assisted by Secretary Anita Washington.

Other highlights of the fall term's activities included a roller skating party as well as the semi-annual Block L Banquet which was held at DiMaggio's Restaurant. Everyone had a terrific time.

The spring term meant new officers. The Block L girls chose Carolyn Watson as their president and Nancy Norton as their secretary. Under the leadership of these new officers many activities were planned.

The activities of the spring term included the traditional Block L Dance on March 23 in the girls' gym with the help of the Boys' Block L. The semi-annual banquet also meant a lot to these girls.

Miss Flynn, their advisor, helped in many ways to make this year a success!

SCHOOL ORCHESTRA

Music is a major part in the lives of many students at Lowell. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Krieger, who is the head of the music department.

Each year the orchestra plays for the Varieties, and many times ensembles perform for PTA meetings, rallies, the Newcomers' Reception, and other school activities.

Such musicians as Sally Ann Hough, Dave Rosen, Nancy Wood, Alan Johnson, and Russ Cantor had the distinction of performing solos.

Representing Lowell in the Festival of Music at Stockton were a group of instrumentalists from the orchestra.

THE BAND

The Lowell band, under the guidance of Mr. Krieger, is known as one of the best high school bands in the city. Student Conductor Alan Johnson was director in the fall term, and in the spring term Armand Schwartz took over the baton.

Not only does the band play at all the rallies and games, but it puts on band concerts in the auditorium. Among the talented musicians were several outstanding soloists.

College of the Pacific in Stockton was the scene of the Festival of Music held on February 4. A group of instrumentalists from the band attended to represent Lowell in this big affair.

ADVANCED CHOIR

Lowell's advanced choir director, Mr. S. Berry, retired with the ending of the fall term. After being at Lowell for so many years his choir students were sorry to see him go.

Mr. Bernard who came from Balboa took over Mr. Berry's position as choir director.

On December 13 the choir sang at The Emporium and also appeared in the 1955 Varieties. A group of 14 went to the Festival of Music in Stockton and represented Lowell in a huge chorus, directed by the well-known Roger Wagner.

One of Lowell's traditions is the choir singing at graduation. It is an experience long remembered by both graduates and choir members.

ROTC REGIMENTAL STAFF
 Charles Andrews, Peter Belmont, David Rosen

Under the capable supervision of Sergeant First Class John Potts, the Lowell battalion has successfully completed another banner term this spring 1956.

The commander of the unit, Major Robert Dawson, made sure that the fine traditions and uphodings of Lowell's ROTC remained steadfast for another eventful semester. Adjutant Kenneth Jenkins was also a valuable help in the many activities that once again proved that Lowell has some of the most precisioned soldiers of any San Francisco high school.

Company commanders for the spring were Captain John Richter of A Company, Captain Carl Berry of B Company, and Captain Danial Buttolph of C Company.

The entire battalion received high honors for its excellent showing in the St. Patrick's Day Parade and received many favorable comments for the many other drills and marches which they exhibited with ease and skill.

The Lowell

San Francisco's oldest high school newspaper, The Lowell, had a very successful year. Under the capable editors, Marilyn Levy in the fall term, and Sue Figel in the spring term, the paper continued the traditional items as well as adding many new and interesting features.

Assisting Marilyn as associate editor was Carole Morrison. Bob Lom was the sports editor in the fall term and the page editors were Emery Ottey, Suzy Lindner and Sue Figel.

Bruce Cohn, the associate editor, assisted Sue along with Jon Tolson as sports editor and Sharon Deming, Joni Horowitz and Phyllis Gurvitz as page editors.

This bi-monthly paper was founded in 1898 and all through the past 58 years it has kept abreast with the times.

RED AND WHITE STAFF — FALL

Row two: Mr. Buckley, Sue Barnard, Yvonne Dandy, Roz Perry, Joyce Richards, David Green.

Both the fall and spring Red and White staffs have worked very diligently this past term. Since this year is Lowell's centennial, the editor and her associates decided to bring you this 100-year book commemorating Lowell's past.

This yearbook is the largest book any high school has ever produced and the members of the staff are very proud of it. We hope that you readers will appreciate all of our endeavors and be as boastful of it as we are.

Gwen Davis was the editor of both the fall and spring terms and her associate for the fall term was Rosslyn Perry and in the spring Barbara Texiera. Besides her job as editor, Gwen performed all of the art work in this yearbook.

Carole Gold and Joan Mendelson took care of the financial end of the yearbook, while Anita Washington and Yvonne Dandy made up the senior section. The activities editors were Joyce Richards and Barbara Texiera and the copy editor was Judy Nakamoto.

Covering the sports in the fall was Bob Stewart and in the spring Richard Soward was the very capable sports editor.

One of the most active Junior Red Cross chapters in San Francisco is the Lowell chapter. They participate in many worthwhile activities on local, national, and world-wide levels.

They make tray favors, wall hangings, and nut and candy cups to give to the San Francisco hospitals for all the holidays. Entertainment is provided for the hospitals. Wall hangings are made for the USO groups in San Francisco.

On the national level, their activities include sending hogan kits to the Navajos and contributing articles to the National Journal of the Junior Red Cross. Money is collected each March in the annual membership drive to the Red Cross.

Better relationships are developed when the Junior Red Cross sends scrap books and gifts to schools abroad. Illustrated class work is sent to the Eskimos and samples of art work and tape-recorded music is sent to foreign schools.

The leaders of this energetic group in the fall of '55 were Charles McClure, president; Diane Sachs, vice president; Joan Tuhtan, secretary; and Norma Ivelich, treasurer.

Judy Levetin is president this spring with Joan Tuhtan assisting her as vice president. Mary Ann Lee is secretary and Norma Ivelich is treasurer.

NATIONAL RED CROSS

Bank of America Awards

BANK OF AMERICA AWARDS

The basic purpose of the Achievement Awards Program is to stimulate and encourage high school students in their academic, vocational and citizenship training.

Six thousand Awards consisting of certificates, trophy cups, ribbons and $44,900 in cash awards was presented in the spring of this year to outstanding seniors in recognition of scholastic attainment and participation in school and community activities.

The Final Selection Committee is composed of seven outstanding citizens, representative of the area under the chairmanship of a prominent educator who doesn't vote.

The seven judges interview the finalists in a group and determine the amount of award each finalist will receive at the Achievement Day Dinner Program, Friday, May 18, 1956, in Sacramento, in the Empire Room of the Senator Hotel.

The three students from Lowell who were zone finalists were Peter Belmont, first place in Science and Mathematics; Joan Burton, first place in Liberal Arts; and, David Rosen, second place in Fine Arts.

CLOTHING DRIVE

A clothing drive was held in January to help victims of the flood. Miss Lorigan initiated the drive by placing a notice in the bulletin for unused clothes to donate to the Soroptimist drive for relief to flood victims. The results surpassed all expectations and the drive continued for over a week.

The clothes went to Klamath, the Russian River, and Sacramento. Later, Miss Lorigan received a letter of appreciation from the Soroptimists stating that the donations were gratefully received.

FORENSICS

Row one: S. Hone, T. Cummings, B. Goldman, M. Axelrad, M. A. Lee, D. Fernandez.
Row two: D. Blight, J. T. Carroll, C. Breyer, B. Gilman, L. Young, J. Mindlin. Row three: A. Werchich, R. Burton. Row four: S. Jacobs, D. Sachs, M. Rucka, L. Snaider, B.
Goldman.

During this year the Forensic Society has contributed much educational stimulus to Lowell—ranging from the pure speech forms to public discussions of controversial subjects.

The backbone of the forensic year is the tournaments held by schools throughout California, in which competitive speaking is carried on. Events on the agenda usually include debate, extemporaneous and impromptu speaking, oratory, and presentations of dramatic and humorous declamations, and oratorical speeches.

Besides the tournaments, many outside organizations hold speech contests; included is the Chinese Lions Club, in which Mary Ann Lee took first place; the Native Sons, in which Bill Goldman took second; and the American Legion, in which Mike Axelrad placed third.

Lowell High is a member of several national and local speech associations, the most important of them is the National Forensic League (N.F.L.), a national honor society of speech students, in which membership must be earned. Also, Lowell is a charter member of the Northern California High School Speech Association (N.C.H.S.S.A.), which is the sponsoring body for the Northern California tournaments. The third organization is the San Francisco Forensic Association, comprised of the San Francisco public and parochial schools.

This year's president is Bill Goldman, who automatically is president of the Lowell Chapter of N.F.L. and the N.C.H.S.S.A. Bill is also president of the S.F.F.A. Besides Bill, fall officers were Judy Biskind, vice-president; Tondi Cummings, secretary; and Vince Fernandez, treasurer. The spring officers were the same for president and treasurer, with Mike Axelrad, vice-president; and Mary Ann Lee, secretary.

Wins Many Honors

Since the retirement of Mr. George Lorbeer, veteran coach, the sponsor and advisor has been Mr. Jack Anderson.

The most important of the aspects concerning the Forensic Society are the wide variety of programs it sponsors. For instance, earlier this year the society sent the Lowell delegation to the regional meeting of the Conference of Christians and Jews, and, just recently, sent three delegations representing countries to the Model United Nations at the University of California. The program of the Forensic Society is both enjoyable and educational.

In the field of awards, Lowell has always been a winner—this year's honors included the debate championship at Stanford, won by Bill Goldman and Arne Werchick, the "Sweepstakes" award for the top school at the Lincoln High School Tournament, best school at the Model U.N. at the University of California, only Northern California high school invited to the University of Southern California invitational tournament, fourth place in extemp at State finals, and many others.

Presently there are forty members training and participating, twenty-five who regularly compete in statewide competition. Lowell can claim not only many of the best speakers in California, but the largest extracurricular speech association in California. Some of the top speakers this year were Bill Goldman, Arne Werchick, Mike Axelrad, Mary Ann Lee, and Vince Fernandez. Others who competed regularly were Joey Mindlin, Ken Bley, Bonnie Goldman, Mary Wade, Brenda Gilman, Valerie Dong, Diane Sachs, Leonard Snider, Mike Rucka, Charles McClure, Steve Jacobs, Steve Hone, Tondi Cummings, Judie Biskind, Stan Jackson, Phil Crosby, Alan Lerch, Alan May, and Chucky Breyer.

The Lowell Forensic Society is open to any student, providing an abundance of enjoyment, and also educational opportunity.

Twelve high senior girls participated in a dessert-luncheon and fashion show sponsored by the PTA on November 29, 1955. The girls modeled styles of the past 100 years in the fashion show, "Then and Now." Clothes of years gone by, which were loaned to the models by grandparents and great-grandparents, were contrasted to the present styles which were the models' own clothes.

The girls were divided into various categories, each portraying a different period of time and different fashions. Groups ranged from Civil War days to the Miss Lowellite of the future.

The money raised at this dessert-luncheon was to be used by the PTA for its Lowell fund. This proved to be a very successful affair because it allowed Lowellite to be of assistance to the PTA which, in turn, was able to raise money to help the school.

The Science Fair

LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL ENTRIES IN THE SCIENCE FAIR AT GOLDEN GATE PARK.

The six Lowell students who entered the annual San Francisco Bay Area Science Fair held at the California Academy of Sciences in Golden Gate Park were, bottom row: Jim Lawrey, who showed a new method of mounting crustaceans without formalin solution, and Perry Trosper, whose exhibit was effects of bleach on hair.

Varieties and Progress Parade

Once again, under the expert direction of Mr. Polland, the Winter Varieties were a tremendous success. The Varieties were given on November 18, 21, and 23 to sell-out crowds.

The outstanding skits included "The One Woman in The World," "Adventure," "The Great White Sale," "On The Lot," "The Municipal Davenport," "The Lion Tamer," "Caught In The Act," and "Buying A Hat."

The cast included William Hearne, Tom Caylor, Pat Jacobi, Judy Freed, Bob Dawson, Dick Anderson, Ross Shoaf, Barbara Baker, Lenore Kay, Arnell Shows, Mike Larson, Robert Rowe, Joelle Rosen, Sue Warner, Charles Breyer, and Jackie Edelstein. They all did a terrific job.

Mr. Krieger's fine orchestra played selections including "Fiddle-Fiddle" and "Sandpaper Ballet." The Lowell choir under the able direction of Mr. Berry sang a fine selection of Christmas carols.

Solos were presented by Carol Aizenberg, Robert Hall, Mary Stallings, Lillian Gardner, Raymond Cauwet, Carol Leeds, Myrna Molinar, Russ Cantor. Other numbers included Armand Schwartz, Neil Pace, John Marks, Sally Hough, Manny Goldman, Eddie Jackson, Richard Price, Jackie Edelstein, Margaret Barton, Lea Malfanti, Diane Doyle, and Diane Sachs.

A few senior boys presented a dance directed by Miss Mensing entitled "Morning." They were Peter Belmont, Jim Nolan, Kevin Harrington, Guy Erb, Al Johnson, Al Clark, Jim Weinberger, John Debenham, Al Katsuyama, Tom Caylor, Terry Stephens, and Jeff Benninger.

The Lowellettes: Carol Aizenberg, Audrey Bocek, Anita Washington, Jane Vargo, Dorina Taylor, Sue Warner, Lee Labe, Karen Guthertz, and Elaine Klein, also did two numbers for the show.

The finale was composed of the Big Sisters and Big Brothers who presented a very delightful skit entitled "Going Home For Christmas." It was composed and directed by Mr. Anino.

Lowell played an important part in the Festival of Progress parade, which took place on Sunday, April 22 along Market Street. The purpose of the parade was to show the regrowth of San Francisco since the earthquake and fire of 1906.

Lowell contributed the largest unit in the parade. The float was effectively done, showing the need for a new school. The float was made of 15,000 crepe flowers. A red brick schoolhouse was on top with several Lowell students. The float was also publicizing the centennial year of the school.

In the lead car of the Lowell unit were the student body officers, followed by the oldest alumnus and youngest present student. They were Samuel Sonnenberg, 93 years old, from the class of 1880, and David Lindt, 13 years old, class of 1959.

Then came the color guard along with the ROTC drill team. Following them were the drum majorettes marching in front of the song leaders.

The band and drum corps came next. They proceeded an 1856 surrey, and two 1906 tandem bicycles. To show the difference in times, a 1926 car with students dressed in appropriate clothes for that time and a 1956 car in which the senior class officers were paraded. The float ended Lowell's entry in the parade.

Lowellites were pleased when the judging was announced and the float took second prize, $250, drawing more attention to the centennial year.

Much credit is due to Gxana Rudenko who drew the preliminary designs of the float and also to Mr. James Livingstone, who was in charge of the committee.

The float cost $200 and was built and paid for by money from student activities, and donations from students. In all, there were over 500 students and teachers who actively participated in preparing for the parade.

Lowell is proud of the work they did.

NEWCOMER'S RECEPTION

Row one: Shield girl Sally Ann Hough leading the Bunny Hop. Roberta Spivock and Terry Stephens joining in on the dance. Big Brother Fred Becker dancing with a newcomer girl. Row two: Shield girl Joan Burton dancing with a newcomer boy. Band leader Armand Schwartz giving his band members a few instructions. The band in action playing one of its best numbers. Row three: An ROTC officer dancing with newcomer Mimi Frazer. Three ROTC officers resting after dancing the Bunny Hop. Shield girl Sondra Snow taking part in the Bunny Hop dance with newcomer boys.

The spring Newcomers' Reception presented by the Shield and L and Scroll and L introduced many new Lowellites to their classmates and the traditions of Lowell. Barbara Bates, acting as Shield chief, and Terry Stephens as Scroll chief, directed the program. The entire production revolved around an Indian theme. With Richard Price and his guitar, the audience was led in group singing. Comic dances and a pantomime followed. A high spot of the program was a "fashion" show by the Shield members, which featured clothes worn from the first days of Lowell in 1856 until the present, 1956.

The program was followed by a get-together in the Armory. With the aid of a terrific quartette from the Lowell band, a lively jam session was in progress when the bell rang ending an exciting day for many new students.

Busy Term for Rally

FALL DANCE COMMITTEE

Under the sponsorship of Miss Dealtry the fall dance committee planned three successful dances, which included "The Foot-Ball," "Gone Fishin'," and "Frosty's Frolic." The members planned the themes, the interesting tallies, and the eye-catching decorations.

The members of the fall dance committee included Carol Melmon, Penny Black, Audrey Bocek, Pete Carr, Pat Clark, Diana DeMun, Suzan Ferroggiaro, John Kiil, Mike Kuhn, Idele Levy, Mike Mattson, Larry Miller, Jim Nolan, Marty Pyle, Joyce Richards, Audrey Schwartz, Ross Shoaf, Roberta Spivock, Pete Williams, and Thom Yasukochi.

The cooperation between the members is an essential part of the dance committee and through their helpful and eager efforts all the dances were a great success and enjoyed by everyone.

RALLIES

Rallies this term were better than ever. Under the leadership of Mr. Anino, who returned from Europe after a leave of absence of one year, the rallies were planned by the student body officers and the rally committee.

The members of the committee consists of Brenda Enmeier, Ross Shoaf, Shirley Hong, Kit Cole, Sylvia Nelson, Mimi Marx, Rhoda Cohn, Dan Nolan, Marilyn Braverman, Mike Axelrad, and Chuck Breyer.

The spirit at the rallies was up to the usual high standards, and during the term, at one of the big game rallies, Lowell was visited by Ketty Frierson, from the Purple Onion, who sang several numbers.

This term's cheer leaders introduced their new centennial sweaters and also new yells. The most popular yell was titled "Charlie's Indian." At the S.I. game a new type rooting section was organized. Everybody wore white and the students were arranged in rows according to their class.

Certainly the 1956 cheer leaders and rally committee did an outstanding job.

STUDENT BODY DANCE COMMITTEE

The Student Body Dance Committee of the past term had a busy schedule planning the great school dances. Under the able direction of Mr. Anino, the faculty sponsor, and Sylvia Nelson, committee chairman, the dance committee worked their utmost to make the dances successful.

A new plan was tried for the first time at Lowell.

Each dance was sponsored by the dance committee and a school club. Some of the organizations that sponsored the dances during the spring term were the CSF Block L, Big Sisters and Big Brothers, and the Lowell 12 activities committee.

The members of the dance committee were Bob Moore, Sylvia Nelson, Janice Driscoll, Russ Janigian, Tony Patch, Rich Guggenhime, Nan Krutchkoff, and Susie Bates.

Students Gain Work Experience

By Helping Out in Offices

The offices at Lowell are very active places. Many students work in them instead of taking a study period.

The attendance office workers, under the direction of Mrs. Cahen, make up and take around the attendance bulletin, check reasons for students' absence, and mimeograph various notices.

The main office is always the scene of much activity. Miss Harrison and her staff of three students per period are kept busy filing, answering telephones, delivering messages and working the newly installed switchboard.

Room 142, the counseling office, is headed by Mrs. Goldsmith and Mr. Karpenstein who use a staff of students to help them keep up the permanent record file and various other jobs.

Dr. Smith's and Miss Lorigan's office also make use of many students who aid them in discharging such duties as answering telephones, greeting visitors, and maintaining files.

Students who work in Mrs. Kendall's office learn how to operate the mimeograph machine and the duplicator. The daily bulletins and special notices are run off in the office.

The girls gym department uses two girls each period to lock up the dressing rooms, give out balls and play the phonograph for folk dancers. Many students work in the library each period checking out books, shelving, and keeping the library in good order. The bookroom also takes some students each period to give out books, load and unload new shipments and various other tasks.

Students like to work in the various offices because they feel that, along with helping to keep the daily routine operating smoothly, they are getting experience in office management.

Curriculum

The general curriculum at Lowell High School consists mainly of courses which will prepare students for college. Lowell sends about 90 per cent of its graduates on to college each term.

For a century Lowell students have had the advantages of fine educational and social programs. When entering Lowell as a freshman, each pupil is given a counselor to guide and advise him through his four years. Mr. Henry Karpenstein heads the counseling department and under him are assistant counselors and grade counselors who are always willing to give a helping hand.

Lowell's English department, headed by Mr. Samuel Polland, offers six courses in English, which are required for graduation, and eight electives.

Miss Aurelia Osuna heads the foreign language department. Four years of work is offered in each of the four languages.

At the head of the social studies department is Mr. Ray Milton. This department offers nine fields of study.

The mathematics department is headed by Mr. Ivar Barker. Seven fields of study are offered by this department.

The science department, headed by Miss Dealtry, makes available an excellent choice of interesting courses. The courses offered are chemistry, biology, physics, and physiology.

All students must take four years of physical education or boys may take ROTC. The physical education department is headed by Miss Dorothy Flynn and Mr. Ben Neff.

Although Lowell is an academic high school, it also offers one year of shorthand and one year of typewriting. Lowell's curriculum also includes courses in art and music.

ORAL ENGLISH CLASS

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

There are many courses offered at Lowell in the field of English. Included are English I through VI, dramatics, journalism, oral English, advanced composition, contemporary literature, prose fiction, and poetry.

English I to IV deal with grammar, the first phases of composition, and an introduction to literature.

English V has the corresponding name of American literature, since it deals mostly with American authors and their writings.

English VI has the corresponding name of English literature and it deals mostly with English authors and their works.

Oral English is the study of how to compose speeches and how to present them to audiences.

Advanced composition prepares the student to take college board examinations and also to write and organize compositions.

All these courses give the students a good foundation in English and prepare them for their college careers.

SOCIAL STUDIES DEPARTMENT

The social studies department of Lowell is composed of several sections, with Mr. Raymond Milton as head of the department.

Social studies is devoted to a study of Europe, Asia, and the peoples of the Pacific. World history reveals a study of the world from prehistoric times up through the ages. United States history begins with the European background of our nation and continues through the various phases of American development up to the present. Senior civics entails a study in the American government and the problems of a growing democracy. Economic geography is a study of economic resources and world trade, with particular emphasis on the United States. Economics is an outline of economic principles designed to build a vocabulary of economic terms. California history includes the Spanish period of dominancy and the early days of American occupancy up to the present time. English history begins with pre-historic Britain and continues up to the present day.

The student drivers are Zeeva Zaretsky, Lynn Vlautin, and Frances Ludlow.

Panel Discussion in Mr. Fast's class included Anita Axt, Steve Dimond, Lorelle Cohn, John Hare.

BIOLOGY CLASSES

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

The foreign language department head is Miss A. M. Osuna. Its purpose is to enable students to learn the use of a foreign language.

The languages taught here at Lowell include French, German, Latin, and Spanish. Each language offers eight semesters of instruction.

The first two years of any of the languages is devoted mostly to vocabulary, grammar, and the correct use of words. The remaining two years emphasize the fluent use and understanding of the language.

In the spring there is usually a language contest, which the students may enter. This gives the students an opportunity to actually use the language and to gain experience.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

In the field of science at Lowell there are four courses offered. These courses are biology, chemistry, physics, and physiology. They are all taught as college preparatory courses.

Biology is the study of plant and animal life. The students inspect different articles in the animal and vegetable worlds.

Chemistry is taught as a laboratory science. The students conduct their own experiments, plus occasional demonstrations by the teacher.

Physics is the study of energy. The students conduct experiments with different electrical devices. This course includes some phases of atomic energy.

Physiology is the study of human anatomy. The students study the complete anatomy of the human being.

SPANISH CLASS

Members of Mr. Anino's Spanish class study the history of Spain and Latin America, along with their language lessons.

Students at work in Mr. McCord's mechanical drawing class.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

Mr. O. H. McCord, head of the mechanical drawing department, has helped many students interested in drawing or engineering prepare for college.

To pass this course a pupil must have a knowledge of correct lettering and be able to draw many views of one subject.

Among the tools required are a T-square used in place of a ruler, a scale for measuring inches accurately, a forty-five degree angle, a thirty-sixty degree angle, a light, fine pointed pencil and eraser, and finally, a darker lead pencil used to darken plates, making it complete and ready for correction.

After completing this subject, a student should have a thorough knowledge of equal dimensions and how to draw any objects.

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

Under the direction of Mr. Barker, Lowell's mathematics department works hard to prepare students to meet college requirements in mathematics. The department is large because two-thirds of Lowell's students are enrolled in math courses.

The courses offered are general math, algebra, geometry, advanced algebra II, descriptive geometry, solid geometry, calculus, and a math seminar which was just instituted this year.

Lowell has had some very fine math students. They have taken four first awards since 1951 in the Bank of America awards and seven honorable mentions in the Westinghouse Talent Search contest. Students who are eligible may also take the Stanford competitive math exam and Math Association of America test.

First scene: A seminar mathematics class. Students working to solve a difficult problem.

CRAFT CLASS

Seen working in a craft class are Oxana Rudenko, Gerry Rankin, Sharon Lax, John Hare.

ART DEPARTMENT

Lowell's art department offers students a well organized art curriculum. The available courses include drawing, crafts, design, costume design, commercial art, and advanced art.

For students interested in watercolor, sketching, and oil painting, drawing and advanced art are useful in helping them to create various types of techniques.

In design, students acquire the knowledge of complimentary colors and its use in the organization of designs. Textiles and ceramics are offered to students taking crafts, which teaches them skilled craftsmanship.

Girls interested in designing clothes will find that costume design trains them to study different fashions of dress design. Commercial art students devote much of their time to making posters. Brush lettering still is required in this course to produce an effective poster.

Each art course is creative and imaginative, enabling students to produce individualistic work.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

The business department at Lowell High School offers one year of typing and one year of shorthand. The skill obtained in these courses is helpful to all students, whether they plan to go into the business world or on to college after graduation.

Typing enables students to prepare assignments neatly and rapidly. Proficiency tests are given to typing students and are recorded for reference if employers wish to know the ability of a future employee.

Shorthand helps students with spelling and is useful in taking notes. This course offers a good foundation for those who intend to go on to secretarial school after they graduate from high school.

Both these courses have given students enough knowledge in shorthand and typing that many have obtained part-time jobs while going to school. This helps not only financially, but also helps young people to learn something of the business world while getting their education.

TYPING II CLASS

Seen in a typing II class are Carol Heaney, Alice Tong, Cynthia Nickelson, Ronny Hormiez, Pat Rile, Linda Yatabe, Diane Petersen, Frank Buckley, Tim Curtis, Judy Edgeman, Donna Sarin, Sally O'Connell, Armeka Jackson, Shirley Ramsey, Michael Rogerson.

MR. KRIEGER CONDUCTS HIS INSTRUMENTAL CLASS.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

From eight o'clock in the morning to the end of sixth period, Mr. Krieger's music department instructs students in playing musical instruments. The classes taught are beginning instruments, intermediate instruments, advanced band, and orchestra. Students interested in singing may take beginning, intermediate, and advanced choir.

The band and orchestra play for many occasions—football and basketball games, parades and graduations, term plays, and the varieties to name a few. The choir also sings for graduation, in addition to numerous concerts, this year including one at The Emporium.

A big event every year is the Music Festival. Students form ensembles, quartets, and duets to be rated by judges. Dave Rosen, a music major, took second place in the Bank of America awards in the field of fine arts.

PE AND ROTC

The physical education department is a very important part of Lowell's curriculum. Every girl in Lowell is required to take PE for the full four years. The boys are given a choice of taking either ROTC or PE, but they also are required to participate for four years.

The girls' physical education department is headed by Miss D. Flynn. The PE sports offered to the girls include volleyball, ping-pong, kickball, softball, and folk dancing. Once a week the girls are required to have hygiene.

The boys' PE department is under the direction of Mr. Ben Neff. The boys taking PE may enter in inter-class or inter-school team competition.

The ROTC, another department of Lowell's curriculum, is supervised by Sergeant First Class John Potts.

THE GIRLS' GYM IS A CROWDED, ACTIVE PLACE.

Girls' Athletic Association

Girls' Athletic Association

The Girls' Athletic Association, better known as the GAA, offers all girls an opportunity to participate in nine different sports. The sports are under the capable sponsorship of the gym teachers. By joining this organization, the girls are able to make new friends and are able to keep their healthy figures.

If the girls take a sport for three years they become members of the Block L. After four years or eight terms of taking sports, the girls in their high senior year are awarded the highest award one can obtain in the GAA—the gold L pin.

Bowling meets every Monday and Wednesday under the sponsorship of Mrs. Smith. Also on Wednesdays, volleyball and basketball or softball meet under Miss Flynn's guidance. The girls who participate in horseback riding get together every Tuesday and Thursday with their sponsor, Miss Sink. Tennis, with Miss Flynn, and swimming, under Mrs. Cain's guidance, meet on Mondays. With their sponsor, Miss Boehm, the girls who take modern dancing get together on Mondays and Tuesdays. Every Monday the girls who enjoy ice skating meet with Mrs. Smith.

Each sport functions with the help of sport managers. The following were the managers: Bowling, Joyce Robbins and Sue Ginsberg; volleyball, Dorothy Jones and Mariko Soma; softball and basketball, Arlene Chew and Charlotte Lee; modern dancing, Carol Leeds and Lea Malfanti; horseback riding, Sue Herlick and Nancy Leach; tennis, Marilyn Munter and Sandy Dickey; swimming, Sharon Deming and Pat Marquis; and ice skating, Diane Doyle and Anne Merritt.

The GAA officers for the fall term of 1955 were President Joanne Davies, Secretary Terry Yasukochi, and Clerk of Awards Jerrell Jacobs. The spring term officers were Dorothy Jones, president, and Sharon Deming, secretary.

SPORTS

AAA PAGEANT LOWELL 6—SACRED HEART 0

Halfback Bob Oddone scored the abbreviated game's only touchdown, after latching on to a bad pitchout from quarterback Bob Lom and galloping 88 yards to the end zone.

LOWELL 26—MISSION 7

Looking like some of the powerful teams of old, Lowell swept past the befuddled 1954 champs in its first league game of the season. Mission, fresh from a defeat at the hands of Washington one week earlier, entered the stadium almost fighting mad, but nevertheless could not hold down the somewhat heavier Indians.

Quarterback Bob Lom steered the team to three of the touchdowns, taking advantage of Lowell's split-T formation for steady gains from bucks, sweeps, and short passes.

Mission knotted up the contest at 7-7 just before half time, however, on an 18-yard pass from Bob Higginbotham to Vern Ferguson, and the game wasn't put on ice until Lowell again scored in the third quarter.

LOWELL 7—LINCOLN 34

Lowell entered its second game fighting and eager for a playoff berth, but failed to stop the hog-wild and hustling Mustangs. Most of the damage was done on the ground, with the Lincoln team pounding Lowell's line for 399 yards. Stan Glass, Link halfback, gathered 173 yards by himself and scored twice.

The Indians' only touchdown came in the second quarter, when Eric Mackintosh broke through from six yards out, shortly after he had taken a 19-yard pass from Phil Sevier on a fake punt play.

Two Lincoln end zone pushes were turned back in the third quarter. The first was foiled when Tom Yasukochi intercepted Art Von Wronski's pass on the Lowell three; the other time Glass fumbled on the four.

LOWELL 28—SACRED HEART 24

Lowell managed to top a spirited but insufficient Sacred Heart team late in the game, turning the trick on four one-pointers neatly kicked by Tom Yasukochi.

Sacred Heart blazed away in the first few minutes, grabbing a loose ball on the kickoff to Lowell and taking the ball on the 12-yard line. Arnold then went over for the tally.

Lowell's first score was set up on a blocked punt, Sevier running to the TD after three plays. The remaining three were a result of a Lom-to-Oddone, a Sevier-to-Mattson, and a Lom one-yard QB sneak.

LOWELL 20—ST. IGNATIUS 0

Lowell entered its third victory of the season in the books, scoring three TDs on marches of 81, 76, and 70 yards. Combining the drive of powerful back Eric Mackintosh and the passing and faking of field general Bobby Lom, the Indians hammered their way through the Wildcat defense in their most decisive conquest thus far.

LOWELL 13—POLY 33

Poly remained undefeated against Lowell for its 13th straight contest, despite the fact that the two teams entered the traditional on at least even terms. Although fighting hard and hustling all the way, never for an instant did the Indians even scare their somewhat sturdier opponents.

The Parrots went ahead for keeps after only three minutes of play in the first quarter, on Bob Stone's 34-yard pass to Roosevelt Taylor. The next came in the second quarter, after Poly recovered a fumble on the Lowell 43 and passed to a TD, and from there on it was Poly all the way.

Bobby Lom again engineered all of Lowell's scoring, moving the Indians deep into Poly territory on passes to set up Eric Mackintosh's 6-yard run in the third quarter, and a 27-yard pass to Walt Keough in the fourth.

LOWELL 20—WASHINGTON 18

Tom Yasukochi's deadly aim on the goal posts again proved the margin of victory, as he and his mates struggled to top the scrappy Eagles in the final period. Tom booted the two telling one-pointers on three attempts.

After Oddone had already taken the ball over for a TD once, Jim Nolan snagged a stray Washington pass and romped 28 yards with only seconds to play in the first half. The third tally came when Lowell drove 70 yards, climaxing with a 14-yard Lom to Sevier pass.

LOWELL 14—GALILEO 31

After coming through in winning colors in most of their tough ones, the Indians were humiliated by one of the weakest teams in the league, 31-14. Most of the damage was done on interceptions, the Lions swiping five from Bob Lom, three of which led to scores.

Lowell's only two TDs came through Lom's heaves, however, the first on an Oddone reception in the second quarter, the second on a Kettleson catch in the fourth period. Tom Yasukochi kicked both extra points.

LOWELL 7—BALBOA 28

Although a first division contender at the beginning of the season, Lowell faded badly in the home stretch and wound up beaten badly by their final opponents.

SEMI-FINALS

LOWELL 13—POLY 39

Revengeful but outmanned, Lowell made a futile assault on Poly in the semi-finals, with the Parrots, incidentally, going on to take the AAA championship from Balboa.

Leading at half time by the bare margin of a conversion, the Indians faded in the final half. Poly continued to pound at the line and work the aericals relentlessly, putting together enough tallies to not only top the Cards, but bring them to their knees.

Quarterback Al Clark did brilliant work, working the ball into Poly territory for Lowell's first score, Lom eventually taking it five yards to pay dirt. The Cards' first score came on a 10-yard run by Bob Oddone.

THE MANAGERS

The junior varsity footballers finished fifth in league competition, losing only to Lincoln, St. Ignatius, and Galileo, while tying Poly in a game which saw two touchdowns and conversions in the last four minutes when Poly was leading 20-6.

This was typical of the type of hustle the future varsity members displayed. Coach Milton commented that his squad had perhaps the best passing attack in the league, Randall Garrison to Tony Patch and Bert Ponig (it was Garrison, incidentally, who heaved the two telling touchdown passes mentioned above).

Also worthy of mention are John Bootes (fullback), Tony Ellis (center), and Carl Jackson (guard).

FROSH-SOPH FOOTBALL

Although the frosh-soph football team was rained out half of their schedule, they managed to put in three spirited battles against Lincoln, Sacred Heart, and Balboa. The scores, respectively, were 33-7, 12-0, and 25-13, Lowell being on the short end of all three.

Coach Bob Buckley attributes the bad showing to an injured backfield, which was continually cut down all season by sprained ankles and other mishaps. The line, however, was considerably better.

Bill Cobb (center), Frank Halldorson (end), Dick Lindsley (tackle), and Ben Pope (guard) were particularly promising.

Soccer Team Places Fourth

The soccer team, rarely a winning group at Lowell, ended a fairly successful season in a tie for fourth place with the Balboa Buccaneers. The Bucs, however, were awarded the play-off berth as they had previously defeated the Redmen in regular season play.

The death knell sounded for the booters in the concluding game of the season when the Indians could do no better than a scoreless tie with arch-rival Polytechnic. A win over the Parrots would have insured the Redmen sole possession of fourth place as the Balboans had previously terminated their schedule and could not improve their ranking.

On the credit side of their record the Lowells boast a victory over a highly rated contingent from Washington, who fell by a 2-1 margin. Lincoln was also among the booters' victims and succumbed, 2-0, while St. Ignatius was convincingly waxed by a 4-2 score.

A hard-charging Mission eleven edged the Cards, 1-0, in a bitter and hard fought contest. The Indians threatened throughout the game but failed to register on the scoreboard.

The aforementioned Polytechnics managed the heart-breaking tie as did Galileo, 1-1. The bitterest pill to swallow was the 2-0 defeat suffered at the hands of Balboa

Cross Country Wins Eleven Straight

Featuring some of the finest runners in recent years, the Lowell harriers galloped their way to eleven straight victories, only to be nosed out in the All-City tournament by Washington, 45-50.

Ed Chavez turned in first-place performances in every race he ran in, except the one mentioned above, which he lost because, according to Coach Barney

Wolf, he thought he had already finished when John Hammond skipped past him.

In the Northern California championship at Palo Alto, Lowell finished third. Ed Chavez ran the 1.95 mile Stanford Golf Club course in 10:17, which incidentally was four seconds better than John Hammond's time.

Fair Season for Lightweights

The Lowell lightweight basketball teams had moderately successful seasons this year, giving their opponents consistently hard and spirited fights. Two Indians were voted All-City, Dennis Hess (120's) and Eddie Jackson (110's).

The 110's were defeated only by St. Ignatius, while the 120's met defeat at the hands of five of their eight opponents.

Some of the outstanding members of the squads were Hess, Eddie Shaskan, Lloyd Simi (120's); Reggie Tendell, Rickey Colsky, Jackson (110's).

The 130's were hard hit when Neil Urano and Rich Hudson failed to make the weight. Starting out on a sad note, the 30's lost to Mission, 41-35. Next came the Washington tilt. The Eaglets ripped the defending champions to shreds, 60-23.

Then came the exciting but disappointing game with S.H. Lowell's 30's stooped to a convincing 41-29 defeat. In their fourth game of the season Lincoln prevailed, waxing Lowell 46-28. Bob Oddone again gained high-point honor, while George Wilson, Leo Martinez and "Bucky" Reed tied for second in scoring.

In their best game of the year the 30's beat Galileo, 53-38. Paced by Bob Oddone's 14 points, and the driving "Bucky" Reed, the team led all the way to win their first game of the season.

Lowell's 30's started rolling in their sixth game by scoring a convincing victory over Balboa, 45-34. Bob Oddone and "Bucky" Reed led their mates by scoring 12 points, while George Dagnino and Leo Martinez followed close behind.

The Lowell 30's gave Poly quite a tussle before losing to the Parrots, 49-45. The game could have gone either way. Pete Williams led the Indians with 15 tallies, followed by "Bucky" Reed, Bob Oddone, Leo Martinez, Magnus Nagase, and Vance Strange.

The Lowell 30's ended their basketball season on a bright note by beating Saint Ignatius, 51-37. Unexpectedly the Little Indians walked over the "Cats." Bucky Reed led with 15 tallies while Bob Oddone, George Dagnino, Pete Williams, and Magnus Nagase followed respectively. Others in on the kill were Leo Martinez, Vance Strange, Darryl L. Kaplan, George Wilson, and Josh Eppinger.

LOWELL 33—MISSION 26

Lowell inaugurated the 1955-56 cage season with a 33-26 triumph over defense-minded Mission at Kezar Pavilion.

The Missions content with a strong ball-control game froze the casaba during the earlier moments of the initial stanza. With 2:20 minutes gone in the quarter, Lowell got their hands on the ball for the first time and Tom Meschery promptly tanked a 20-footer to give the Indians a lead which they never relinquished.

LOWELL 49—WASHINGTON 44

The Neffmen overcame a cold first half and squeezed by Washington, 49-44, in a thriller at Kezar Pavilion.

An outstanding 23-point performance by Tom Meschery, as well as the dominance of both backboards by the Lowell whiz, pulled the game out of the fire for the Redskins.

LOWELL 51—LINCOLN 33

The Lowell cagers prevailed over an ambitious Abraham Lincoln quintet, 51-33, at Kezar Pavilion.

Although trailing at the half, 16-20, the Indian big guns—Tom Meschery, Ken Balling, and Jim Caranica—finally zeroed in on the Links' basket and unerringly sank shot after shot to virtually sweep their hapless adversaries off the court.

Balance in their attack was the Redskins' main advantage as high point man Jim Caranica copped 12 markers, followed closely by Meschery with 10, and Balling with eight.

LOWELL 55—SACRED HEART 39

The Lowell Indians continued their victorious ways with a 55-39 rout of the Sacred Heart Irish at Kezar Pavilion.

Enjoying a large lead early in the game, Coach Benny Neff mercifully called off the starters and swept the bench in the second stanza.

Ken Balling left the court for the last time in an Indian uniform halfway in the third period; he topped all scorers with 18 markers. Teammate Tom Meschery retired with 16 digits, 10 of them garnered in the third quarter.

LOWELL 66—GALILEO 42

A well balanced Lowell quintet overwhelmed the Galileo Lions, 66-42, at Kezar Pavilion.

All-City forward Tom Meschery led the scoring with 20 markers while three other Indians tallied in double figures.

The outmanned Galileans were never in the contest as the classy Redshirts swept to their fifth consecutive triumph over AAA opponents.

LOWELL 42—BALBOA 28

The victorious Indians continued their winning ways with a surprisingly easy 44-28 triumph over the Balboa Buccaneers at C.C.S.F. gym.

The game was expected to be a severe test for the Red machine who had lost two starters to mid-term graduation. However, the Neffmen were never in trouble and won handily.

Tom Meschery, who scored 13 points, captured high point honors. Jim and Nick Caranica, Lowell's hustling guards, put on fine performances, each tallying 12 digits.

Forfeit Ends Championship Hopes

LOWELL 40—POLY 46

The sky-scraping Polytechnic Parrots knocked the high riding Indians from the ranks of the unbeaten with a 46-40 comeback victory at Kezar Pavilion.

Tom Meschery's unstoppable jump-shot which netted him 19 points led the Lowells to a 24-21 half-time lead over the Parrots. However, the surprising Parrots with their decisive height advantage dominated the second half.

The Redmen staged a rally of their own in the closing minutes to provide for a climactic finish. Jim Caranica tanked two charities to bring Lowell within two points of the victors at 40-42 with 50 seconds remaining in the game. Ten seconds later Jim unwittingly fouled Gene Womack who in turn sank his two free throws to ice the game for the Parrots.

LOWELL 28—ST. IGNATIUS 44

Led by prep phenom Fred LaCour, the S.I. Wildcats humbled Lowell with a stunning 44-28 victory at a jam-packed Kezar Pavilion.

S.I. maintained a commanding lead throughout and only in the opening quarter with the score knotted at 4-4 was Lowell respectably in the contest.

Tom Meschery, selected to this year's All-City quintet, rang up 15 markers but failed to contain "Fabulous Freddie" of the 'Cats, who led the scoring with 21 digits.

THE FORFEITS

On the eve before the S.I. crucial it was discovered by league officials and by Principal J. A. Perino that an ineligible player, Roy Collins, participated in three of Lowell's contests.

The officials ruled that the Indians forfeit the three games.

For the first time since 1947 Lowell has failed to attend the playoffs; the team ended the season with an official three won and five lost record, placing fifth in the final AAA standings.

Junior Varsity Baseball Team

The '56 season was a new one for Lowell baseball; it was the first year the newly organized J.V. baseball league was in operation. While Lowell's first team failed to be a serious championship threat, they managed to win two league contests, beating Washington and Lincoln.

The pitching assignments were handled by Ralph Miranda, Vance Strange, and Eldon McIrvin; the latter two also covered third base. Alternating catchers were Robert Lehmann and Dan Marble, while Paul Epp and Richard Locati played first and second base respectively. The short-stop was amply covered by Bob Anoda and the fielders were Bob Basso, Larry Feldman, Leo Hutkovsky, Alan Luck and Duarte Lopes. The team was managed by Dave McCormack and Paul Poling.

Mr. Buckley was the team's coach.

LOWELL 3 — LINCOLN 4

The Lincoln Mustangs edged the Lowell Indians 4-3 with a four run outburst in the fourth inning. The Links capitalized on two Redskin errors and two singles for their tallies.

Indian hurler Jerry Meador suffered the loss although pitching a creditable five-hitter. Meador also blasted a run scoring triple in the Indian half of the fourth.

Bob Curley's home run was a high spot of the game.

LOWELL 1 — SACRED HEART 7

In their second outing of the season the Lowell nine was solidly trounced 7-1 by defending champion Sacred Heart.

Although the victims managed but five safe blows off Tribe starting hurler Bri Lyttle, shaky support which included four miscues cost the Indians the game.

Lyttle accounted for the lone Lowell tally when he doubled and later scored in the fourth frame.

The Tribe managed six singles off Irish moundsman Alvarado who was credited with victory.

LOWELL 3 — MISSION 2

There was joy and dancing on Hayes Street as Lowell finally won an AAA baseball game.

The victims at the end of the long drought were the Mission Bears who succumbed to the Tribe for the first time since 1934.

Taking advantage of Mission boots and wildness on the part of Celaya, the losing pitcher, the Redskins struck for two tallies in the second inning. The highlight of that rally was a steal home by Stamos.

The Bears came back to equalize the score but the Tribe was not to be denied. In the fourth frame Tony Patch unloaded a might triple, scoring Meador for the deciding run.

LOWELL 3 — IGNATIUS 4

After winning one in a row, the Lowell Indians dropped a heartbreaking 4 to 3 decision to St. Ignatius.

Bri Lyttle, who suffered the defeat, handcuffed the Cats in the hits department, allowing but two safe blows. However, his own wildness betrayed him. He surrendered a pair of runs in the initial frame when he unleashed a wild pitch to top off a couple of free passes.

Going into the sixth inning with the score knotted at 3-3 Lyttle walked a man and then hit the next batter. Coach Drysdale promptly decided that that was all for the tiring hurler, and replaced him with Jerry Meador. Meador proceeded to walk in the winning run!

The Tribe provided a nine hit attack but were contained by the clutch-pitching of "Cat" Sullivan.

LOWELL 8 — POLY 9

In a wild, free scoring affair Poly out-tallied Lowell for a 9 to 8 decision.

The Tribe took advantage of a shaky Parrot defense and hurler Knope's wildness to scurry across the plate eight times on but three safeties.

Poly broke loose for nine blows, however it was the lack of an Indian defense that accounted for the defeat. Lowell committed seven errors.

LOWELL 1 — GALILEO 6

On May 9 the Lowell nine met the league leading Galileo Lions at Big Rec.

When the smoke and the dust had settled after the battle the Tribe found themselves on the short end of a 6-1 score.

The Indians, however, managed to avert a shutout in the last half of the sixth frame when Al Zelaya singled home Bob Curley from second. This run-producing single ended Lowell's scoring production for the day.

LOWELL 5 — WASHINGTON 0

Jerry Meador, stylish Lowell moundsman, hurled a brilliant four-hitter to shut out Washington 5-0.

Jerry Shobar provided the power with a prodigious clout, good for three bases, driving in a pair of runs to provide Meador with a cushion.

Meador's mates supported him defensively, for a change, handling all of their chances flawlessly.

Golfers Take Second Place

The Indian divoteers had a successful season this year as they managed to take second place. Comprising the six man team were Harvey Brody, Dick Canatela, Rich Shermano, Charlie Levin, Steve Abel, and Mike Tanzier.

The entire team was capable of shooting in the 70's and Harvey Brody and Dick Canatela were the best one-two punch in the A.A.A. league. Both of these boys averaged scores of 71 and 72 during the practice and regular season matches.

In practice matches the Indians met Riordan, Capuchino, and the Cal Frosh. They beat Riordan twice, Capuchino once, and lost a close match to the Cal Frosh, 14-13.

The regular season started with a sharp 6-3 win over the Lincoln Mustangs, who were considered to have one of the best teams in the league. Medalist of the day was Harvey Brody.

The next three matches included Balboa, Poly, and Mission, all of which the Indians won easily by scores of 9-0. The entire team looked good in these matches.

Lowell's only loss of the season came from Washington, 6½-2½. If it wasn't for the fact that the team fell behind at the start, the Indians might have pulled a victory. After the first five holes the entire team was down and they just fell short of a thrilling comeback.

Track and Field Teams

Lowell's '56 track team under the direction of Coach Barney Wolf completed a strenuous practice season which included several grueling meets, according to Coach Wolf, proved very successful; his only regret was meeting the strong Eagles as the league opener. The '56 league opener ended as predicted, but still disappointing; Washington dropped the high spirited Indians 88-33. Lowell's first place standouts were Bob Young's 2:07.2 in the 880, Tim Curtis' :52.3 in the 440, Ross Shoaf's eleven foot pole vault, Paul Alexander's discus throw of 119 feet 7 inches. Jim Bush and Jack Schwadron paced the 130's to victory.

The Mission Bears fell easily under the poised hand of the Redmen. Tim Curtis' victory in the low hurdles and the high jump, Rich Hudson's winning in the dashes, Ed Chavez's 4:44.4 mile, and Paul Alexander's 113-10 discus left the Bears stymied. Jim Bush and Henry Kornfeld led the 30's, and both broke Lowell's high hurdles record. The 120 tracksters took a convincing 38-28 victory over the stunned Bears.

In the following meet with St. Ignatius, the Indians' varsity was edged out 64-49. The 20's, however, plowed their way past the Cats to a 47-21 margin, while the 30's filled out a 69-24 victory. The 30's took every event except the 880. Jim Caranica broke the school record for the shot by putting it 52-10; Rich Berk's 9.5 in the high hurdles was also a new Lowell record. In the 20's division two more school records were shattered. Ed Jackson tossed the shot 45-11 and Ross Shoaf poled 12 feet.

In their next meet Lincoln's varsity dominated 74-39, and the 30's also toppled to a 52-43 defeat. Only the powerful little 20's came through with a smashing 43-25 victory. Even in losing Lowell's top two division remained unsurpassed in some events; among there were Tim Curtis' :10.2 in the 100 and :22.2 in the 220, Rich Hudson's 180 lows, and (All City) Ross Shoaf's 11-6 pole vault.

Ed Chavez smashed the school record for the mile 4:35, as the Lowell varsity track team was downed by the Balboa Bucs' 79½-41½ victory, but the 20's slumped to a 44-24 defeat. Tim Curtis took both varsity sprints, the 100 in :10.5 and the 220 in :22.5 to become the only double winner for Lowell.

Outstanding performances were turned in by Bob Oddone and Sam Sekino in the 30's division. Oddone ran :53.4 in the 440 and Sekino was clocked in 14.6 in the low hurdles.

All three of Lowell's divisions bowed before the Polytechnic Parrots. The varsity, which lost by a score of 89-24, had some fine performances in Bob Young's 2.04.6 in the 880, Ed Chavez's 4:42.1 mile, and Ross Shoaf's 12 foot pole vault. Jim Caranica, the 30's top shot putter, got off a 54 foot heave. While the 20's lost 50 to 18, Eddie Jackson broke his previous record by throwing the 8 pound shot 48 feet 10 inches. Other winners were Pat Kelleher, Mike Tobriner, and Hiedo Saiki.

All three of Galileo's divisions fell below the thundering spikes of the Lowell Indians. Lowell's varsity headed a 78½-34½ victory over hapless Gal, while the 130's and 120's won a 70½-13½, and 40-27 victory, respectively. Ed Chavez paced the varsity with a 4:42.8 rain-soaked mile. The relay team swept through with the time of 2:31.6.

The 130's were proud of wins from Jim Bush, Bob Oddone, Jack Schwadron, Mike Tobriner, Pat Kelleher, Victor Brochard, and Tony Mathios. Filling out the wins for the 20's were Ave Cobo, Norman Quong, Hiedo Saiki, Alan Belkin, and Ed Jackson.

In the varsity meets, Lowell lost to Lincoln, Washington, Galileo, S.I., and Poly. They pulled down Balboa and Mission

In the light weight meets, the 130's came out on top three times, beating Galileo 13-0, Mission 29-16, and Balboa 38-10. The 30's were paced by Dick Petronic, Cliff Sansot, Stan Koenigsberger, and Josh Eppinger. The little 20's stayed ahead of their fellow divisions, scoring the best record of wins, five out of six. Their only loss being to the new '56 champions, Washington, 27-30.

The 20's came within three points of beating Washington and winning the round-robin championship. Rich Colsky, captain of the second place 20's, accounted for five firsts in the 50 yard breaststroke, and the 50 yard backstroke. Others who placed in all meets were John Marks, diving; Pete Samuels, 50 yard breaststroke; and Brad Nicol in the 100 yard free-style.

The varsity, 130's and the 120's all participated in the All-City swimming championship. The varsity took third place, while both the 20's and the 30's came in second. The only member of the varsity to place first was Ralph Gilman in the 100 yard free-style. The unlimited team placed third in the four-man medley relay. It was composed of Pete Urrea, Ed McKenna, Ralph Gilman, and Pete Cantou.

In the 130 pound division, Josh Eppinger placed third in the 100 yard breaststroke. The 30's medley relay and the four-man relay team also placed in the All-City meet. The four man relay took first, while the medley relay team placed third. The four-man relay was made up of Cliff Sansot, Josh Eppinger, Tom Inouye, and Kirk Patronic.

The 120 pound team placed second with Ricky Colsky taking a first in the 50 yard free-style and second in the 50 yard backstroke. Brad Nicol placed third in the 100 yard free-style.

Faced with the loss of nine members of the team,

Coach Livingstone nevertheless trained many players, some transfers from other sports, to fill their places. Leading players were Jim Watson, Vic Sashin, Larry Westdahl and Larry Draper.

Going places in '56

It is a proud thing to be the alumnus of a school with a tradition. For over 100 years Lowell has been equipping graduates to make their way in the world . . . and the bright eyes and bright minds of the class of '56 tell us old grads that they're going to do us one better in making a success of their lives.

There's a lot of history in 100 years . . . and Lowell educators can be proud of the contribution their alumni have made in shaping the business and cultural history of San Francisco.

(Incidentally if any of you alumni are thinking of going places in '56 . . . you'll be going in style in one of our new '56 Chevrolets. The hot ones even hotter this year . . . and I'd like any one of you to stop in and take a drive. I'll guarantee you'll enjoy it.)

Acknowledgments

To create a book of this size and content was a tremendous undertaking. I will always remember on the first day of school, Mr. Buckley holding up a college annual and saying "This is what this year's Red and White will be like," then he characteristically added what was to become the slogan of the staff, "Get to work." The staff got to work; at times the tasks were simple and interesting, other times they seemed impossible, such as identifying the names of alumni in old snapshots, or compiling all the Lowell grads who are lawyers. Often we wondered if the book would ever be compiled from the jumble of material we collected as the months went on. The fact that it was possible is due to the wonderful assistance received from so many people. Without them there would be no book, and it is here that I would like to express my sincerely felt appreciation.

If there is one person who deserves the credit for the book it is Mr. Buckley, our advisor. It was his idea to have a book commemorating Lowell's one hundred years, and in carrying out the project he has devoted not only his school hours but countless week-ends and vacations. Any questions that arose he answered, any task too difficult for the staff he did. The staff and I feel greatly indebted to Mr. Buckley and we would like to express our inadequate thanks here.

The photographs for a book like this are countless, the job of taking them is exasperating, but Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hall of Plymouth Studios did a fine job and we are very grateful to them. Also thanks are due to Marvin Bonds, Vic Anderson, and Bob Thain of the California Arts and Engraving Company for their splendid assistance; the S. K. Smith Company for the covers, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Watson of the Lexicon Press who spent many extra hours in order that the book would be printed on time.

I want to express my thanks also to the students who worked on the book, Bob Jeung and Karina Kang were responsible for the cover; Jerry Falk for the many action shots. The staff deserves credit for their work and I am sorry I do not have space to mention them individually.

The combined efforts of all these people have resulted in this yearbook and it is with pride that we place it in your hands. All those connected with the book had one purpose in mind—to create a lasting tribute to a fine school. We hope you will find the book as interesting as we do, and that while perusing its pages many happy experiences will be recalled to mind.
